Inland Telegraphic Address : "Testimony, Fleet, London." Cable Address : "Testimony, London." Telegraphic Code : "C.I.M.," C.M.S. Edition. Telephone : City, 7994 (3 lines).

Hours of Business : 9.45 A.M. to 5.30 P.M. ; Saturdays, 9.45 A.M. to 1 P.M.

GENERAL POLICY, etc.—All communications as to the general policy of the Society with regard to ecclesiastical matters, and any letters to be brought officially before the General Committee, should be addressed to the Hon. Clerical Secretary.

CONTRIBUTIONS.—Efforts should be made to obtain subscriptions at an early date in the financial year, which closes on March 31. All Parochial Contributions should be sent to local deanery or other divisional association treasurers and secretaries ; the latter should remit to the Lay Secretary, C.M.S., Salisbury Square, London, E.C.4, at convenient intervals, any substantial sum in their hands ; the balance being remitted at the close of the financial year. (This course would tend to equalize income and expenditure in a greater degree and save the Society a large sum yearly in Banker's interest on overdrafts.) Contributions may also be sent to the Lay Secretary (as above) ; or to the Society's Bankers, Williams Deacon's Bank, Ltd., 20, Birchin Lane, London, E.C.3, or to the H.C.M.S., 21, Molesworth Street, Dublin. Cheques and postal orders sent to Salisbury Square should be made payable to the Church Missionary Society and crossed "Williams Deacon's Bank, Ltd."

REMITTANCES.—Friends should state whether remittances are to be regarded as :—

Paid through (or on account of) an Association (giving name) ; or as
"Paid Direct" (i.e. not through or connected with an Association).

This rule should be strictly observed, otherwise remittances are liable to be incorrectly allocated (causing disagreement between the Society's books and Association lists and accounts and disappointment to friends).

APPROPRIATED AND AUXILIARY CONTRIBUTIONS.—Gifts to meet special items of the Society's Expenditure ; e.g., Support (or passage) of missionary —Mission Share Plan—Training of Candidate—Upkeep of Bed, etc., are appropriated contributions, available to help the General or Medical Funds. Gifts for objects outside General Fund Expenditure (budgetted for annually), but for approved needs of missionaries, are additional thereto (or Auxiliary).

Treasurers and Secretaries are earnestly requested to furnish particulars of these special contributions to Salisbury Square, at time of remittance ; stating (1) Name of parish ; (2) Donor—giving address ; (3) For purpose given ; (4) Amount. This information enables Head-quarters to promptly advise the items to missionaries in the field and thereby a delay of several months, possibly, is avoided.

INVESTMENTS AND SECURITIES.—Inquiries and correspondence in connexion with transfers of Stock to the Society's Trustees (Church Missionary Trust Association, Ltd., 16, Salisbury Square, London, E.C.4) for funding or other purposes should be addressed to the Lay Secretary.

EDITORIAL.—Communications as to literary matters and subjects connected with the publications of the Society should be addressed to the Editorial Secretary.

CANDIDATES.—All inquiries as to offers of service in the foreign field and the training of candidates should be addressed to the Secretary, Candidates Department.

FOREIGN.—Letters connected with the details of the ordinary work abroad should be addressed to the Foreign Secretaries. Those connected with Medical Missions should be addressed to the Secretary to the Medical Committee. For information regarding the work and needs of Educational Missions, application should be made to the Secretary to the Educational Committee.

HOME ORGANIZATION.—The Home Department is under the control of the Home Secretary, to whom all correspondence should be addressed. He will welcome personal conference regarding any matter connected with the work of the Associations throughout the country. Correspondence regarding "Own Missionaries" should be addressed to the Lay Secretary. Arrangements for Sermons and Meetings in connexion with Associations will be made by the Organizing Secretaries for the respective districts, a list of whom is given on page viii.

Inquiries relative to the Medical Mission Auxiliary, and applications for deputations or special literature, should be made to the Organizing Secretary for Medical Missions.

Applications from Young People's and other Unions, and branches of the Missionary Service League, for deputations to meetings, and ordinary correspondence, should be addressed to the respective Secretaries.

Correspondence with regard to the subject of Missionary Study and in connexion with the Circulating Library should be addressed to the Assistant Secretary for Missionary Study.

Orders for and correspondence regarding the supply of the Society's Publications should be addressed to The Manager, Publishing Department, but remittances should be made payable to "The Church Missionary Society." The Society's publications may also be obtained through any bookseller, or from the Society's Agencies at Belfast, Birmingham, Bristol, Derby, Dublin, Exeter, Liverpool, Manchester, and Nottingham.

Applications for the loan of Lantern Slides, kinematograph films, linen pictures, wall maps, costumes, curios, books, etc., should be addressed to the Secretary, Loan Department, C.M. House; applications for Missionary Exhibitions to the Secretary, Exhibitions Department.

Except under very special circumstances, there is always one or more of the Secretaries in attendance who may be seen during office hours.

The Committee meet at the Society's House on the Wednesday after the second Tuesday in each month, at Eleven o'clock.

A Prayer Meeting for friends of the Society is held at the Society's House every Wednesday from 4 to 5 P.M.

RULES FOR THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE REPORT

I. The Full REPORT

PRAYER USED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY AND AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE

ALMIGHTY and most merciful FATHER, we give Thee humble thanks for the light of Thy Gospel. Make us more grateful for this Thy mercy, and more zealous for the salvation of all mankind.

Visit in mercy the Church of Christ; enrich it more abundantly with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit; and bless its endeavours to make known Thy Truth. Unite, as one man, all who are truly labouring for Thee. Disappoint the designs of Satan. Let all Christian Societies live in harmony and love; give them wisdom in all their plans; perfect Thy strength in their weakness; and direct their labours to Thy glory.

The harvest truly is great, but the Labourers are few! O Thou Lord of the Harvest send forth Labourers into Thy Harvest! Fill with Thy Spirit those whom Thou hast sent forth; and enable them faithfully and boldly to preach, among Jews and Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ. Keep them from the snares of the world, the flesh, and the devil; deliver them from all evil; and make them wise to win souls.

Upon all the native converts whom Thou hast gathered to Thyself through Thy labouring servants throughout the world pour out Thy Holy Spirit, that as Thou hast begotten them again unto a lively hope, so they may ever be followers of Thee as dear children. Deliver them from all remaining darkness and ignorance; destroy and abolish in their hearts all that remains of Satan's kingdom; grant that their faith and hope and love may grow exceedingly; make them to be ready to every good work, and more especially to exert themselves for the salvation of those around them; that so, by their zeal and faithful testimony, by their holiness and fruitfulness, they may glorify Thy Name before their countrymen, and bring in unto Thee from the midst of them such as shall be saved.

Have compassion, O most merciful Father, on all those who have come under instruction, though they be not yet altogether Christians! Convince them effectually by Thy Word and Spirit of their sinful and miserable state; pour upon them the spirit of grace and supplication, and draw them to Jesus.

Take away blindness from the Jews. Let them receive Thee, O Jesus, as their Messiah and proclaim Thy saving Name among the Gentiles!

Deliver all Mohammedans from the delusions of the False Prophet. O Thou True Prophet of Thy Church, enlighten them by Thy Holy Spirit, and bow them down at the foot of Thy Cross!

Pity blind idolaters who are kept in cruel bondage by the god of this world. Turn them from idols, that they may serve the Living and True God.

O Thou Almighty Saviour, Who by the right hand of God art exalted, and hast received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, shed forth His light and grace on this dark world!

Cause all Christians, we beseech Thee, to sow bountifully that they may reap also bountifully. O Thou that lovest a cheerful giver, let all grace abound toward them, that they may minister liberally of their substance to the making known of Thy Name!

With these our humble prayers, we join our praises and thanksgiving for what Thou hast already done in making known Thy salvation; perfect Thy work, O Lord; shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect; and hasten the coming of Thy Kingdom.

Be present with us, O Lord, at this time. Give us all a single eye to Thy glory. May Thy blessing rest upon our meeting; and may all our hearts be this day quickened and encouraged to fresh and persevering efforts in Thy Service.

We ask these mercies for the glory of Thy Name, through the merits and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Three Persons in One God, everlasting praise. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For Thine is the kingdom, The power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER USED AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE HOME AND FOREIGN COMMITTEE

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, Who hast purchased to Thyself an Universal Church by the precious blood of Thy dear Son, we give Thee hearty thanks that it hath pleased Thee to call us to the knowledge of Thy grace and faith in Thee, and to appoint our lot in an age and country where the true light shineth. We bless Thee that Thou hast awakened us in some measure to feel our responsibilities. We praise Thee for what we have seen and heard of the power of Thy Word among the Heathen; we adore Thee for Thy many servants who have gone out from amongst us to toil, and suffer, and die in making known Thy salvation; and we thank Thee that Thou dost allow us, unworthy sinners, to unite together in this work of faith and labour of love.

We humbly confess our past lukewarmness in this Thy service, notwithstanding these Thine inestimable benefits and mercies. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us our past negligences, and so endue us with Thy Holy Spirit that we may more earnestly seek Thy glory in the salvation of souls.

Grant us, we beseech Thee, Thy very present help at these our meetings. We ask, most gracious God and Father, for a constraining sense of the love of the Lord Jesus, and for wisdom to direct us in all our endeavours. Increase upon us the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. Give us faith and courage; give us zeal and patience; give us a single eye to Thy glory; and help us to bear and to forbear. The silver and the gold are Thine, O King of kings! Supply us with what is needful for Thy great work, and make us faithful stewards of Thy bounty, for proclaiming to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

We pray also for all who are united with us in the direction of this sacred cause.

May Thine especial blessing rest upon our Committees, with their Secretaries, throughout the world. Bestow on them the help that we feel so needful for ourselves. Enable them to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and ever to find favour in the sight of all with whom they may have to do.

Especially we beseech Thee to look, O most merciful Father, upon our missionary brethren. Draw out our hearts towards them more and more; and while they are bearing the burden abroad, give us grace to help and succour them by our sympathy and prayers at home. Bless every letter written to them from this house, and all our intercourse with them. We pray for them that they may be filled with Thy Spirit. Grant that the same mind may be in them which was also in Christ Jesus. Let them never lose their first love. Raise them above the cares of this world. Help them to deny themselves and to endure all things for the elect's sake. Give them the tongue of him that is taught. Clothe them with humility. Teach them to follow peace with each other, and with all men. Support them under spiritual distresses, temptations of the adversary, bodily sickness, domestic anxieties, and hope deferred. And so confirm Thy Word from their lips by the power of the Holy Ghost, that through them multitudes may be turned from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto Thee, our God.

We commend to Thee the missionaries' children entrusted to our charge. Bring them all to a saving knowledge of Christ Jesus. Defend them with Thy heavenly grace that they may continue Thine for ever, and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more, until they come unto Thy everlasting kingdom. Give all needed grace to those who have the direction of the Home in the discharge of the arduous work with which Thou hast been pleased to entrust them.

We most heartily thank Thee, O Lord, for those whom Thou hast already sent forth through this Society; and we pray for a yet larger outpouring of a missionary spirit on our younger clergy, on the members of our Universities, on those who are elsewhere preparing for this holy work, on the young men and women of all ranks and orders throughout our land. And herein do we implore Thy special favour on our training institutions, that their numbers may be replenished continually: and that none may go forth from them but such as shall be able ministers of the New Testament, full of faith, and of the Holy Ghost.

We praise Thee, O Thou God of all grace, for the converts, the native catechists, and the native clergy, whom Thou hast granted to us in our several Missions. As Thou hast raised the native Churches thus far, bring them, we pray Thee, to full ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ. Pour out upon them Thy Holy Spirit. Stablish, strengthen, settle them, and so enlarge their liberality that they may both maintain Thy Word among themselves and may make it known to the regions beyond them, till all the Gentiles hear the glad tidings of Thy love.

And now, O Lord God, be Thou in the midst of us to-day. Give us a constant sense of Thy presence, and may all our undertakings be begun, continued, and ended in Thee, to the honour of Thy great Name, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

LAWS OF THE CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY FOR AFRICA AND THE EAST

(As revised at a Special Meeting of Members of the Society, held on 11 February, 1919)

I. THIS Institution shall be designated "The Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East"; and shall be conducted by a Patron or Patrons, a Vice-Patron, a President, Vice-Presidents, a COMMITTEE, and such Officers as may be deemed necessary, all being Members of the Established Church of England or of Churches in communion therewith.

II. The office of PATRON of the Society shall be reserved for Members of the Royal Family; and that of VICE-PATRON for His Grace the Primate of all England, if, being a Member of the Society, he shall accept the office. The PRESIDENT shall be such Temporal Peer or Commoner as may be appointed to that office, and VICE-PRESIDENTS shall consist of all Archbishops and Bishops of the Churches of England and Ireland, who, being Members of the Society, shall accept the office; and of such other persons as, being also Members, shall be appointed thereto by the COMMITTEE.

OF MEMBERS AND GOVERNORS

III. Annual Subscribers of One Guinea and upwards, and if Clergymen Half-a-Guinea, with Collectors of One Guinea and upwards, per annum, shall be Members of the Society during the continuance of such Subscriptions or Collections. Benefactors of Ten Guineas, and upwards, in one sum shall be Members for Life.

IV. Annual Subscribers of Five Guineas shall be Governors during the continuance of such Subscription; and Benefactors of Fifty Pounds, and upwards, in one sum, shall be Governors for Life.

V. Subscriptions and Benefactions shall confer the same privileges whether paid to the Society direct or through an Auxiliary or Association.

VI. The COMMITTEE may appoint such persons as have rendered essential services to the Society, either Honorary Governors for Life, or Honorary Members for Life.

OF GENERAL MEETINGS

VII. An Annual Meeting of the Members of the Society shall be held in London, on the Tuesday next before the first Wednesday in May; when the proceedings of the foregoing year shall be reported, the Accounts presented, and the Treasurer and elected Members of the COMMITTEE chosen. Whenever any vacancy in the office of Treasurer shall occur, the COMMITTEE may fill up the vacancy, for the interval between the occurrence of such vacancy and the next Annual Meeting.

VIII. The COMMITTEE may summon a Special General Meeting of the Members of the Society, at which not less than Thirty shall constitute a Quorum, at any time, and they shall do so on receipt of a requisition in writing, addressed to the Secretaries, and signed by not less than Fifty Members of the Society, and specifying the object of the Meeting. Ten days' notice shall be given in three London Daily Newspapers, and in two other Newspapers, of any such intended Meeting, and of the purpose for which it is called; which shall be deemed sufficient publicity.

IX. None of the Laws of the Society shall be repealed or altered, nor any new ones made, but at the Annual Meeting, or at a Special General Meeting called for that purpose.

X. An Anniversary Sermon shall be preached at some Church in London, by a Clergyman appointed by the COMMITTEE. An Annual Report of the Society shall be printed for the use of its Members.

OF THE COMMITTEE

XI. The COMMITTEE shall consist of the following, being Members of the Established Church of England or of Churches in communion therewith.

(a) Twenty-four laymen and twelve women being Members of the Society, and twelve Honorary Members for Life being women, elected at the Annual Meeting.

(b) All Clergymen who are Members of the Society and have been so for not less than one year.

(c) All Honorary Governors for Life, and all such other Governors as have been so for not less than one year.

XII. The COMMITTEE shall elect, at their First Meeting in every year, either from among themselves, or from the other Members of the Society (being Members of the Established Church of England or of Churches in communion therewith), a Home and Foreign Committee, a Finance Committee, and a Patronage Committee, and shall have power to fill up vacancies.

XIII. Each of the said Committees shall keep Minutes of its Proceedings, and shall make such reports of its proceedings to the COMMITTEE as the COMMITTEE shall require.

XIV. The COMMITTEE shall appoint annually a Committee of Estimates.

XV. The office of the Home and Foreign Committee is (in the Home Department) to provide literature and to circulate information respecting the Society; to seek for proper missionary Candidates; to adopt means of obtaining Subscriptions, Benefactions, and Collections in Churches, and Chapels, and at Meetings; to take a general oversight of the Associations; and to nominate from time to time, to the COMMITTEE, suitable persons to act as Agents and Representatives of the Society for these objects, and (in the Foreign Department) generally to direct the foreign work of the Society, to report on the need for new Missionaries, to supervise the training of Candidates, to nominate Missionaries to the COMMITTEE, to superintend their instruction, when necessary, and to recommend their location.

XVI. The office of the Finance Committee is, generally, to superintend the accounts and financial affairs of the Society, and from time to time to note and to report to the COMMITTEE how far the expenditure corresponds with the sanctioned Estimates.

XVII. The office of the Patronage Committee is to procure patronage and support to the Society; and to nominate to the COMMITTEE proper persons as Patrons, President, Treasurer, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Life Governors, Honorary Life Members of the Society, and the preacher of the Anniversary Sermon, also the Secretaries, Departmental Secretaries, and the Heads of the Society's Home Institutions.

XVIII. The Home and Foreign Committee shall appoint from among themselves a Candidates Committee, and may appoint at their discretion other Committees, for the examination of Missionary Candidates.

XIX. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, the Home and Foreign Committee, the Finance Committee, and the Patronage Committee respectively, may delegate any of their duties to Sub-Committees elected from among themselves and may authorize such Sub-Committees to report direct to the COMMITTEE. Subject in each case to the previous sanction of the COMMITTEE there may be added to any Sub-Committee appointed under this law a limited number of Members of the Society not being Members of the Committee appointing them.

XX. The COMMITTEE may make bye-laws and from time to time vary regulations as to the conduct of business by themselves and by the other Committees, and subject to and so far as not inconsistent with any such bye-laws and regulations for the time being in force, the COMMITTEE shall receive and deal with the Reports of the other Committees, shall decide upon the countries where Missions shall be carried on, and shall superintend and control the affairs of the Society in general. The COMMITTEE may authorize any of the Committees appointed under Law XII, and with the consent of the appointing Committee any Sub-Committee to deal with and dispose of any matters and classes of matters the consideration of which falls within its province, reporting its action to the next meeting of the COMMITTEE. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, every Committee may make regulations for its own government, and may appoint Sub-Committees and fix their quorum.

XXI. The COMMITTEE shall have power to appoint such Officers and Assistants as they shall deem necessary for the well-conducting of the affairs of the Society, subject in the case of the appointment of Secretaries, to the approbation of the next Annual Meeting. One, at least, of the Secretaries shall be a layman.

XXII. The COMMITTEE shall have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Society, and to invest the funds of the Society as they may deem expedient, and to vest all or any portions of the property and funds of the Society in the Church Missionary Trust Association, Limited, or in such Trustee or Trustees, or corporate body, as they may in each case think fit.

XXIII. The COMMITTEE shall meet on such regular day in every month as shall be from time to time fixed by the COMMITTEE, and oftener if needful. The other Committees shall meet as often, and at such places, as shall be by them agreed on. All Committee Meetings shall be opened with reading a Form of Prayer composed for that purpose, or one or more suitable Prayers.

XXIV. The Patrons, Vice-Patron, President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, and Secretaries shall be ex-officio Members of the COMMITTEE and of the Committees appointed under Law XII.

XXV. Five Members personally present shall form a quorum of the COMMITTEE; and Three of each of the Committees provided for in Law XII; in each case exclusive of the Secretaries; in all other Committees and Sub-Committees the quorum shall be Three unless otherwise fixed by the Committee appointing. In cases of equality of votes, the Chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote. Every Committee may act notwithstanding vacancies.

XXVI. All orders for payments on account of the Society shall be signed by Two Members of the Finance Committee and countersigned by the Lay Secretary, or in his absence by one of the other Secretaries. The Finance Committee shall have power from time to time to advance to the Lay Secretary such sums for interim payments as may in their opinion be required.

XXVII. The accounts of the Society shall be audited and reported upon by Public Accountants appointed by the COMMITTEE; and Five Honorary Auditors shall be appointed annually by the COMMITTEE for the purpose of considering the Reports of Public Accountants, and of making recommendations thereon, and generally on the Accounts to the COMMITTEE once at least in every year. The Honorary Auditors shall be Members of the Society, not more than two of them being elected Members of the COMMITTEE.

OF MISSIONARIES

XXVIII. Every offer for Missionary Service shall be referred by the Secretaries either to the Home and Foreign Committee or in the first instance to the Candidates Committee under rules laid down by the Home and Foreign Committee; and the Home and Foreign Committee shall have power to deal with the offer, both as to the "training" and as to the nomination as a "Missionary" of the Candidate. Provided that no one shall be sent out as a Missionary without having been approved by the Home and Foreign Committee, and without, as a general rule, having appeared before them.

XXIX. Candidates nominated by the Home and Foreign Committee and accepted by the COMMITTEE, shall receive instruction in such parts of knowledge, and be prepared in such a manner for their future employment as the Home and Foreign Committee shall judge expedient.

XXX. Candidates shall consider themselves engaged to go to any part of the world, and at any time that the COMMITTEE shall decide, and be subject to such regulations as may be established by the COMMITTEE for the direction of the Missionaries; respect, however, being had to their personal circumstances, or to any previous stipulation made by them with the Society.

XXXI. Men who have been duly prepared and finally approved for Missionary work, shall go out, either ordained or unordained, at the discretion of the COMMITTEE.

XXXII. The Missionaries who go out under the direction of the Society shall be allowed to visit home, permission having been previously obtained from the COMMITTEE. After having laboured in the cause of the Society, to the satisfaction of the COMMITTEE, at the Stations committed to their care, until age or infirmity prevent further exertion, such provision shall be made to render their remaining days confortable as in the judgment of the COMMITTEE is suitable. The COMMITTEE shall have the power to assist also, in particular cases, the dependent Relatives of those Missionaries, who, by devoting themselves to the service of the Society, are prevented from contributing to their support. The COMMITTEE shall be further empowered in special cases to make such arrangements with those employed by them as they may think fit.

GENERAL

XXXIII. A friendly intercourse shall be maintained with other Protestant Societies engaged in the same benevolent design of propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXXIV. All questions relating to matters of Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline, respecting which a difference shall arise between a Bishop abroad and the COMMITTEE, shall, in the absence of any tribunal having legal cognizance of the same, be referred to the Archbishops and Bishops of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, whose decision thereupon shall be binding upon the Society and its agents, and representatives.

The proposed reference shall be made by the COMMITTEE, through his Grace the Primate accompanied by such explanations and statements as the COMMITTEE may deem advisable.

XXXV. The object of the preceding Law being only to provide a mode of settling questions relating to Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline as to which no provision has yet been made by the Society, it is not to be so construed, as in any other respect to alter the principles and practices of the Society, as they are contained in its Laws.

XXXVI. It is recommended to every Member of the Society to pray to Almighty God for a blessing upon its designs: under the full conviction, that, unless He "prevent us, in all our doings, with His most gracious favour, and further us with His continual help," the Society cannot reasonably hope to meet with persons of a proper spirit and qualifications to be Missionaries, or expect their endeavours to be crowned with success.

[1] Note based on Memorandum by Rev. H. Venn, 1839.—The Bishops of the Church of England under the authority of the law of the land ordain and send forth [ecclesiastically speaking] the Society's Missionaries; and in the event of their being appointed by the COMMITTEE to labour at stations within the jurisdiction of a Bishop of the Church of England abroad, it is the practice of the Society to apply to the Bishop for licences in which are specified the districts to which the Missionaries have been assigned. This is done on the understanding that licences will neither be refused nor when granted be withdrawn from the Missionaries during their connexion with the Society, except for some assigned legal cause.

* In drawing up the statistics on these pages the figures relating to the work of native Churches, sprung from C.M.S. Missions, have been included. The statistics of foreign missionaries and native clergymen in every case are made up to 1 June, 1921; other statistics to 31 December, 1920. † Latest returns available.

‡ The Turkish Arabia Mission is omitted in these returns, the Society having withdrawn. § Until the year 1914–15 missionaries accepted but not sailed were not counted on the staff. ‖ Figures not available.

STATISTICAL VIEW OF THE SOCIETY'S MISSIONS

NOTES

Col. 11. A station is a place where at least one foreign missionary resides regularly, or an ordained native with a similar status and responsibility. Different points of occupation in a city are considered as one station.

Col. 12. An out-station is a place, other than a station, with a resident native agent.

Col. 13. Organized congregations are normally those sending delegates to church councils which have taken a permanent form.

Col. 14. Communicants are counted again as baptized adherents.

Col. 17. Definite instruction is contrasted with mere church attendance.

Cols. 23–27. Teachers are those devoting the greater part of their time to educational work.

Cols. 25 and 26. The Christians among these are included in figures under columns 8 and 9 (Table I).

Col. 27. The non-Christian teachers are included in columns 25 and 26.

Kenya and Uganda.—The work in Kavirondo was transferred to the Kenya Mission on 1 January, 1921.

Western India.—The loss in columns 14 and 16 and in 25 and 31 is due to more accurate enumeration in the Urdu Mission.

N.-W. Canada and British Columbia.—The work in these Missions was transferred to the M.S.C.C. on 1 January, 1921.

LIST OF STATIONS AND MISSIONARIES
On 1 June 1921

 A STATION is a place where at least one foreign missionary resides regularly, or an ordained native with a similar status and responsibility, so that the place may be occupied by him in one year and by a foreign missionary in another. The main stations (where there is more than one in a Mission) in the following list are prefaced by a numeral to promote facility of reference in using the index on p. xcviii. The post-town of each station, when it is known, is given in parenthesis after the name of the station, except in cases where the station is itself a post-town. Where not otherwise stated, it may be assumed that the stations which are not numbered have the same post-town as the main stations after which they appear. For Palestine, it is desirable to address letters, intended for the stations which are not numbered, to the "care of" one of the missionaries at the main station. The figures immediately after the name of the station or post-town refer to the year in which the station was first occupied. The word "vacant" under the name of a station indicates that there was no foreign missionary or native clergyman resident there on 1 June, 1921.

The figures after the names of the foreign workers show the year of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Missionaries' wives take the status of their husbands as concerns local connexion. The university of the graduates or college where the workers were trained is indicated after their names, and the nature of their work is shown in some cases after the date of their joining the staff.

The figures after the names of natives (clergymen or laymen) show the date of ordination as deacon, or of acceptance as a missionary.

The terms "Hon." and "Partly Hon.," in parenthesis, after the name of a missionary, mean that such missionary draws no allowances, or only a portion of the usual allowances. In the case of the Colonial Associations the missionaries have been selected, and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations, by which likewise they are supported in the field. The Canadian C.M.S. also has selected men and women for the Society's Missions, but they are sent out and supported by the Missionary Society of the Canadian Church, of which the Canadian C.M.S. is financially an integral part. In nearly all the instances referred to, the C.M.S. is responsible for all other than personal allowances, as well as for the expenditure which is involved in the maintenance of the work.

The maiden names of wives of foreign missionaries, and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis. In the case of each woman who was a missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured and the year of joining it are stated; and in the case of a woman who was a missionary of another society, the initials indicating the society are given, as well as the country in which she worked and year of joining. Wives of missionaries are always expected by the Society to lay themselves out to do good among the native women in every practicable way, such as by cultivating familiar intercourse with them, educating children, and instructing the adult women.

The names of missionaries in the field are placed under the stations at which they were working on 1 June, 1921. The names of those who were then at home, or on the way home, or on the way out, are placed under the stations at which they last resided, save that those who were then on the way out and had been assigned to some other stations are put under those stations, and those who were on extended leave appear under a special heading at the end of their Missions. The names under each station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality, sex, orders, or other difference; except that the secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the stations where they reside, and wives of missionaries are placed immediately after their husbands. The names of the clergy of the Sierra Leone Native Church and of the district councils in Nigeria, Bengal and Bihar, and South India are arranged alphabetically.

At the end of the list are given the names of accepted missionaries who have not yet sailed, and of missionaries previously in Turkish Arabia, Mauritius, North-West Canada, and British Columbia, who are still maintained from the Society's funds.

The following signs and abbreviations are used :—

* "Own Missionary," that is, connected with, and, as regards personal allowances, wholly or partially supported by, individual friends of the Society or by the associations or other bodies whose names are given in brackets.

† Local connexion, that is, that the offers of service were accepted by the Society's representatives in the several Missions.

The number of foreign labourers added to the list during the year is 105, viz. 20 in holy orders, 19 laymen, 17 wives, and 49 other women. The names of 104 labourers have been removed from the list through death and other causes. The number of foreign labourers on the list on 1 June, 1921, is 1339. Of these, 922 were on 1 June, 1921, abroad, viz., 257 ordained men, 82 laymen, 230 missionaries' wives, and 353 other women. At the same date there were 417 missionaries at home, on the Continent, or in the Colonies, viz., 114 ordained men, 37 laymen, 131 missionaries' wives, and 135 other women. The number of native clergymen on the list is 589.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF FOREIGN MISSIONARIES

The numerals refer to the stations as numbered in the list on pp. li to xci. Where no Mission is given after a name it indicates either that the missionary was in a Mission formerly worked by the C.M.S. or that the missionary has not yet sailed; see pp. xc, xci.

THE ANNUAL SERMON

Preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, 2 May, 1921

BY THE

REV. ARTHUR TAYLOR, M.A.

Vicar of St. Bride's, Fleet Street, E.C.

"WHEREFORE HE SAITH, AWAKE, THOU THAT SLEEPEST, AND ARISE FROM THE DEAD, AND CHRIST SHALL SHINE UPON THEE."—Eph. v. 14, R.V.

THE word "wherefore" suggests the verse which immediately precedes this text: "But all things when they are reproved are made manifest by the light: for everything that is made manifest is light." It is a matter of little moment that St. Paul's quotation cannot be traced to its source. He uses it as though it were a current saying, a kind of watchword of the apostolic age, gathering into a few stirring words a thought which runs through the whole of the teaching of the New Testament. St. Paul himself continually reverts to it in many familiar passages. St. John opens his Gospel with a declaration which places it in the forefront of his teaching concerning his Lord and the purport of His coming. A little later he records a statement which has many close similarities with this passage: "Every one that doeth ill hateth the light, and cometh not to the light, lest his works should be reproved. But he that doeth the truth cometh to the light, that his works may be made manifest, that they have been wrought in God." It is the same theme, slightly different in expression, but with certain words in common, words which had evidently passed into the vocabulary of Christian speech and doctrine. Light and darkness, sleeping and waking, life and death, reproving and manifesting, had acquired a Christian setting. The ideas they conveyed were not new, except as they were centred in Christ and drew from Him fuller meaning. The Old Testament begins with the voice of the Lord God commanding light to disperse the darkness that lay on the face of the deep; the students of life who wrote psalms found no other answer to man's profoundest problems but the God in Whose light they too saw light; and the prophets, dealing with the practical issues of their day, had no hope for a world plunged in darkness except in the courage of the faithful whom they bade arise and shine, for their light was come.

The early Church simply transferred to its Founder all the thoughts which were gathered together in the Old Testament as the revelation of Jehovah to His people. They saw the Lord God in the face of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The old words come just as naturally to us as they have done all through the ages. We are conscious as we use them that language has to serve the purposes of two worlds, the one material and the other spiritual. We use it to express the common experiences of life, and we have no other vehicle for the deep things of the soul. Woven into the texture of history and the biographies of men in the books which we call the Holy Scriptures is a great moral revelation; and the same words have to serve for both. It is this that makes it often difficult to distinguish between cross currents of thought; sleep, nature's sweet restorer, recurring and beneficent, must also be a simile for inert lifelessness, and even of death; and we are not surprised that the disciples misunderstood our Lord's words about Lazarus. "If he sleep he shall do well," is their comment, and, "I go to awaken him out of sleep," is His answer. They were using one language to convey entirely different meanings. With this ever in mind let us turn to some of the thoughts suggested by this text and others to which it is related.

The Bible does not develop an idea of evolution through successive generations. It presents humanity as a body growing slowly from infancy to maturity, changing by the natural processes of its growth, but never breaking its continuity of life and history. In its earlier stages it is more asleep than awake. It has the qualities and much of the outward appearance of life, but it has only a dim conception of its own amazing possibilities. At once we find ourselves using the word "life" with a double meaning. The range of life is as wide as the gap between death and life. At its lowest life is a kind of sleep; at its highest it is fully awake.

As man becomes conscious of himself, he really begins to live, because light, which is the control of life and its interpreter, is breaking up his darkness. Man needs to learn how to live, and as he learns he demands more life. History is a record of the slow stages of awakening. Sometimes long periods elapse with no perceptible advance; but once and again there is a stirring into greater activity, as though, with eyes still heavy with sleep, mankind stretches its limbs and rejoices in some new-found strength.

There are marked epochs in history when the great throbbing heart of humanity was stirred to a fresh realization of life's meaning. Such a time was the apostolic age; it was astir with new movements of which the most potent was the call in the name of Christ to awaken out of sleep and to rise up from among the dead. Those who watched it with no friendly eyes confessed in their anxiety that the world was being turned upside down.

We must neither under-estimate nor over-estimate the extent of the movement; great though it was, it marked only the beginning of another stage in man's awakening.

We are passing through a world-stirring to-day. In the sense in which this and similar passages are to be interpreted man is still weighed down with sleep. He is not yet fully awake. He is more alive than he was, and with a growing sense of himself and his place in the scheme of things he is demanding the right to live a fuller life. The movement is world-wide. There is a new consciousness in every land, a new determination to test life's possibilities. We call it by many names, but most often we speak of the world's unrest. It is another stage in the awakening of mankind. On every side men are insisting upon better conditions of life. The air is full of voices proclaiming ideals old and new. And with the new stirrings there is a demand for more light. It is quite unnecessary to labour a point to which the attention of every missionary audience is continually being called. To travel with the dawn from East to West, to note in turn the modern miracle of Japan, the slower but possibly more irresistible developments in China, the strivings after nationalism in India, the re-groupings of the nearer East, and the beginning of a new day in the dark Continent of Africa, and to ponder with prayerful sympathy the problems of lands called Christian, is to realize that, whether we welcome it or dread it, the world is restless with new dreams of life.

Is there any question as to the Christian attitude towards these movements? Apparently there are two views of human happiness not easily reconciled. "Happy is the nation that has no history" sums up the position for many. Quietness and peace make for steady if not rapid progress, and it is a wise policy to settle everything on the basis of minimum disturbance. But to effect this involves something approaching stagnation. It is peace, but it is the peace of sleep. Peace is a Christian virtue and state highly to be prized, and it is God's good will that we should attain it, but the process of attaining does not always lead through stormless days. Again, we realize that the word varies in meaning from mere quiescence to the perfect poise of balanced forces, sensitive yet wondrously stable. There is a dynamic peace as well as a static. Which are we to strive for? The Bible leaves us in no doubt. It confronts us with texts seemingly at variance, but in reality only affording another instance of the cross currents of thought meeting in a single word. Christ teaches us, as He had been taught, to love peace and to ensue it. The peacemakers have the Kingdom of God for their inheritance. But it is within the citadels of our souls that we enjoy peace. When we ride abroad on quests of righteousness and truth, and even of mercy, we find ourselves often beset with trouble. If we are true to our calling we are children of the light, and whenever the light pierces the darkness it awakens men out of sleep, and calls them to life and activity with all its inevitable accompaniments. Again, with elasticity of meaning, the Prince of Peace came, on His own showing, not to bring peace, but a sword.

Some, and not a few in number, are of the opinion that the best way of keeping the world quiet is by suppressing its movements and soothing it to sleep. Why educate men when it only makes them discontented? Why not keep them as they are, unconscious of better things, satisfied with a life that has no stirrings? Using again the story of Lazarus, it almost seems as though the literal statement of the disciples had been adopted figuratively as an ideal of policy. "If mankind sleep he shall do well" (or perhaps more truthfully: "If we can keep mankind asleep then we shall do well"). Our Lord's answer is ours: "I go to awaken him out of sleep."

Why? For one thing because there are others who are wakening him, and, whether we will or not, we cannot keep him from realizing something of the life that is in him. There may be risks in bidding him awake and learn to live as we believe he ought to live, but we dare not leave him in his darkness.

For if we want to enjoy "goodness and righteousness and truth" we believe that they are "the fruit of light." We admit that the light, when it shines into the darkness, makes manifest, plain, and visible for all to see, the things that the darkness had hidden. They stand reproved and convicted in their openness. It is not a painless process, nor one without its dangers, but none the less the divine voice is heard: "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead."

Is this the answer to the advice sometimes given to us that we should leave men alone and not disturb them in their age-long content? At once we challenge the underlying assumptions and suggestions. Men cannot be left entirely alone, and those who occasionally give the Christian missionary such advice are not always equally ready to follow it themselves. As to the "content" of which they speak, we need not trouble to argue about it as the world is to-day. There is not much "content" between the North and the South Poles.

But our real answer is something quite different. We claim that it is the only wise policy to flood the world with the right kind of light, and to call men to awaken out of sleep and to walk in that light. It may be a bold policy, and it certainly involves risks. It does not ignore the dangers of little knowledge nor the discomforts attendant on the exposure of evil, nor even the inevitable stumblings by which we learn to walk. It faces all these frankly, but none the less asserts that there is no other way, and that this way is sure. It leads through pain and trouble to peace, just as the individual soul is saved through willingness to lose itself. The Church of all the ages, the body of the faithful, with spiritual eyes and long vision, has never hesitated to stir mankind out of its slumbers and to take the risks involved. That may sound crude, but it is safeguarded by one all-important condition. We do not make trouble with that intent, still less from any desire to snatch profit out of the confusion we have created. There is no gain for ourselves beyond the satisfaction of having enriched the world's life. Our point is that trouble is an inevitable accompaniment of enlightenment and progress, and that the ultimate gain is worth all the sorrow on the road. For the world, for the nation, as for the individual soul, there is only one law; no cross, no crown; no sacrifice, no reward; no death, no life. We follow humbly in our Master's footsteps. He has left to us the completion of His mission to give life to the world and life more abundant. The world is clamouring for it, and we believe we know the secret of its attainment. That is our Gospel, our good news, overflowing from our own joyous experience of its truth. We were once darkness, but now are we light in the Lord, and if we are true to Him and the light and to ourselves we must tell a world that is longing for light where we have found it. We are not bidding men awaken to darkness but to light, not to continued existence among the spiritually dead, but to joyousness among the living. We offer light and life, interacting one upon the other, until they find that ordered balance of happy activity which is the only peace worth calling the name.

We are not alone in asserting that we have a Gospel to proclaim. The air is full of rival voices all asserting that they know the way to fuller life through enlightenment. Even the multiplicity of would-be reformers is at least an evidence that there is a need to be met and a readiness to hear. There is nothing vague or indefinite in the Gospel we offer. It is not like light shining in the mists and clouds of the mountains, giving neither warmth nor guidance; it is the direct glow that shines from the Lord we worship; the Son of God Himself, clothed in human flesh, schooled in human experiences, living and dying for man's redemption, glorified in the Heavens at the right hand of the Father, giving us of His Spirit to guide us into all truth. In Him we proclaim the full and perfect satisfaction of every human need. When men ask for light and life we point to Him and say: "In Him was life, and the life was the light of men."

If St. Paul had lived in our day, he would have found causes for encouragement in what we regard as the difficulties of the present situation. He would not have been indifferent to its problems, but he would have been infinitely more concerned to take advantage of its possibilities. Universal unrest would have been to him an evidence of the working of the Spirit; apparent hindrances and limitations to his own activities would have set him discovering how they could be turned to account. They would all have worked out somehow to the progress of the Gospel. If he might not wander at will through Asia, he could at least be "an ambassador in a chain," and in any case "the Word of God was not bound." Had he lived now he would not have under-estimated the straitening of the Society in its resources, but he would have reminded us that the Gospel had no deficits. He does tell us in plain terms that his Lord had none. No one reading his letters would ever accuse him of being blindly optimistic; he always has an excellent reason for his cheery faith which no adverse circumstances could remove.

It is human nature to judge a man against his own utterances. How does St. Paul stand over against this text? He is a signal example of its application. He had been wakened abruptly out of sleep, lifted up from among the dead. The great day outside Damascus was the beginning for him of a new life of vigorous vitality and alertness of mind and spirit. In the accounts given to us, mainly by himself, of what befell him at that turning point in his career the recurring note is illumination. The heavenly vision is indeed at first so wondrous that he is blinded with the intensity of its glory—"a light from heaven above the brightness of the sun"—and it is while he is still in darkness that he receives his commission to be a minister and a witness of the things he had seen and yet should see, and to be sent unto the Gentiles "to open their eyes to turn them from darkness to light." No wonder that when sight came back to him there fell as it were scales from his eyes.

Those were great days when the power of the Holy Ghost was very evident in the moulding of the early Church. So great do they seem that to many they become the court of appeal on all questions both of doctrine and of order. If we could only rise to the same heights we are inclined to think it would make the world very different for us. But, after all, is the disparity so great, or, if it is, in which direction does it lie? We cannot read history, especially as it is laid open for us in the epistles, without being conscious that the Christian community as a whole does not correspond with the standard set by its leaders. What else could we expect? The missionary in touch with the newly converted and the ecclesiastic studying Church History read the New Testament with different eyes. We do not deny to the early Church the glory of being among the first to awake out of sleep, to arise from the dead, and to rejoice in the light that Christ shone upon them; but we should have to find a new Gospel if it were true that the Church of God had not progressed in enlightenment and in life. We ourselves are far, very far, from our own standards, but unless the gap is becoming narrower, we have no message for a world that is clamouring for better things than our fathers knew. I fancy we get confused between the Church of the Apostles' days and the leaders of that Church, such of them as have left behind them records by which to measure them. Perhaps a modern parallel in national affairs may be found in the sudden prominence into which Japan has been brought by the sheer force of fine leadership. There is the same gap between the few whom vision, knowledge, and training marked out as leaders and the rest of the nation as there was spiritually between the Apostles and the Churches of Asia, Greece, and Rome.

What is the secret of the place of the Apostles in history—a place which we concede to them freely as we measure them against the long succession of leaders from their time until now? They were great; no greater than others might be, perhaps even than some may have been; we have no final means of judging; not even all equally great, but as a group of individuals united for a common purpose they stand out pre-eminent. If we could ask them, they would tell us, nay, they do tell us without our asking, that they were servants, bondslaves of Jesus Christ, their living Lord, Who had redeemed them and called them out of darkness into His marvellous light. They were not merely promoting a cause or advocating principles of reform, they were from day to day in direct communication with a risen Master Whom most of them had known in the flesh and learned to love with a passion that grew more intense and more pure as the years passed by. Christ shone continually upon them, illuminating their minds, and making them stand out among their fellows, so that men were compelled to ask each other how they came to be what they were. And they took note of them that they had been with Jesus. It was only a partial explanation. Memories do not work miracles. The intense vitality of the Apostles was not fed only on thoughts of other days; it was renewed every morning with the sense of communion with their risen and glorified Lord. If we could live in the same Light, we could live at the same level. What perhaps we have lost is the meaning of discipleship and the way of it—and yet it fills most of the pages of the Gospels.

But whether we lag behind the greatest or not, we may not doubt that the onward march of the Church of God moves irresistibly to victory. It is still dark, but the dawn is breaking. The shadows are long across our path, and the road is hidden from us by the next turning, but we are being called by the circumstances of our times to the cheery courage, wise patience, and indomitable faith of the man who from within the restraints of his prison saw a vision of a world awake and alert, illumined by the light of Christ.

Still the hope of the world lies with those who have the secret of life's fullness. In the world the Church of God has a mission, because it has a more abundant and a purer light than the rest of the world enjoys. The Church itself is not perfectly enlightened, but its face is towards the dawn. Within its ranks are shadows and half lights, with here and there broad beams of the morning. With all humility, but with no disparagement of grace, we who are missionary at heart believe that to us there has been given light in fuller measure.

Again at the anniversary of our beloved Society, when the cloud of witnesses from the past hovers about us, and suggests strange comparisons between the difficulties of their times and those which beset us now, we feel stirring within us the call to faith and courage. The world is awakening to demand better social conditions and richer opportunities; the Church is awakening to dreams, but day dreams, of unity and reconsecration. It is our turn, however the outlook may seem to us, to awaken out of sleep, to rise from among the things that are dead. The past is behind us, and we press on to the things that are before. The Church Missionary Society has been so full of vigorous life, so evidently enlightened by the vision of Christ, that it might appear unnecessary to apply to ourselves a text which was being quoted freely and, as we judge, appropriately when the Church of God was newly born. Let us quote it just as freely now; let us believe that it is as truly appropriate to-day as it was then. Until the day has fully come it will always be true, and as for ourselves we can rejoice that we live in an age of restlessness and strivings and gropings after better things. That is what our light is for; let us waken to it. The victory is sure if Christ shines upon us, and through us upon the world.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE 122ND ANNIVERSARY

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society, held at Queen's Hall, Langham Place, London, on Tuesday, 3 May, 1921, being the Society's 122nd Anniversary, COLONEL SIR R. WILLIAMS, Bt., M.P., President, in the Chair, after reading of Scripture and Prayer, "The General Review of the Year" was presented, and, on the motion of Captain T. W. Craig, seconded by G. E. W. Cranage, Esq., the following Resolution was adopted :—

That the General Review of the Year which has just been presented, together with the Report, be adopted, printed, and circulated under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Rev. A. Taylor, for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that S. H. Gladstone, Esq., be the Treasurer of the Society; and that the following be elected members of the Committee for the ensuing year (for list see p. vii).

After which, on a motion by His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, D.D., seconded by the Lord Meston, K.C.S.I., it was resolved :—

This Meeting offers praise to God for His mercies to the Society throughout another year, for the fact that more missionaries are now at work than for several years past, for blessing upon the Churches in the Mission Field, and, in particular, for the Centenary of the Church in Tinnevelly with its abundant evidence of strength and spiritual life.

The Meeting thanks God for the income of £520,126 which has been raised in a year in which there has been such financial difficulty. The Meeting would express on behalf of the whole Society warm appreciation of the work of those through whose efforts such results have been achieved; it rejoices to know that more parishes are supporting the Society than at any time in its history, and that the Home base of the Society is being extended; it asks all members of the Society to share in its resolve that continued emphasis be laid upon the steady education of men and women on the subject of missionary work, and upon enlisting new interest and support; especially it acknowledges with thanksgiving all that has been achieved through the Gleaners' Union during the past thirty-five years, and commends to the whole Society its successor, the Missionary Service League, believing that it may be a great means of calling forth missionary service and knitting together the members of the Society in still deeper fellowship.

While thanking God that there exist good prospects of defraying, through sales of property in the Mission Field, the large deficit occasioned by high prices and adverse exchange, the Meeting recognizes that this is an emergency measure which cannot be repeated, and that the maintenance of present work is impossible apart from a further increase of regular income. To this enterprise, in a year which opens with an anxious economic outlook, the Meeting invites all members of the Society to dedicate their efforts.

The rapidly changing conditions in the world are vitally affecting the work of Missions overseas, and these demand from the Church a clear witness for righteousness in the life and government of the nation both at home and overseas. It also recognizes that present conditions call with new urgency for the transfer of increased responsibility to Churches in the Mission Field. It welcomes the action of the Committee in sending a Delegation to India in the ensuing autumn which will be strengthened by the membership of the Bishop of Dornakal and other Indians.

The power of the Society to fulfil its ministry in the world must always depend upon the reliance which its members and Committees place on the gifts and guidance of the creative Spirit of God, and to His merciful inspiration it commends the Society and its work in the coming year.

The following meetings were also held in London in connexion with the Anniversary:—

On May 3 at the C.M. HOUSE, Salisbury Square, at 3 P.M. (for women), Miss M. M. Allan in the Chair;

And at ROYAL ALBERT HALL, South Kensington, at 7.45 P.M., the Lord Bishop of Truro in the Chair;

And on May 4, at QUEEN'S HALL, Langham Place, at 7 P.M. (Medical Mission Auxiliary), A. Carless, Esq., C.B.E., M.S., F.R.C.S., in the Chair.

Addresses were delivered at these meetings by the Ven. Archdeacon Stanton Jones, the Rev. J. McKay (formerly of West Africa), the Rev. W. P. Hares (Punjab), the Rev. D. A. Callum (Western China), Dr. N. Bradley (S. China), Dr. Ernest F. Neve (Punjab), Dr. H. White (Persia), and J. Gurney Barclay, Esq. (Japan).

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

General Review of the Year

[READ AT THE ANNIVERSARY IN QUEEN'S HALL, 3 MAY, 1921]

"Though the vision tarry, wait for it; because it will surely come."—Habakkuk ii. 3.

In a review of the present world situation as compared with that of a year ago, the dominant impression on the minds of many is that of disappointment. The high hopes then entertained have not been realized; still tarries the vision of the Promised Land of Fellowship with God and men. It may well be, however, that the verdict of history will give a different reading to the events of 1920. The year saw the first assembly of the League of Nations, the putting into effect of a generous measure of self-government in India, the decision to carry out a like policy of trust in Egypt; the year saw also the holding of the Lambeth Conference. One and all of these are acclaimed by some as great events, by others as pathetic failures. Critics may claim that judged by the standard of outward achievement the immediate results have taken us but a little way in the direction of brotherhood and peace. But seen by the light of eternity they may well appear as triumphs of God, for they contain the expression of a new spirit. This is surely true of the most notable event of the year—the Lambeth Conference. Two hundred and fifty-two bishops met and conferred on the great problems confronting the Church, and the outcome of the deliberations will, under God, materially aid the witness of the Church across the seas. The missionary enterprise received a large share of attention, but the greatest help seems likely to come from the resolutions on reunion; and from the spirit they embodied even more than from any definite scheme. There runs through both report and resolutions of the Conference a determination to close the ranks of Christianity. The critical situation in the world demands it. And the frank recognition of guilt on our part, together with an equally frank recognition of other communions as integral parts of the Church of Christ, will go far to prepare the way.

The Lambeth Conference

The new spirit is not likely to have easy progress; all the signs point to a conflict of increasing strength. Every follower of Jesus Christ is confident of ultimate victory, since all mankind is redeemed by His eternal sacrifice; but the immediate future is obscure. One circumstance, however, gives hope that the forces of peace and love may make headway in our own day and generation, namely, the widespread recognition of the fact that the new world cannot be made by external machinery; war will not end war, neither will covenants nor treaties usher in the Kingdom of God; men know it now, and they recognize also that these benefits can be the outcome only of a new spirit. Already men in every land are wistfully looking to Christ. This is nothing less than a God-given opportunity to the Church. It is the Holy Spirit's preparation of the minds and spirits of men. Christians have but to let the message of the Cross and Resurrection ring clear by life and lips, and redemption will come alike to individuals and tribes and nations.

The purpose of the Committee's review is not to turn the prophet's page, but rather to survey the present situation. This is no easy matter, for the things of the Spirit cannot be measured by cold statistics. The number of baptisms, the measure of self-support, the increase in native catechists and pastors—these things are of value only if they are seen side by side with a general uplift of the whole life of the peoples concerned. The settler in East Africa and the merchant in India do not want to know whether their servants can repeat the Apostles' Creed, so much as whether they are more honest, more industrious, and less quarrelsome than their heathen brothers.

Christianity tested

This question in varying forms is being increasingly and insistently asked at home. The test is a just one, for Christianity is a life even more than a creed. Eternal life connotes something incomparably more wonderful than moral relations with men; it is nothing less than God's gracious gift of friendship with Himself. But purity and harmony and self-sacrifice are inevitable expressions of the life which issues from fellowship with God.

Christianity in India and Africa and the Far East can stand the test. The reading of hundreds of missionaries' letters inevitably compels such a conclusion. Missionaries for the most part do not paint the picture in glowing colours; theft and lying and immorality in Christian circles are faithfully chronicled. The testimony of the workers is by this very fact the more valuable when they tell us that the victories of the Cross are many and that the new life is immeasurably richer than the old. One, writing from the Telugu Country, says: "My own impression of the newly converted outcastes is that their grasp of spiritual things is wonderful. If they once only thought of loaves and fishes, that desire has now been ousted by something finer and more spiritual."

Character of Christian converts

Another missionary, writing from Western India, says: "Mahar hates Mang and so also does the Bhil hate both. In spite of this difference Christianity has brought them together, and they are living peaceably and in love under Christ's banner. Glory to God." And still another tells of an educated native in East Africa who deliberately chose to engage in Christ's work at Rs 15 a month rather than earn Rs 50 as a government official. Such instances could happily be multiplied a hundredfold.

Among non-Christians also the vision of Christ is a reality. New ideals are laying hold of great masses of men; and not only are these ideals Christian in character, but in the minds of many they are quite definitely associated with the person of Jesus Christ. They are profoundly influencing the Moslem world. Hinduism also is being modified greatly, especially by adherents of the Arya Samaj. And, strongest evidence of all, these ideals provide the ground for severe criticism of the Church itself. "It is hopeful," writes one from Bombay, "that the opposition to Christianity and Christian people does not always mean opposition to Christ. Christ is being quoted against us." Reports from Japan as well as India afford striking witness of this testing of the Church's methods by the living portrait of the Redeemer. Truly a vision of Christ has been given.

Christian ideals among non-Christians

Africa is being drawn more and more into the vortex of the great world-struggle. Through the impact of Europe her sons have caught a vision of the fuller life, but the rapidly developing racial spirit is making the African feel that the European is keeping his full heritage from him. In view of the recent revelations of compulsion to provide labour in Nigeria and East Africa and the alienation of the African's land, it is idle to deny that there is a real basis for the fear. An African paper, the "Umteteli wa Bantu," says: "Mutual distrust and dislike obtrude themselves at every turn and woefully damage every effort to bring the races closer together. . . . The natives cannot conceive that any white man outside the Church can act disinterestedly for their good."

Africa

It is cheering, however, to hear from many quarters of the simple trust which the natives repose in the missionary. He is leading them to feel that the Gospel of Christ makes for the uplift of the whole life. Effective witness of this has been rendered by the Church during the year in connexion with compulsory labour. The Church, both in the field and at home, has spoken out in no uncertain voice on the rights of the Africans for freedom to develop fully along the lines of their own tribal or national individuality; and the Committee are thankful that the request of a deputation from the Conference of British Missionary Societies for the appointment of a Royal Commission to look into the questions of land tenure and native labour has been sympathetically received by the

The rights of Africans

Government. And in other directions also—in education, in the development of the industries, in the extension of medical science—the Church is interpreting the Christ. One instance of medical work will be of interest. A missionary, during an outbreak of bubonic plague in Kavirondo, personally inoculated over 11,000 people, oftentimes doing seventy, eighty, and a hundred miles on his motor cycle in order to get the serum in immediately after the outbreak was reported, and for this he received the special thanks of the Government.

Mass movements

The spiritual response in many parts of Africa is phenomenal. Archdeacon Owen says: "The numbers pressing in are huge." Another writes from Nigeria: "During November I passed through some entirely fresh country inhabited by a distinctly warlike people whom the Government had never been able to subjugate. A movement started among these people, and by the close of the year we had six stations opened—all self-supporting—and over 1000 persons attending schools. The District Commissioner admitted that the result far exceeded anything he could believe possible." And in places where there is no mass movement the Gospel is making headway. "The whole district is gradually becoming influenced," writes one from Kenya Colony.[1]

The changes indicated are something more than a change from one religion to another. They betoken the coming of the Kingdom of God. No one who faces the facts can doubt it. Unselfishness springs up in the most unlikely places, and never fails to point men to the Christ Who inspired it. One instance must be given. A missionary working in the Ekiti Country says: "I baptized six young women converts in one place who have been the means in God's hands of leading their husbands to Christ, and in some cases their own brothers. They themselves were drawn to Christ by observing the C.M.S. native agent in their town caring for and nursing some patients suffering from smallpox." Those conscious of the African's horror of disease know how much this means. It is encouraging also to have evidence that the second generation of Christians attains a higher level than the first. More than one missionary speaks of the progress in spiritual strength, in mental attainment, and in social development of the young Christians as compared with their parents.

Foes within and without the Church

But there is another side to the picture; progress in the Kingdom of God is no easy matter. The enemy is at work both within and without the Church. Without—pressure and persecution from heathen chiefs, the ever-increasing momentum of Mohammedanism, and government obstacles in Mohammedan areas; while within—materialism, heretical teaching, and a low morality constitute a growing menace. The last named is giving cause for deep concern. The news from Uganda in this respect is painful in the extreme.

The struggle against the temptations of the flesh, especially an uphill fight for the African, is rendered the more difficult in West Africa by the low standard of the schismatic "African Church." In the words of a missionary: "It is exercising a most baneful influence on the situation and threatens to sap the very life of the Church in Nigeria. Its low moral standards, and its readiness to baptize every would-be applicant at a shilling a head, are a scandal to the Christian faith."

In letter after letter missionaries remind us of the price of victory—the thorough training of African teachers and pastors, and effective supervision. And in tearful letters they tell us that the price is not being paid. In the Niger Delta Pastorate and the Eastern Province under the C.M.S., there are 50,000 catechumens, and there is an utter collapse of the training work. "With the exception of one class of lowest grade evangelists, practically nothing is being done to produce schoolmasters, catechists, and ordinands. This work collapsed entirely at the end of 1918, and until a staff is provided from home there are no indications of its being resumed." A missionary writes from Patani: "I have seventy churches in the Igabo district, some with 1200 regular attendants, not one of which has a regular resident teacher. All I can do is to send out young evangelists to teach reading, and a few catechists." The need for recruits

Nor is this only true of Nigeria, for Archdeacon G. K. Baskerville, speaking of the situation in Busoga, says: "We have only been able to arrange quarterly visits; the result is that while we have got several of the big chiefs, the Roman Catholics are capturing all the peasants. Don't let us play with such an opening."

The episcopate in Africa has been strengthened by the consecration of Archdeacon Gresford Jones as Bishop of Kampala to assist the Bishop of Uganda; and by the consecration of Bishop Howells as assistant for the Niger Delta, himself a West African. Bishop Tugwell, after more than thirty years of heroic labour for Christ in Nigeria, has laid down his work there and accepted a living in England.

Egypt.—The year has been a momentous one in Egypt, for the keen desire for national independence has met with a speedy response from the British Government. Christian leaders, by their evidence before the Milner Commission, materially helped towards this new freedom. It is the more urgent, therefore, that no efforts should be spared to make known the one way by which this new freedom may lead to real development. On the whole the news from our Missions is encouraging. Christian schools are a growing attraction for many Mohammedans; they value what they call the "upbringing," that is, the good tone and moral training which The Near East

Christian teaching provides. The doctors also have been busier than ever; and, most encouraging of all, advance has been made in definite evangelistic work. The special meetings held by Dr. Sherwood Eddy were a splendid stimulus in this direction. In Cairo, for example, from 2000 to 3000 people heard the Christian message daily. Every effort is being made to conserve the results: "A committee of six from the various societies is running this work . . . a weekly evangelistic meeting in a theatre in Cairo is held . . . meetings in Alexandria and Tanta . . . also a dozen Bible circles for inquirers . . . bringing in real results." Among the many signs of increased Bible reading must be mentioned the addition of 300 new members to the Scripture Union. What Canon Gairdner calls the notable feature of the year has been the great increase in co-operation. Besides the evangelistic campaign, an Inter-Mission Standing Committee has been formed for dealing with Governments or handling the work connected with general missions or conferences. United work has been done also in a purity campaign and in the spiritual healing movement, and Bishop Gwynne, now Bishop of the separated diocese of Egypt and the Sudan, "has been applying the findings of the Lambeth Conference in a striking way." It is interesting also to record the first confirmation among the Dinkas at Malek, 1000 miles south of Khartoum.

Evangelistic meetings in Egypt

Palestine.—The problem in Palestine is a difficult one and English Christians have a special responsibility in solving it, for Great Britain is now the Mandatory Power. In the early part of the year there was much unrest among the different peoples—Jews, Mohammedans, and Christians—but already there are signs of better things. Considerable progress is being made in the restoration of the C.M.S. work, and to facilitate this and strengthen the hands of the missionaries a delegation, consisting of the Rev. G. T. Manley, Major-General E. R. Kenyon, and Miss E. Baring-Gould, has been visiting Palestine. At Jaffa and Gaza medical work has been restarted, a very hearty welcome being given to Dr. Sterling, who is now carrying on his father's work. Good news comes of the high school for girls, of which mention was made last year; five missionary societies join forces in this venture, and a high standard of work is being maintained. As in Egypt so also in Palestine, Christian ranks unite and co-operate.

Delegation to Palestine

Persia.—In the disturbed condition of the country we cannot wonder that there is little definite news from Persia, but the Bishop writes in a hopeful strain. There seems to be a real opportunity in the desire for Christian education and medical work. At Kerman the Deputy Governor, one of the mullahs, and several merchants made an appeal for the maintenance of the hospital and girls' school.

India With break-neck speed India is moving out towards the promised land of a fully developed life. At present, however, she is in the wilderness, and the moral dangers and mistakes of the Jews of old are being repeated. The promise of a larger measure of self-government for India raised hopes of a golden age in the near future. The promise has now been redeemed, but the golden age delays. Signs of trouble were not wanting in 1919, and as the year under review advanced they rapidly increased. The forces of opposition found a focus in Gandhi's striking personality. Gandhi would not only banish from India the white man but western civilization itself, for his cry is, "Back to the Vedas," and his hope of success is bound up with his policy of non-co-operation. Mohammedans and Hindus have joined hands for the struggle; Mohammed Ali has spoken in Hindu temples and Gandhi in Mohammedan mosques. Many things have conspired to aid the movement—among others, the unrest attendant on famine, high prices, and influenza; Gandhi's simplicity and purity of character; the Amritsar tragedy and the Allies' treatment of Turkey; and above all, "an intense but vague desire for freedom; and the feeling sedulously cultivated by the extremist press that the existing government educational system is suppressing all that is original and national."

The non-co-operation policy

The movement has met with a measure of success, but has on the whole failed. The personnel of the various councils is settled, hardly an Indian has renounced major honours, only a few lawyers and barristers have given up their work in the courts, and students are returning to the closed or depleted schools and colleges. High forces have been at work: the appeal made in the fearless statement of the National Missionary Council of India, and the prayer behind it, have undoubtedly been used of God; and of hardly less weight have been the moving words of the Duke of Connaught, spoken all over India at the Provincial and National Assemblies, in his inauguration of the new era. His farewell words at Bombay deserve to be kept on record: "Each side, British and Indian, must sacrifice something, must be contented with less than its preconceived perfection, and must leave its own ground to seek for a common ground. I do not for one moment believe that the Indian leaders mean to jettison the ideals which the British race has endeavoured to bring into Indian life. On the other hand, I am just as certain that British officers will not be negligent of the reasoned will of the people. In that spirit I pray that either side will strive to eliminate personal misconceptions and reconcile their divergent lines of vision, for thus only will India move forward to conquer herself and bring her victory into the service of humanity."

The Duke of Connaught's appeal

The hearty reception given to the new Viceroy is a happy augury for the future, and his statement, that justice must be supreme, has evoked a responsive note in the hearts of many Indians.

The political movement has been dwelt on at length because it is indissolubly bound up with the life of the Church. The spirit which makes men yearn for freedom and development is born of God, and only as the Church brings the movement into living contact with Jesus Christ can the larger and richer life be realized. In one direction, however, the Church seems to fail. Educated men are fighting shy of identifying themselves with Christianity, and even those who have come out definitely on the side of Christ hesitate to enter the Christian ministry, or the ranks of teachers and catechists. This apparent failure may in reality be a sign of life and the quickest road to success. It will be so if it leads to the building up of a Church thoroughly Indian in character and vitalized with the desire to win its country for Christ. The foreign element must work and pray for this happy consummation.

Work among the outcastes

In the meantime the door opened by the Spirit of God among the outcastes still remains wide open. Two stumbling-blocks, however, loom large. The first is the dearth of workers: two statements must suffice:—

> I feel sure that we could open a school in every large village if we had the teachers and the means partly to support them. . . . Of the thirty-three villages asking for a teacher we have only been able to supply five. How long will the other twenty-eight have to wait?
> Alas! during the year of my absence from India, there being no one to take my place, the whole of the work among women and children in the thirty or forty villages with Christians or enrolled catechumens had to be left—not even a Biblewoman to visit them, except in three or four fortunate cases where the wife of the resident catechist was able to do a little.

The dearth of workers is, indeed, heartrending, and it would have been still greater but for the special support of mass movement work by friends in Lancashire and elsewhere, to which several missionaries bear grateful testimony.

The other stumbling-block is the nature of the teaching in the village schools. In times past it has been far from effective in raising the level of village life. Remedies have been pointed out by the Fraser Commission, sent out by the combined missionary societies of Britain and America. The report of the Commission has had a cordial reception at home, and ultimately must exercise a profound influence on the enrichment and development of the Indian peoples.

Centenary of C.M.S. work in Tinnevelly

The greatest event of the year in South India has been the celebration of the centenary of the C.M.S. work in Tinnevelly. "The occasion brought together the largest crowds that have ever gathered for a festival in our Church in India," and nearly 4000 partook in the Holy Communion service. The 100 years have seen the firm establishment of the Church in Tinnevelly, for the growth in self-support and self-government has kept step with the growth in numbers. At one of the meetings the Metropolitan of India encouraged Churchmen to go forward with the scheme for a united Church in South India.

An event of interest is the visit of Mr. J. M. Hickson on a mission of spiritual healing, which has been cordially supported by the bishops in India. The Rev. E. S. Tanner, of Ellore, writes: "It was a repetition of the scenes which our Lord must have witnessed. Easterns tramping in from their villages, carrying their bundles of food and children, the sick conveyed in every imaginable way, and then the crowds all anxious to be touched. I followed Mr. Hickson and gave the Church's blessing. It was most pathetic to see their faith. . . . On the last day we reckoned that we laid hands on 6000. Many received help and healing."

China

Last year a picture was drawn of deep political unrest in China, a cleavage between North and South, settled life rendered impossible by the conflict between government and revolutionary troops and the presence all over the country of armed bandits. The situation has not materially changed. Mention was also made of resentment against the Japanese. This has deepened during the past twelve months, and with it has come a strengthening of the spirit of national consciousness. The judgment of a missionary who is in the thick of it is heartening: "All this upset, to me represents not the signs of death but of a thinking, struggling life."

In such a state of affairs the thoughtful student would expect to see increased vitality in the religious life of the nation, and there are many indications of this. In no C.M.S. sphere has there been a great influx of men into the Christian Church, but the Church has had its converts and gained in power. In Yunnan City a Christian foreman made such an impression on the manager of a large iron-foundry that the missionary was asked to hold a service in the works every Sunday, and an hour off work was given to the men to attend. This one instance symbolizes the attention the Church is drawing to itself all over China.

Evangelistic spirit of Chinese Christians

The greatest hope lies in the new evangelistic spirit evinced among the Chinese Christians themselves. The "China for Christ" movement is one sign of this. Its aim is to vitalize the existing Christian force, to bring home to every Chinese Christian his responsibility for winning his countrymen for Christ. And already success is attending its efforts. A missionary in Chekiang says: "The workers have taken to the movement, and in some cases the ordinary church member is more of a 'live wire' than formerly. Men are realizing in some small way their individual and corporate responsibility." While another, writing from Fukien, says: "This movement will, I believe, prove a real blessing to every branch of the Church."

Another cause for hope is the growth in numbers of Christian women in the councils and work of the Church. They are now present in the synods of the Church and on the staff of Christian hospitals. "China is changing, and perhaps this is seen nowhere more than in its womanhood. If we can bring the girls and women out on the side of Christ there need be no fears about the future of China." So wrote a missionary who had undergone an operation. The anæsthetic had been administered by a Chinese woman doctor; and his nursing by two Chinese nurses had given him a new revelation of Chinese womanhood.

Phonetic script

Great things are expected from the introduction of the new phonetic script. There are thirty-nine symbols instead of the 45,000 characters of the Chinese classical writing, and ignorant country people can learn to read in a few weeks. This may well revolutionize missionary work. The increased reading of the Word of God cannot but strengthen the Church, and there are not wanting those who because of this new script are looking to the masses of farmers and artisans to contribute a new force in the Christianization of China.

Two great forces challenge the progress of Christianity—Buddhism and opium-smoking. New Buddhist temples are being erected all over the land, and in Chekiang one of the outstanding features of the year has been the number of temples repaired and rededicated. And opium-smoking, lamentably on the increase, is a real menace to the Church. Christians are tempted to traffic in the drug, and they themselves often contract the habit.

Since the Committee's last Review of the Year the Rev. C. R. Duppuy has been consecrated Bishop of Victoria (Hong Kong), and has received a hearty welcome in his diocese.

Japan

Japan seems destined to have increasing influence on the course of the world's history. Her power is out of all proportion to her population, for she dominates the Far East. Recently she has become the target for much hostile criticism for her dealings both with China and the Koreans. And rightly so. Those, however, who study her life with sympathy, fully appreciate her difficulties; there is no room for her virile and growing peoples within her own borders, and she has but little control over raw material.

Democracy

Another internal difficulty engaging the attention of the leaders of thought in Japan is the rise in the tide of democracy. It is no new fact, but the spirit is increasing in strength every day. It looks as if the days of military autocracy were numbered. How the movement is turning the country upside-down can be gauged from a quotation from a letter from one of the missionaries: "Strikes, once as rare as eclipses, are now so common that they excite no expression of surprise; they are part of our daily lives. Sabotage and the 'ca' canny' movement have their advocates and exponents in this country whose boast once was cheap labour and a contented people. The students in all schools, even those that are most under the officials of the Government, practically govern the school. . . .” If the one demon cast out is not to be replaced by other and worse demons, the people must be brought into vital contact with God.

That the desired reconstruction can only be achieved in the realm of the Spirit is being recognized by an increasing number of men all over Japan. Not for many years has the opportunity for the Church been so real and so great as it is to-day, and there are signs that the Church is waking to the fact. It is still the day of small things as far as the number of baptisms is concerned, but a real movement has begun. Speaking of the result of newspaper evangelism, a writer says :—

Newspaper evangelism

> Nearly 1200 applications for more information have been received from all over the country. Among the inquirers are to be found navy and army officers, schoolmasters, students, elementary schoolteachers by the dozen, Buddhist and Shinto priests, and even criminals. The great bulk, however, seem to be young countrymen. Nearly 160 have joined the New Life Society for further study, while over seventy of them are enrolled in the correspondence course. This is meant to give a brain knowledge of Christianity, sufficient to warrant baptism if there are evidences of the living faith. In addition several are now being prepared for baptism both in Hiroshima and Kure, while three have already been baptized.

A day of small things in the matter of numbers it may be, but in influence on the nation's life the Church counts for much. To quote a worker in the country : “ There is not a line of thought in Japan to-day, even within the sanctuaries of the Buddhist temples themselves, that has not been influenced by the teachings of the followers of the lowly One. . . . Men and women and children in all classes of Japan to-day are happier and better because of what Christianity has brought to them and to all that touches them.”

The attention which the Church is arresting at the present time is illustrated by the country's attitude to the outstanding event of the year—the holding in Tokyo of the World's Sunday-school Convention. Two thousand Japanese were present and 1000 foreigners, representing thirty-two nations. In the words of a missionary :—

World's Sunday-school Convention

> The reception accorded to this convention marks a new epoch in Christian work in Japan, the closing of one period and the opening of another. When the Emperor, Prince Tokugawa, head of the House of Peers, Mr. Hara, leader of the Diet, the Mayor of Tokyo, viscounts and barons, merchants and princes, Chambers of Commerce, the Educational Society, etc., all go out of their way to stretch out the right hand of fellowship to a Christian conference ; when the city of Tokyo—and Tokyo leads all Japan—showers the members, Japanese and foreign, with every favour it can bestow from tram passes to banquets—times have changed in Japan, and we do well to take heed to the change in her tone, as wise stewards of our Master.

C.M.S. supporters should ponder the following judgments of the same missionary. After describing the power of leading Christians in the national life come these words :—

Up to the present the Christian leaders in Japan, in Parliament, in law, writers, etc., have come entirely from the other Churches; there is an amazing dearth of such men in the Sei Kokwai. The reason is not far to seek. From the first the American missionaries insisted on higher educational institutions, while the English societies have been content with those of a lower grade. Consequently our finest students at the most impressionable age enter colleges of other Churches or government institutions. If we desire the C.M.S. to make a definite evangelical contribution to the country and to the Sei Kokwai, we must put our prayer and thought and labour into developing and further equipping our present schools in order to train leaders.

North-West Canada

The year under review has seen the final withdrawal of the Society from its Missions in North-West Canada and British Columbia. Thanks, under God, to the efforts of a succession of heroic missionaries—Cockran, Cowley, Horden, McDonald, Mackay, Bompas, Ridley, Collison, Peck, Lofthouse, to name only a few—the Gospel has been made known to the Red Indians and nearly all the Eskimo, and the work, having become mainly pastoral, has now fitly been handed over to the Canadian Church, with a parting gift of £25,000 to aid it in the discharge of its new responsibilities. The Society's Treasurer and Honorary Secretary visited Canada in connexion with the centenary of the Church in Western Canada.

The Home Base

While the Society looms less large in the mission fields than it did, it is destined also to live less to itself at the home base. There is a growing intimacy between the C.M.S. and other societies, due to the Conference of British Missionary Societies. The Committee cannot but rejoice, for living unto others and realizing itself as a unit of the great body will make the Society's contribution to the evangelization of the world greater rather than less. Knowledge is pooled, work at educational institutions shared, and through fellowship life is increased. As a proof of the value of this larger life mention might be made of the Commissions on Education sent out to India and West Africa, and of the Church's influence on the provisions of the Mandates, and on the regulation of native labour in East Africa.

Birmingham Congress

Of events of a more domestic character first place must be given to the Birmingham Congress, at which more than seventy "larger" associations were represented. The needs of the situation were laid bare, and in a spirit of faith the congress asked the Committee to keep no missionaries back, to increase allowances to native workers who had been badly underpaid, and to expect an income of £700,000. The fact that the response of the supporters of the Society has not come up to expectations in no way disheartens, for there is a steady increase from the associations, and the depression in trade partly accounts for the large drop in special benefactions. At the same time the heavy deficit makes it clear that the ideal relationships between such a congress and the General Committee have yet to be worked out.

During the year careful thought has been given to the reorganization of the associations with a view to devolving on them a greater share of responsibility. The change is timely, for the new parochial councils are bound to influence for good or ill the support given to missionary work. Much help is also expected from a broadening of the scope of the Gleaners' Union, which is now known as the Missionary Service League of the C.M.S. It has also been felt desirable to change the name of the "C.M.S. Gleaner," now the official magazine of the Society, to the "Church Missionary Outlook." The change will take effect in January, 1922.

One event rich with promise for the more effective work of the Society is the decision to resuscitate the advisory Education Committee, and to appoint an Education Secretary. Education is in a critical condition in most of the countries where the C.M.S. is at work, and an expert authority at home may render invaluable service, partly through gathering together and co-ordinating educational experience and rendering it available for all educational missionaries, and partly through keeping in touch with the student world and calling forth offers of service for the mission field.

The Rev. G. F. Saywell, Lecturer and Chaplain of Christ's College, Cambridge, has been appointed as a Secretary of the Society with a view to taking over the Far East group of Missions, and in accordance with Law XXI his name is hereby submitted for the approval of this Meeting. Mr. Saywell is now on a visit to China and Japan, gaining a first-hand knowledge of the work of the Missions.

Finance

The total general income for the year has amounted to £520,216, a sum which, while much less than the record figure of last year (£668,555, including the Thankoffering Fund), is £114,000 more than the ordinary income of two years ago. We thank God for what we believe will prove to have been a permanent advance.

Of the amount contributed during the year, and of the balances of the Appropriated Contributions of previous years, a total of £495,829 is available to meet the expenditure of the year, which has been £629,885. There is therefore a deficiency of £134,056 on the year's working. To this must be added £19,404, the medical deficit brought forward, making a gross deficiency of £153,460. Towards this there are available a surplus of £5871, from 1919-20, and £1754, the balance of amount reserved during the war, etc. The net deficiency therefore amounts to £145,835. The Committee have decided that, instead of making a special appeal to the country, they will endeavour to meet the whole of this amount by selling properties in the mission field. The properties sold will be such that their loss will involve as little detriment to the work and Missions as possible. Already a sum of £33,813 has been received, and other properties to the extent of £30,000 have been sold. The estimated expenditure for the year ending 31 March, 1922, has been reduced to £540,000, and it is hoped that at least this amount may be received in the course of the current year.

Candidates

Having purchased the leases of two houses in Stoke Newington for the purpose, the Society was enabled in January, 1921, to open St. Andrew's Hostel with a few students. The Rev. J. A. Wood, M.A., Fellow of the Punjab University, and late principal of the Edwardes College, Peshawar, was appointed warden.

During the year from 1 May, 1920, to 30 April, 1921, 560 inquiries and offers of service were received from 240 men and 320 women. Out of the offers received during this and former years, the cases of seventy-one men and 132 women were brought to the Candidates Committees, and finally of these twelve men and forty-five women were accepted for training, and forty men and forty-seven women for missionary service. Of the remainder many were formally refused by the Committee on the adverse report of the Medical Board. Besides these, three missionaries (one man and two women) were accepted by the Colonial Associations, and nine missionaries (four men and five women) in local connexion or on special agreement, independently of the Candidates Committees.

Conclusion

In conclusion, the Committee once more would express their confidence in ultimate victory: the Lord Christ shall reign. The gravity of the present situation, however—the power of the disruptive forces, the exaltation of the self-spirit alike in individuals and nations—compels us earnestly to note what can be done to shorten the days. The first step is clear. We must understand and locate the effective obstructive force. It is sin, and sin primarily within the Church. The Church is not kept in the wilderness through rates of exchange and the high cost of living; a Church instinct with the Spirit of Christ would be lord of circumstance. Neither is the Church kept back by the magnitude of the opposing forces, for He that is with us is greater than he that is against us. The enemy is within, and at the very heart of the Church. Sin is responsible for the disunion in the Christian ranks; it damps the evangelistic ardour and saps the energy of church members; it dims the vision of the exceeding greatness of the power of God. When there comes a glimpse of the way in which the Holy Spirit has used this body of men and women—so divided, so self-centred—in turning the world upside down, in purifying and sweetening life, in casting down the strongholds of Satan and building up the citadel of God, a great hope dawns. If in the days immediately before us the followers of the Lord Christ shall, through penitence and faith, reflect the purity, the power, the peace, the tender love, the essential unity of Christ, then the consummation of the Christian hope will be at hand—the vision will not tarry, it will surely come.

Introduction

THE Lambeth Conference of bishops in 1920 occupied itself with problems of the mission field more than any of its predecessors, and gave a fresh impulse to the missionary work of the Church in several directions. The foremost question was that of reunion, which for years has been pressed by demands from various parts of the mission field. The Church Missionary Society is particularly interested in the negotiations connected with the Kikuyu Conference in East Africa, and between the United Church of South India, the Anglican Church, and the Reformed Syrian Church in South India. The proposals of the Lambeth Conference for a basis of mutual recognition have not produced immediate practical results, but the idea of a Church united to solve all the great problems of the mission field and to build up one body of Christ in many lands has been brought into clearer light and found more widespread recognition than before, while the atmosphere of brotherly esteem in which alone these problems can effectually be worked out has been greatly promoted. The Lambeth Conference also emphasized the importance of eventually transferring the work of a mission to the Church of a country —a policy long followed by the C.M.S. and notably forwarded at the centenary celebration of the Mission in Tinnevelly, where the work of the Anglican Church as a whole is being unified and the immovable property of the C.M.S. has been made over to a diocesan body for the use of the Indian Church. The Lambeth Conference also, while endorsing the Government's attitude of neutrality as between different religions, vindicated the right of subject races to seek, as a result of accepting Christian ideals, for social and material uplift, and condemned discrimination against the Christian evangelist on mere grounds of political expediency, more especially in the border regions of paganism and Islam. The bishops also expressed cordial acknowledgment of the valuable work done by interdenominational missionary conferences, both in Britain and America, not only in safeguarding missionary interests when imperilled by Governments, but also in fostering international understanding and goodwill and in co-ordinating work.

The Lambeth Conference

The spread of the Gospel continues to be characterized in C.M.S. Missions as in those of other bodies by mass movements and by the penetration of Christian ideals through higher education, preaching, and literature among the educated classes. It will be seen from the subsequent section on literature how greatly the last named form of work has suffered from the depletion of forces in the field, although the spread of education is everywhere enhancing the demand for books to feed the mental hunger that has been created, while the adoption of a phonetic script for China opens up incalculable possibilities. It is a matter for thankfulness that at any rate the work of the Bible Society in spreading the supreme literature of the Church is growing by leaps and bounds in non-Christian lands.

The value of Christian literature

Problems

Among subsidiary ways in which modern life is influencing missionary work may be noted the demand on all hands by missionaries, in view of the great multiplication of Christian congregations, for more rapid transport. The old methods of slow-moving itineration are becoming impossible through the costliness of labour, and motor transport is a growing necessity in missionary equipment. The problem of meeting the needs of education among rapidly growing communities was investigated by the Village Education Commission for India during the winter of 1919–20, and by the Phelps-Stokes Education Commission from America in Western Africa.

Africa

Africa is equal in area to Europe and North America combined, and comprises nearly 12,000,000 square miles. Its population is estimated at 180,000,000; about 35,981,000 people live in the British spheres, which cover an area of 2,233,478 square miles. In territories for which Britain holds a mandate the population is 8,312,000, and in the South-West Africa Protectorate, for which the Union of South Africa holds a mandate, the population is 254,000. There are said to be 843 languages and dialects spoken in Africa, 500 of which have never been reduced to writing.

One-sixth of the non-Christian population of the world lives in Africa, the great pagan continent. In East Africa there are few idols, and the religions chiefly consist in the use of charms and rites to keep off evil spirits. Mohammedanism is dominant in North and North-Central Africa; and farther south, especially on the west coast, it is spreading rapidly.

In connexion with the various Protestant missionary societies at work in Africa, there are some 2450 men and 2040 women missionaries. The number of adherents of the Protestant Missions is estimated at about 2,000,000.

Difference and likeness between East and West Africa

THE territory covered by the C.M.S. Missions in East and West Africa presents great similarity of conditions with characteristic differences. In West Africa the prosperity of the population is greater, owing to the wealth introduced by commerce, and in some cases wealthy Africans employ European subordinates. The Emirates of the Northern Provinces of Nigeria give a political importance to Islam which it does not possess in Kenya or Tanganyika, and the problems created in East Africa by the immigration of Indians and of white colonists for the uplands are comparatively absent in the west. In both territories the aspirations for self-government and responsibility are on the increase, but they are much more developed in West Africa. On both sides of the continent large movements are going on towards Christianity, in which, very often, the tribal chiefs take part, these mass movements being thus different from those of India which cover only the lowest section of the community. On both sides, the development of educational policy by the State is proceeding apace. Educational codes are being drawn up; industrial and technical training is receiving a prominent place, missionaries have their share in the governing bodies, and to their schools the Governments largely look for the prosecution of the work. Difficulties caused by the issue of paper money down to very small amounts seem to be felt chiefly in the west, where the deterioration in value of currency notes, owing to the unwillingness of the villager to accept them, has been the occasion of speculation and great variation in prices. Both in east and west the question of transport, vital as it is to the progress of the country as a whole, is pressing upon missionary operations. Where a single missionary, in the present paucity of staff, has to superintend, it may be, hundreds of congregations, it is impossible for him to do the work adequately without the aid of motor transport, either bicycle or car. Regarding the position of Islam, the reports are very varying. This is partly explained by the difference between the spread of the faith through propaganda and through migration. In Sierra Leone, for instance, where the spread is said to be very rapid, it seems to be due largely to immigration. In the neighbourhood of Lagos and in Mombasa, where we find instances of retrogression, this seems to be due to religious slackness, but propaganda is in evidence.

Sexual morality

In the moral life of the Christian community, in East and West Africa equally, the questions of polygamy and the purity of the marriage relation stand in the foreground. The difficulty of social estimation is great, as in Nigeria where, for a man of standing, paucity of wives is considered to be equivalent to impoverishment and descent in the social scale. Another great difficulty with regard to the marriage relationship is the scarcity of Christian girls in many areas, owing largely to the lack of women missionaries, with the result that the number of Christian marriages in the new communities by no means corresponds to the normal rate. This difficulty is felt elsewhere in Africa, so much so that at the Lambeth Conference certain concessions were recommended in respect of unions between Christians and non-Christians or catechumens, pending the establishment of normal proportions of womanhood in the Christian community.

English ministrations

In Africa, perhaps more than other mission fields, the ministry of the missionary to white men, otherwise without spiritual help, is very widespread. It forms an important element in the spiritual life of the Church as a whole, and it is helped by the work of the bookshops (specially in West Africa), which enables the white trader or official or settler to get good literature of a general as well as of a religious kind. Among the minor results of an ordered Government, we find on both sides of the continent opportunities given to missionaries for ministrations to prisoners, so that in more than one instance the missionary is practically chaplain of the jail and acts both as pastor and evangelist. While, owing to stress of circumstances, comparatively little has of late been done by missionaries in the way of literature, there are signs that Africans are taking a more independent place in this respect than hitherto. The degree of D.D. conferred upon Archdeacon Dandeson Crowther was for translational work in Union Ibo, and gospels recently published by the Bible Society in Croo and Popo were each the work of an African, in the latter case a C.M.S. missionary.

SIERRA LEONE MISSION

PAST HISTORY

Africa was the earliest field entered by the C.M.S. Its first two missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the colony of Sierra Leone, which, after the abolition of the slave trade in 1807, had become the depot for negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B.

Johnson and other missionaries, but at a great cost of life; fifty-three missionaries and missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. The work was afterwards extended to the Bullom and Mendi countries, and, later, among the Temnes, Yalunkas, and Limbahs.

In 1861 the Sierra Leone Native Church was organized on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches, and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society, which ceased in 1890. In 1876 the native Church took over the outlying missions in the Bullom and Mendi countries, and in 1908 it assumed responsibility for the remainder of the C.M.S. work in the interior, with the aid of some financial help from the Society.

The bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded in 1852. Dr. Walmsley, who was consecrated in 1910, is the present bishop.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Society's work in the Mission, as distinct from that carried on by the native Church, is now confined to Freetown, the capital of the colony and protectorate of Sierra Leone, where it has Fourah Bay College (affiliated to Durham University, and worked in co-operation with the Wesleyan Missionary Society), a grammar school for boys, and the Annie Walsh Memorial School for girls, at which a normal class is held. The C.M.S. staff consists of 2 foreign and 6 African clergymen, 1 layman, 1 missionary's wife and 3 single women, besides 30 African Christian lay agents. There are 36 clergymen and 234 lay agents connected with the Sierra Leone Native Church.

THE C.M.S. work in Sierra Leone is summed up in that of the educational institutions. Fourah Bay College was carried on as before, in co-operation with the Wesleyan Mission, and Mr. J. Denton reports that the students sent by it, if not matriculates, "have brought a freshness of outlook and a degree of moral earnestness that have already won for them an assured place in the esteem and affection of us all." Thirteen out of fourteen candidates for the Durham finals in arts and theology were successful in December last. The fact that college fees have been raised twenty per cent without a murmur from the community is an indication of its prosperity. Mr. Peter Thomas, of Lagos, an African business man, "besides providing three years ago the funds for Wesleyan students, has now made similar provision for one Anglican student, and is also privately financing three others throughout their college career." Students have their weaknesses, but are making progress, "the raw, self-asserting, self-defending freshman developing into the quiet, restrained, self-controlled senior, in whose hands may safely be placed a large measure of responsibility for the good of others." Mr. Denton retired from the principalship of the college at the end of 1920, and the Rev. F. B. Heiser has been appointed in his stead.

Fourah Bay College

Numbers at the Grammar School rose from 130 to 160. Nineteen boys were confirmed in May; five of seven passed the civil service examination in August.

Grammar school

The Annie Walsh Memorial School had the names of 227 girls on the roll, with a considerable waiting list. There is only one unbaptized girl in the school; but while English-speaking Creoles are religious in sentiment, they are deficient in Christian character. It is hopeful that practically all the girls belong to the Scripture

Girls' school

Union, members of which gather to hear the daily portions read. There has been great difficulty owing to food shortage, involving a rise of cost to four times the earlier price. The day pupils pay from £4 to £8 a year in fees.

YORUBA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

A large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at Sierra Leone at the beginning of the nineteenth century had been carried away from the Yoruba Country, which lies a thousand miles along the Guinea coast to the east. About the year 1840 many of them, having by that time become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was an invitation to the missionaries to go thither, and the establishment of stations at Badagry, 1845, and Lagos, 1852, on the coast; and at Abeokuta, 1846; Ibadan, 1853; Oyo, 1858 (reoccupied 1881); Ode Ondo, 1886; and other towns and villages in the interior. More recently, Oshogbo, 1900; Owo, 1908; Offa, 1910; Ado Ewi (in the Ekiti Country), 1911; Eme (in the Ora Country), 1915; and Ilorin (in the Northern Provinces), 1917, have been occupied.

Samuel Crowther was consecrated Bishop of the Niger Territories in 1864. In June, 1893, the Rev. J. S. Hill succeeded him, receiving the title of "Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa." Two experienced African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, were consecrated as his assistant bishops at the same time. Bishop Hill died in January, 1894, and the Rev. H. Tugwell was consecrated in the following March. In 1900 the Rev. James Johnson, a third African assistant bishop, was consecrated. Bishop Phillips died in 1906 and Bishop Johnson in 1917. In 1919 the diocese was divided, and Archdeacon F. Melville Jones was consecrated Bishop of Lagos. His jurisdiction extends over the whole of Nigeria, with the exception of that portion which is bounded on the west by the sixth meridian of longitude as far north as latitude 6° 30′ and then by the course of the Niger to Lokoja, and on the north by the Binue.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The pastoral work in the Yoruba Country is almost entirely entrusted to African clergymen. At the three oldest stations—Lagos on the coast and Abeokuta and Ibadan in the interior—district councils have been formed, and the clergy are appointed by local authorities and maintained independently of the C.M.S. These councils, moreover, are responsible to the diocesan synod for the evangelistic work in their districts, while the Lagos council has missionary work, largely self-supporting, in the Ijebu Country. At the other centres—Ilesa, Oshogbo, Oyo, Ilorin, Akure, Ado Ewi, Ode Ondo, Owo, Eme, together with Benin City, Warri, and Sapelle, in the Niger Delta—evangelistic work is mainly superintended by foreign missionaries, but provisional church councils are responsible for the support of the African clergymen and other agents in their districts and are gradually preparing the way for self-government.

All the educational work, with the exception of grammar schools at Abeokuta, Ibadan, and Ijebu Ode, a girls' high school at Ijebu Ode, and some elementary schools, which are under the district councils, is administered and largely maintained by the C.M.S. The chief institutions are a training college for clergymen and schoolmasters at Oyo, a boys' grammar school and a girls' seminary at Lagos, and a girls' school at Ibadan; the grammar school and the seminary are entirely self-supporting. In this connexion may be mentioned also the bookshop at Lagos, with its branches at Abeokuta, Ibadan, Ijebu Ode, and elsewhere.

Besides Bishops Melville Jones and Oluwole, the Society has 9 foreign and 24 African clergymen, 6 foreign laymen, 8 missionaries' wives, 10 other women missionaries, and 284 African Christian lay agents at work in the Yoruba Country. There are also 43 African clergymen and 444 African Christian lay agents in connexion with the Lagos, Abeokuta, and Ibadan district councils and the Nigerian Pastorate Association.

Lagos.

THE situation in the Yoruba Mission is illustrated by the fact that articles on the subject of polygamy in the monthly magazine issued by the Lagos bookshop, with a circulation of about 1800, "provoked replies in the organ of the local polygamous church magazine and a Moslem newspaper." The modern educated Moslem is fond of saying that polygamy is in reality discredited by the Koran; as a matter of fact it is defended not only by Africans at Lagos, but also by Indian propagandists in London. The other side of things is shown by the following note of the Rev. C. W. F. Jebb:—

Moral and spiritual life

> As I went into church one Sunday morning, I saw on the reading-desk a little folded paper, which I read. It contained four requests briefly written in Yoruba, five lines only, but it conveyed much to me. It ran thus: "I ask you and the congregation to pray with me for these things: (a) that the Spirit of God may abide in me; (b) that God may give me wisdom and understanding; (c) that my heart may be in an attitude of prayer to God; (d) that God may give me power over the devil's temptations." There is a growing keenness for prayer and the study of God's Word. These are the essential things, and we praise God for letting us see some signs of growth in grace among many of our people.

A Christian convention was held at Lagos in July, in the Wesleyan church and schoolroom, at which Mr. C. W. Wakeman presided. The meetings were crowded and helpful both to spiritual life and also in bringing nearer reunion between Anglicans and Wesleyans.

Ordinations

Archdeacon A. W. Smith reports with thankfulness a record number of men taking the ordination examinations in 1920. Twelve men trained at Oyo passed the deacon's examination; five deacons took the priest's examination, one the second part, and four the first part only. Three quiet days were arranged for the candidates. At the ordination service at Abeokuta, on December 19, Bishop Oluwole admitted eleven of these men to deacon's orders, and five to priest's orders. The gospeller was an Ijebu, the third member of that tribe to be ordained.

Grammar school

The Lagos Grammar School celebrated its diamond jubilee in December, 1919. There were 400 on the roll, thirty-nine boarders, and sixty-nine in the kindergarten. As many as sixty Moslems had been on the roll, but it became necessary to reduce their numbers owing to the many applications from Christians. In the advance of civilization among the young there is much danger, yet much hope. The youth of the country have plenty of money, but do not know how to use it. They are ready, however, to join clubs and societies under good management. There is a Scripture Union branch in the school, with five divisions, four in English, one in Yoruba, and a weekly attendance of over 250. A collection is made every Friday for the support of a school mission at Ishaga. About £60 was collected during the year for the C.M.S., the Bible Society, etc. Occasional lapses of even the most promising boys gave cause for heart searching.

Girls' seminary

The Lagos Girls' Seminary celebrated its jubilee on May 5–7. The church was crowded out with past and present pupils and friends. Two hundred of the girls gave a jubilee gift amounting to £32. At a concert held the next day Sir Hugh Clifford "spoke some inspiring words to us, pointing out that Christian education was the hope of Nigeria." The effect of games has been good, both morally and spiritually. Esprit de corps is on the increase, and despite lapses, there are also signs of growth of character in individuals. The primary department had to refuse applications, but the secondary was not yet sufficiently valued by Christians. Money for the new building came in well: £1028 in response to the Bishop's appeal, £500 from the jubilee fund, £700 from European firms and African friends, and £1000 from government grants. The girls collected £45 for a teacher in an inland town, £4 for the Bible Society, and the same amount for "suffering children in Europe."

Training

At Oyo, there were ninety-six students in the college, besides ten in the divinity class. During the scarcity of food in the first half of the year, the students did everything in their power to help carry on. On Sundays they engaged in mission work among the villages as far distant as fifteen miles. Twenty-six second-year men were confirmed in November. In order to fill up the gap caused by closing the training institution at Oshogbo, a catechists' class has been begun at Oyo. In November, the college had a visit from the Phelps-Stokes Educational Commission, sent from the U.S.A. to West Africa. Much light was thrown on methods of meeting local needs, allowing for the difference in conditions of the negro population in America and Africa. The girls' school at Ibadan has an important work to do in combating superstitions surviving among the Christians. From Ibadan, Miss D. A. Nash and Miss E. F. Grimwood had the opportunity of visiting the king's wives at Oyoand giving them a reading lesson. In the lagoon villages near Lagos, visited by Miss Nash, she found the Christian congregations progressing in numbers and character, and a marked decline of Mohammedanism. From Akure, Miss C. C. Boyton writes :—

> The conditions of life are still primitive, and there is a good resident African pastor. The whole congregation goes out preaching monthly—men and women separately, in different bands in different parts of the town—and many of the women speak very well.

Miss Boyton conducted a class intended specially to train wives of Christian workers who will be scattered among the people, but the girls were more eager to learn English and the use of the sewing machine than African domestic ways. Drilling and games were helpful in training. Nine were in residence during the year.

Depression in trade, combined with difficulties caused by depreciation of paper money, affected the Lagos bookshop. The staff were able to carry on spiritual work out of hours. Mr. Wakeman found the faith of young African Christians disturbed by theosophy, unitarianism, free thought, and spiritualism. The monthly men's service has been useful in helping such. Bookshop

The Government leper compound at Yaba, five miles from Lagos, was visited by Mr. W. D. Thompson of the bookshop. The inmates arranged the order of service and hymns; he was responsible for the speaking only. They daily read the Scripture Union portions. The first baptisms since 1912 took place in November, 1919; in December two lepers were confirmed, one being a convert from Islam. One of the inmates is son of the C.M.S. pastor in Lokoja, and does much quiet work among the others. Leper work

The work at Ilorin, which though only 200 miles from Lagos is in the Northern Provinces, suffered from restrictions. The larger Christian communities on the railway line are ready to build churches, and contribute towards the support of their pastors, but their moral standard is low and their evangelistic spirit is small. In the Ado Ewi district the work grew, despite persecution. During the year, 725 catechumens were admitted, 617 adults baptized, and 555 confirmed. Among the converts were several Mohammedans. In one town Christian men were offered heathen chieftainships on condition of joining in pagan rites, but they refused to do so and were expelled. Some Christians chafed at opposition; others were patient. The example of a Christian preacher caring for small-pox patients who were shunned by the heathen, drew a convert to Christ. The contributions of the Churches amounted to £2739 in the year. The C.M.S. grant to the provisional church council has been entirely renounced and over £20 was collected for the Society. Ministrations to prisoners resulted in conversions, and the spread of the Gospel to their distant homes when released. The work of the schools led to the offer of fifteen young men for spiritual work. In the Akoko district many villages were patiently waiting for teachers. In one place thirty men "had a nice little church built, yet not one of them was a baptized Christian, though most, if not all, were able to answer their catechism questions well, and many were able to read." Seven hundred and eighty Scripture Union cards were sold during the year; the consecutive reading results in deeper reverence for God's house and a keener desire to know more of God's Word. It is said that the number of women among the converts is increasing, especially in Ado, and that a marked growth in their spiritual power can be traced." District work

NORTHERN NIGERIA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The first station to be occupied in the Northern Provinces was Lokoja (1865), whence the work has spread to other places in the immediate neighbourhood. In 1890 a party of missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Hausa States. The climate shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home. In 1900 Bishop Tugwell led a party to Kano, and though they were not permitted to stay in that town they did not leave the country. The Basa Country was occupied in 1897; Bida, 1903; Zaria, 1905; and Kuta, 1906. In 1907, the Cambridge University Missionary Party (as C.M.S. missionaries) began work at Panyam, in the Bauchi highlands, and in 1910 at Kabwir.

C.M.S. work in the Northern Provinces is under the episcopal supervision of the Bishop of Lagos.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Mission in the Northern Provinces, called the Northern Nigeria Mission, is among the Hausa people, who are practically entirely Mohammedan, at Zaria; the Nupé people, who are partly Mohammedan and partly pagan, at Lokoja; and Basa and Yoruba peoples, who are mainly pagan, at Lokoja and other stations around the confluence of the Niger and the Binue. Work has also been established at Panyam and Kabwir, in the Bauchi highlands, among the Sura and Angass tribes, who are entirely pagan.

Training classes for evangelists are carried on at Bida, Zaria, and Kabwir, and there is medical work at Zaria and Kabwir. The staff in the Northern Provinces is composed of 9 foreign and 4 African clergymen; 2 lay missionaries, of whom one is a doctor; 5 missionaries' wives; 3 other women missionaries; and 60 African Christian lay agents.

THE Society's work in the Northern Provinces is confined to the comparatively central section of the Nupé, Ilorin, Zaria, and Bauchi Provinces, the last-named being mainly pagan territory.

Ilorin Province

The impression received by a new-comer at Lokoja was that the old-established stations towards the coast were comparatively weak, those further inland more vigorous. The Rev. J. J. Williams, an African, helped to train ten evangelists, of whom six were posted during the year. He had difficulties at Kabba, owing to the intrigues of the native prime minister and judge, who brought accusations against the Christians. It has to be remembered that, in the Northern Provinces especially, home rule is prevalent and the internal administration of the chieftainships or emirates is in the hands of the African rulers and their subordinates. Forced labour for the British Cotton Growers' Association is a hindrance.

Nupé Province

At Kutigi, the Rev. C. H. Williams reports a successful night school and friendly reception of visits and of preaching on itineration, but indifference among the Moslem population. The same was experienced at Katcha, and the employment of Christian children by their parents to guard the crops, militated against Sunday ministrations. The Rev. N. C. Orr found his Nupé boys more ready to come and play net-ball than to attend lessons regularly. The work at Kataeregi progressed, but it was hampered by the political officer, who forbade the building of a church or school within a quarter of a mile of any house in the village; but notwithstanding this, the people showed zeal and generosity. The Rev. A. Beaghen reports strong Moslem influence in this district, and government prohibition against open propaganda, so that work has to be done by personal visiting. There are marriage difficulties owing to the fewness of Christian Nupé girls, and there is much need for sifting inquirers in view of the danger of reaction after their first enthusiasm for a change of religion. Many Moslems, even mallams (teachers), are convinced of the truth of the Gospel; one such mallam has practically discarded his Arabic Koran, and "though he still attends the mosque on Friday, takes with him in his big pocket a copy of the Epistles or Gospels in Nupé, and worships God in Christ."

Zaria Province

In the important Moslem city of Zaria the work was consolidated, and gave much cause for thankfulness. In April, the Bishop on his visit baptized fourteen converts and confirmed seventeen, several of both classes being children of converts, who showed signs of further advance in the Christian life than their parents. It has been possible to devolve a good deal of work, both evangelistic and pastoral, on the Africans. It was not desirable for a European to preach publicly in the market, but Dr. W. R. S. Miller was enabled to entrust this work to an African catechist, with a band of young Christians, whose quiet endurance of ridicule and threats changed the attitude of the Moslems, so that they listened quietly to Christian preaching by converts from their own faith. Six smaller bands, accompanied by schoolboys, visited the houses and spoke to similar gatherings. A church council has been set on foot, with a wealthy Christian as its chairman who was formerly a Moslem, and liberality is on the increase. The boarding school had twenty-six boys, reported to be good at lessons and games, and living in a real Christian atmosphere. The new resident is friendly, as is also the educational department; and the new native administration, greatly improved in personnel, is even more friendly. At the bookshop newly opened at Zaria, among the first sales were three Arabic Bibles, taken by Mohammedan readers.

Bauchi Province

At Panyam there was a time of reaction and sifting among the converts, partly owing to lack of efficient shepherding. The chief stumbling-block was polygamy, which is the measure of wealth among these people. There was encouragement among the children, of whom many appeared to be truly converted, and twenty were preparing for baptism. At Kerang, the chief and many of his followers became Christians. At Kabwir, the Christians themselves exercised discipline on those who went to heathen dances or practised witchcraft. There was a difficulty about mixed marriages. Through the help of a friendly district officer, difficulties as to starting work at Tolong were eventually settled, and the Governor-General listened sympathetically to a representation by the Rev. C. H. Wedgwood about hindrances to evangelism, and promised inquiry.

NIGER MISSION

PAST HISTORY

In 1841 a government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, a liberated negro slave, explored the River Niger. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, finding the natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Crowther accompanied a third expedition, undertaken for commercial purposes, and laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied, namely, Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; Awka, 1904; Ebu, 1906; Patani, 1907; the Igabo Country, 1912; Ogwashi, 1915. When the diocese of Western Equatorial Africa was subdivided in 1919, Bishop Tugwell retained the eastern portion, which kept the old name, and an African, the Rev. A. W. Howells, was consecrated in 1920 as his assistant. Bishop Tugwell resigned in 1920.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

On the lower reaches of the Niger the work is carried on by the Niger Delta Pastorate (which has its head-quarters at Bonny and is manned and financed by Africans), save at Patani, and in the Igabo Country, where it is under the C.M.S. Niger Mission, and at Benin City, Warri, and Sapelle, which are linked with the Yoruba Mission. Higher up the river there are a number of stations and out-stations, the chief being Onitsha, Awka, and Ebu, on the east of the Niger, and Asaba and Ani Ofu, on the west. At these places the pastoral and evangelistic work is largely in the hands of provisional church councils.

There are a training college for men at Awka, a training school for girls at Umudioka, and young women's homes at Ani Ofu and Emii; a number of elementary schools are also carried on. Medical work is maintained at Iyi Enu.

The foreign clergymen in the Niger Mission number 8; lay missionaries 4; missionaries' wives 7; other women missionaries 12 (2 nurses); and there are 26 African clergymen, of whom 12 work under the Niger Delta Pastorate. The African Christian lay agents in the Niger Mission number 588, those in connexion with the Delta Pastorate 58.

A new African bishop

THE consecration of the Rev. A. W. Howells in London as assistant bishop for the diocese of Western Equatorial Africa was an occasion of great rejoicing for the Church in Nigeria. An African judge from Liberia, describing the scene at St. Paul's Cathedral, was struck by the fact that there was no segregation at the services, but complete sympathy between the races and good-will on the part of English Christians. The work of the Niger Delta Pastorate has been financially prosperous and bids fair to be still more so, but moral conditions among the scattered Christian congregations in the Niger Delta cause great searchings of heart. The problem of the efficient shepherding of these people is not yet fully solved. C.M.S. work in this diocese is carried on in the provinces of Onitsha, Benin, Owerri, and Warri.

Onitsha Province

From the town of Onitsha, Mr. J. N. Cheetham, superintendent of the bookshop, writes of "six years' continuous service, the record for a Protestant missionary, though many Roman Catholic priests survive fifteen or sixteen years." There was a great advance in sales at the bookshop, and attendance at Emmanuel Church by women, girls, and old men was more regular than before. Self-support is advancing. During 1919 the people contributed about £10,000, besides manual labour, paying for their pastors, teachers, schools, and buildings, and laying by a sustentation fund. Great difficulties arise from the flooding in of European civilization, and the chief need of the Church's life is deepening rather than extension. Mr. H. H. Daws, an assistant at the bookshop, found that prisoners at the jail enjoyed services and joined heartily in singing, and there were instances of change of life among them. Owing to trade depression the takings of the bookshop much decreased in the second half of the year.

District work

The Rev. G. T. Basden, before leaving on furlough, had to visit on foot and motor cycle ninety stations for baptisms and other ministrations. In one district hitherto unworked, and inhabited by a warlike people whom the Government had never been able to subjugate, he found a new movement towards Christianity, and by the close of the year six stations had been opened, all being self-supporting, and over 1000 persons were attending school. If workers were available new work might be opened week by week among the 4,000,000 people of the Ibo tribe, but Mr. Basden had to refuse the offer of the senior Resident to allow the occupation of large sections of hitherto unworked country. Mr. Basden is much concerned about the multitude of catechumens and their preparation for baptism. They numbered 5000, but save for one class of junior evangelists at Obusi, no training work is now going on to provide teachers for them. Several of the most promising young men are leaving because of insufficient allowances, others are yielding to the propaganda of the so-called African Church or joining Roman Catholic missions.

Women's work

At Nnewi the need of work among the adult women was very great, and itineration was hampered by the difficulty of finding carriers, but women's district conferences proved very useful. At the girls' training school at Umudioka, the pupils collected £15 for the support of their own missionary. Besides the ordinary students there are a number of girls who are candidates for baptism or the catechumenate, with a view to marriage to Christians, and for these short courses in Christian knowledge are provided. At Awka, Miss L. Harris, in answer to urgent appeals from the church council, began itineration work among the varied congregations, and examined many candidates for the catechumenate and for baptism. From the same station the Rev. H. Taylor reports the baptism of over 250 persons and preaching to more than a hundred prisoners in the Awka jail. A Sunday afternoon class was attended by schoolmasters, but scarcely at all by clerks, the influence of whose white employers is apparently unfavourable.

Prisoners and clerks

Owerri Province

Mr. W. A. Todd, of Ebu, in April, 1920, visited Port Harcourt in order to erect a bookshop and dwelling house. This centre is rapidly attracting population, and many Christians from the interior are going there. About 360 attend the C.M.S. church, and the same number the Delta Pastorate church, but school attendance is poor, as boys can easily get well-paid work. The church council expenditure at Ebu for the year was about £3000; the harvest offering in December amounted to nearly £1000. This year's budget works out at about 6*s*. per head of adherents. The work in the district is growing without direct evangelization, for which there is neither time nor strength. Villagers bring in and deposit money in order to secure a teacher as soon as available. Christian marriages are on the increase, and also the custom of blessing previous pagan marriages in church, thus giving them the status of Christian unions. In memory of the late Archdeacon T. J. Dennis, a local training school for evangelists has been established, at a cost of £200, and an African catechist, formerly a schoolmaster, has been selected as principal. The West Indian school inspector diligently visited 170 schools in his district; of two African pastors, one has seventy-six, the other fifty churches to visit. At Nkwesi, the Rev. J. C. R. Wilson examined over eighty persons who had been baptized by an officer "of Christ's Army" at 1*s*. per head, but now wished to join the Church. Only six came up to the baptismal standard of knowledge; many knew nothing of Christianity except their own name.

Warri Province

Around Patani, a bad district for criminal disorders, the people were genuinely eager to be taught, but they were discouraged by the fewness of visits and lack of teachers, and did not show much self-sacrifice in providing their stipends. Several congregations turned to the Roman Catholics, but this did not prevent them from being friendly when visited. More are coming forward from among the Igabos than from the Ijaws. The Rev. J. D. Aitken writes of the difficulty of training teachers, who afterwards go off to more highly paid work. The standard of morality among catechumens and Christians is rising, many polygamists have put away their extra wives and been married under the Marriage Ordinance.[1] In the past Christian girls betrothed to heathen or polygamists could be forced by pressure of law to complete such marriages at the age of maturity, but after sundry appeals it has been decided that they may be released on payment of compensation. The class fees for Christian instruction are paid twice a year: sometimes as much as £60 a week is taken.

[1] The marriage ordinance renders bigamy a criminal offence, whatever the nature of the second marriage may be. That is to say, if a man marries a woman in accordance with the terms of the ordinance and subsequently marries another woman according to native law, he is guilty of bigamy.

About twenty C.M.S. rest houses in the district facilitate travelling. Some of the district churches are attended by over 1000 people daily, and there are 200 or 300 at school in the afternoon. At night they sit in their compounds and repeat the catechism to one another.

KENYA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, where two years later he was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened a station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast for twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all the subsequent geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the efforts of the C.M.S. that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of a C.M.S. asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from among the freed slaves who had been under his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed, and led to work for their living. In the Taita Country stations were opened at Mbale in 1900 and Wusi in 1905; at Vitengeni, in the Giriama Country, in 1912; at Kabete and Nairobi, in the Ukamba Province, in 1900 and 1906 respectively; and at Weithaga (1903), Kahuhia (1906), Kabare and Embu (1910), Muitira (1912), and Kathukeni (1913), in the Kenya Province.

In 1884 the diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was formed, for which the Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated in that year. In 1897 the diocese was divided into the dioceses of Uganda and Mombasa. The latter diocese embraces the whole of Kenya Colony, and in Tanganyika extends to long. 38° E. and lat. 8° S. The Right Rev. R. S. Heywood, formerly a C.M.S. missionary in Western India, is the present Bishop of Mombasa.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Society's work in Kenya Colony has developed considerably since the formation of the diocese of Mombasa.

(a) The stations by the coast—Mombasa, Frere Town, and Rabai—are of long standing. There are a divinity class, a boys' hostel, and a medical mission at Frere Town; and a normal class and the Buxton High School for boys at Mombasa. Much care and thought are expended on the pastoral care of the converts, many of whom are liberated slaves or the children of such.

(b) Proceeding inland about a hundred miles there are found stations at Mbale and Wusi in the Taita Country. Other stations have been opened farther from the coast at Nairobi, the capital of British East Africa, and elsewhere in the Ukamba Province, and at Weithaga, Kahuhia, and other places around Mount Kenya.

(c) A third group of stations is in Kavirondo, north-east of Lake Victoria, on the border of Uganda, at Butere, Maseno, and Kisumu.

In the Kenya Mission there are 26 foreign and 8 African clergymen, 3 foreign and 465 African Christian laymen, 25 wives of missionaries, and 17 foreign and 15 African women workers. One of the above is a doctor and one a nurse.

Compulsory labour

THE most prominent question before the Kenya Mission during the year under review was that of compulsory labour. The settlement of more than 1000 colonists, mainly ex-service men, on the healthy upland plateaux of the Ukamba Province, in which the capital, Nairobi, is situated, has caused a demand for cheap labour to develop the new estates that are being laid out. On the other hand the ravages of war and famine have reduced the native population, and have not increased the desire of that which remains to do more than is actually necessary to support life and acquire a few luxuries. The Government endeavoured to meet the resultant dearth of labour by instructions to the district officers to the effect that chiefs and headmen should encourage the people to offer their services for labour on estates, and that periodical reports should be made as to the results of such encouragement. Not only missionaries, but others felt that "moral pressure" of this kind must inevitably result in oppression and intrigue, and the order was strongly criticized. At the same time it is evident that in a country at the stage reached by Kenya Colony there are public utilities, such as those of road-making and porterage for government officials, for which it is by no means easy to provide without resort to compulsion, either in the form of taxation, which is difficult to organize, or in the form of labour. In itself, therefore, a levy of labour for public purposes seems legitimate, but the letters of the missionaries show that it is attended with very grave dangers. Old men and girls have been put on road work away from home for ten or twelve days at a time, the girls being unprotected. The district commissioners endeavour to remedy this, but the administration is understaffed and the execution of orders is in the hands of native chiefs who, in many cases, have no hereditary status. Pressure regarding labour and taxation brought down the attendance of the schools at Weithaga from 320 to 90. Christian girls have been exempted from labour which involves sleeping away from their homes at night, and the missionaries are trying to get similar exemption for pagan girls. Africans who fall sick during forced labour are in a bad way, as their companions are not permitted to leave work to attend to them. Archdeacon W. E. Owen is of opinion that compulsory, unpaid labour should be altogether abolished, even for government purposes. In this and in other matters he has worked hard to present the claims of the native population in the press, not without some results.

Groups of stations

The native reserves in the western portion of the Nyanza Province were transferred in 1920 from the diocese of Uganda to that of Mombasa, and the C.M.S. work in them became a part of the Kenya Mission. The Society works also in the provinces of Seyidie on the coast; Ukamba, north-westwards; and Kenya, around the mountain of that name.

Seyidie Province

In the Seyidie Province, there were favourable openings among the Mohammedan population, both in town and country. The

Islam in Mombasa

Rev. E. W. Crawford writes from Mombasa: "Mohammedanism has lost much of its aggressiveness, most of the young Mohammedans seldom come near their mosques and their religion seems to have but little control over them." Miss R. M. Wyatt says :—

> Any day that I go into the native Mohammedan quarter I can get respectful and attentive hearing from the crowd. . . . I feel sure a gifted and consecrated man would be greatly blessed among young Arabs and Swahilis. I really believe that they are seeking after Him Whom they ignorantly worship, and are quite willing now to listen about the only way of approach to Him.

Many up-country women, especially Wakavirondo, are going to Mombasa with Christian husbands, mostly soldiers. They are keen to be baptized, but very ignorant, and resent prolongation of instruction. Miss Wyatt asks prayer for them.

Schools

The Buxton High School, at Mombasa, has an entirely Christian staff and 120 paying scholars, both Indian and African. Over 700 former pupils of the school are scattered over the country, and its old boys show the effects of Christian teaching in their lives. The night school at Mombasa is "full to overflowing with close on 200 young men," all paying fees to be taught after their day's work. The Rev. G. W. Wright writes of his work at Nairobi and Mombasa : "The entire tone of the colony has been set to a different spiritual key because of the existence of the widespread work of the C.M.S. when settlers first came to the country." Here and in four other stations English services were taken by missionaries. Mr. Wright speaks of the "hearty services of to-day with English-speaking Indian, Seychelles, and Mauritius people, side by side with their white brothers."

Influence on English

Frere Town

The Rev. H. K. Binns says that in Frere Town, freed slaves, the first of whom were brought in 1876, have practically died out, owing in part to "drink and other kinds of evil living." The descendants of the freed slaves and of those brought from Nasik are few in number and mostly do not live on mission land, their parents having settled on plots outside which they secured from the Swahilis. Unfortunately they are much mixed up with Mohammedans, both religiously and on the shadier side of social life. There are cases of Christian women lapsing to Islam for the sake of marriage. The congregation numbers about 400, with an average of seventy-five communicants on a Sunday. There are some ninety children in the schools, mainly in the infant classes under an African woman teacher. The lads leave school early, on account of the demand for workers, and easily find situations, even though poorly educated ; girls too, soon go off for home work. A number of people from Kavirondo and Kikuyu are employed in the neighbouring plantations, and evangelistic and pastoral work is carried on among them. Miss M. L. Mason reports from Kaloleni that she notices a great change in the Giriama Country after seventeen years' work. Almost everywhere people are wanting to be taught, and if no C.M.S. agent is available, they try to teach one another. The teaching of English in village schools is a difficult problem owing to the demand for it for all examinations from those for pupil teachers upwards, combined with the expense of providing instruction. A solution has been to teach it only to selected pupils and pupil teachers. The moral fall of a valuable teacher was a great sorrow.

Round about Mbale, some of the Christians lapsed into drunken habits and a crusade against intemperance was carried on. A teacher, trained at the Mombasa normal school, was put in charge of the school at Mbale, where his own father is a subordinate teacher. In the Taveta district most of the land has been acquired for development purposes by a British syndicate; "enough has been left to the tribe for agricultural and pastoral purposes. . . . The present manager of the syndicate is pro-native and very sympathetic towards missionary work."

Ukamba Province

The greater part of the work in the Ukamba Province is in and about Nairobi and Kikuyu. Canon K. St. A. Rogers was English chaplain to two Nairobi churches for seven months. The services for Africans, both in the church and in the large school, were crowded out twice every Sunday. Owing to insufficient instruction and lack of Christian tradition the people are backward in reverence of behaviour and orderliness. The attendance on Sunday morning is something like 2000, and the classes for baptism are really small congregations. Conditions of admission to the catechumenate and baptism are being made more stringent; one is "that every candidate must be able intelligently to read his New Testament." Canon G. Burns gives most of his time to the training of catechumens. In the schools from 600 to 700 pupils pay monthly fees, a good proportion of them being evening scholars, who are taught by voluntary helpers under the superintendence of a paid teacher. Sympathetic European friends are helping the advanced boys in their study of English, on which they are keen. There is a well-attended school at the police depot and some of the recruits attend baptismal classes. Another school is held among the King's African Rifles. Evangelistic services appear to be less frequent. Canon Burns writes of an attendance of about a hundred on Sunday evenings and of some opposition and annoyance. The housing conditions in Nairobi are disgraceful and there is a great need of a hostel for Christian scholars as well as a large hall to seat up to 3000 for Sunday work. The conditions and aspirations of the people are rapidly changing, and they are no longer willing to be kept in a state of servitude, as some white men still desire. Work among the women is helping to raise the standard of Christian life but the mixture of languages is a great difficulty. "Up-country" Africans have very little knowledge of Swahili. Fifteen women recently baptized came from six different tribes. The constant fluctuation of population through the movements of soldiers, police, and labourers is a great difficulty. Many Christians, catechumens, and inquirers from Kavirondo and other parts are going to-and from Nairobi. The work in the native police-training depot is described as "large but not yet satisfactory."

Kenya Province

The first Kikuyu deacon, Paolo Mbatia, was ordained at Weithaga in 1920. There were 163 adult baptisms and 196 candidates were confirmed in that district, and about 1000 people were under preparation for baptism, with 1600 boys and girls in school. From Muitira, the Rev. H. J. E. Butcher did the work of English chaplain at Nyeri; there and at other centres chaplains have recently been appointed. His visitation tours have extended to 2500 miles, and without a motor cycle would have been quite impossible. During the absence of European supervision, teachers in some out-stations suffered persecution and the number of adherents went down, but a self-reliant spirit was developed. In four places a new school was built by the chief with the help of Christian adherents who worked hard for a nominal wage. Mr. Butcher was encouraged by an attendance of thirty or more at a weekly class for old men, several of whom were members of the council of elders. These men are the chief bulwarks of superstition and heathenism. Their interest in the discourses at church was evinced by audible criticism of the teaching. In February, 1921, seven young men were baptized, being the first converts at Muitira, but there also the brightest scholars are constantly going off to Nairobi and elsewhere, attracted by higher wages.

Nyanza Province

At Butere there are usually seventy-five admissions to the catechumenate each quarter. Some difficulty was caused by friction between the Bantu and Nilotic tribes on the border of this territory; this was reflected in the Christian Church which has converts from both, and had to be dealt with in church council sessions. Something of industrial unrest reached the Bantus of these parts, and there were occasional difficulties with workmen. Christian marriages are said to be more numerous than is usual in the new communities, but there are considerable difficulties in the way of finding Christian partners for the young men, owing partly to the fewness of baptized girls and partly to collision between the old marriage customs and the new. When Archdeacon Owen was transferred to this place in May, the change involved his learning a seventh African language. While he was still at Butere, a violent outbreak of plague occurred in April, and during three months and a half he inoculated over 11,000 persons; for this he received the thanks of Government. At Maseno inquirers and candidates for baptism are pressing in.

Education

Educational developments in the colony are important. A new code of education is being considered by the Legislative Council. The Rev. J. Britton is a member of the Board of Education, which contains three missionaries and two English chaplains, and recognizes mission schools as part of the educational machinery of the colony. Financial arrangements are liberal, technical training is insisted on in central schools, and the Government is willing to estimate for several grants of £600 each to mission stations at other centres also. Mr. Britton urges that there is a great opportunity before the Society to mould the life of the colony. The normal and technical school at Maseno was completely crowded out. There were twenty pupils in the telegraph class of the school. The Luo boys are slow in the class-room but good at manual work. The normal department had thirty-nine students, with three foreign teachers, seven African, and some pupil teachers.

TANGANYIKA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

When in 1876 a mission party was sent up-country to establish a Mission in Uganda, the route adopted was from Bagamoyo, on the coast opposite Zanzibar, through Ukaguru, Ugogo, and Unyamwezi; and intermediate stations between the east coast and the southern shore of the Victoria Lake were established, in 1876 and 1880, at Mpapua and Mamboya, in what afterwards became German territory. The Mission was extended by the occupation of Berega, Nyangala, and Mvumi in 1900; Buigiri in 1901; and Kongwa in 1904. Dodoma was occupied in 1919.

As a result of the war, German East Africa is now a territory called Tanganyika, administered by Britain under a mandate from the League of Nations. The work is under the episcopal supervision of the Bishop of Mombasa.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

In the Tanganyika Mission elementary schools are prominent at Berega, Kongwa, Mvumi, Buigiri, and their out-stations. There is a training college for catechists at Kongwa. The Society's staff consists of 8 foreign clergymen, 1 doctor, 7 missionaries' wives, 9 other women missionaries, and 250 African Christian workers.

Reconstruction

THE reconstruction work in the Tanganyika Mission, after the ravages of war and famine and pestilence, went on in 1920. It was, as one missionary writes, "both temporal and spiritual." At some places the congregations appeared to have gone to pieces, at others there was evidence of endurance, and at several centres there were real progress and a desire to extend the boundaries of the work. The weakness of Christian work during war time was the opportunity of Islam in these regions; it appears to be making inroads in more than one direction.

At Mamboya, inquirers have come forward, and fifty Christians were confirmed during the Bishop's visit in February. Discipline in the district is gradually being restored. At Berega, the Rev. D. Deekes was encouraged by the work done by the African agents, who were occupying every available centre in the district. He feels that the personal interest and prayers of supporters at home have done much for these isolated workers. The chief danger which confronts the Mission is the penetration of Mohammedanism from the eastern coast into the interior. Many of the Wan'gulu tribe, between the territory of the Universities' Mission and the C.M.S., have already been captured. They are said to have taken up a puerile form of Islam, which includes old heathen practices and superstitions, and strangely enough the initiation is "by the pouring on of water." Though there is very little knowledge of the doctrine of Islam, yet opposition to Christianity is strong. It is hoped that the four centres of work established in the N'gulu Country by Archdeacon D. J. Rees will form a barrier against the influx of Islam into Ukaguru and Ugogo. In October, the leaders of the Church convened a meeting of Christians to pray and work against the "evil of drink and drums," referring to the heathen dances accompanied by drunkenness. At Kongwa, Archdeacon Rees himself had to supervise the completion of the building of the Huron Training College, which involved the planting of a large area of ground to secure a good food supply. The building was opened on July 14, with twenty-five students, two of whom were candidates for orders. Great laxity had been prevailing among the Christian population, there being no one to perform marriages; but signs of repentance were shown, though there was still much indifference.

Moslem propaganda

Moral conditions

At Mvumi, as in other places, the need of work among the older generation is felt. Miss E. E. Jackson carried on a class for older women whose influence upon the community is very great, but who have been neglected in favour of the easier work among the young. The class is taught by one of themselves. Miss Jackson writes: "I think most of them are under the impression that Christianity is only for the young people." The school buildings in many places are still in ruins. The people are mainly cultivators and cattle breeders, and school work is hindered by the boys being called off to take part in cattle herding; nevertheless, they are keen to learn to read the New Testament for themselves, and one of them by his earnestness brought his parents and the rest of the family to baptism. The Rev. J. H. Briggs reports that the church has been enlarged. One hundred and fifty were confirmed and 250 communicants were present at the Bishop's visit; classes have been re-started and 234 baptized. From the out-stations chiefs came in requesting the rebuilding of all schools, but only a part of these petitions could be attended to. The Rev. W. D. Cole visited Tabora for English services. A new station was opened at Muhalala, where there were fifty baptisms. At Buigiri the famine has passed away, and the mission station which was burnt down by the German forces was rebuilt, with the exception of the church which is still a temporary structure. The Rev. E. W. Doulton feels that "unseen forces have been hindering the work here." The former chief helper had to be disciplined, and when Mr. Doul-

Efforts to reach old and young ton wrote had not yet been restored to full leadership. There is an opening for extension northward among the Wanyilamba tribe, numbering about 30,000; but even more urgent is the call for industrial training which is pressed also by the Director of Education. Among the Cigogo tribe there are a number of Moslems, quite near to Buigiri. The headman assured Miss M. E. Fendt that he only taught his own people, from which it would seem that there is some timidity about Moslem propaganda where the white man is present.

UGANDA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The original impetus to the exploration of Africa from the east coast was given by the C.M.S. missionaries, Krapf, Rebmann, and Erhardt. They communicated to Europe the first report of the lake system of the interior, which led to the journeys of Burton, Speke, and Grant, and, incidentally, to those of Stanley. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the last named of the readiness of Mtesa, king of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of the offer of two anonymous donations of £5000 each in order that a missionary expedition might be sent to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organize a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party accordingly proceeded to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill were killed, and Dr. J. Smith died before reaching the country. The Mission, however, maintained its position in Uganda from June, 1877, and that notwithstanding tremendous difficulties. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in 1879. King Mtesa, who died in 1884, was succeeded by Mwanga, and the new king was led to regard the missionaries with suspicion. He caused Bishop Hannington, while in Busoga, en route for Uganda from the coast, to be murdered on 31 October, 1885. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many African Christians, several of whom were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, King Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French missionaries were expelled from the country, and a period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year after the missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga re-entered Uganda and regained his throne through the help of his Christian subjects, and two of the missionaries returned with him. Alexander Mackay, however, one of the pioneer missionaries, died in 1890 while at the south end of the Lake. In the same year Mwanga accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company. Sir Gerald Portal reached Uganda, as Queen's Commissioner, in March, 1893, and in April, 1894, the British Government declared the country a British protectorate. In the summer of 1897 Mwanga fled from the capital, and his infant son Chwa, baptized by the name of David, was proclaimed king. In September of the same year a serious mutiny of the Sudanese troops broke out; several European officers were seized and murdered; and one of the missionaries, Mr. G. L. Pilkington, who in response to the appeal of the authorities was accompanying the government forces as interpreter, lost his life. The country of Busoga first had a resident missionary in 1891, and in the five following years there was rapid expansion in the kingdom of Buganda; Toro was occupied in 1896; Bunyoro in 1899; Ankole in 1901; the Acholi Country in 1904; and Bukedi in 1908.

In 1897 the diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was subdivided, the Uganda Protectorate, according to the boundaries then obtaining (which have since been altered), being formed into the diocese of Uganda, which Bishop Tucker elected to retain, relinquishing the remainder with the exception of a few native reserves to form the diocese of Mombasa. He resigned in 1911, and Bishop Willis, a missionary of the Society, was consecrated as his successor in 1912. In 1920 Archdeacon H. Gresford Jones was consecrated to be Bishop Suffragan in Uganda.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

I. The whole kingdom of Buganda, which is coterminous with the province of that name, is occupied by foreign missionaries or Baganda clergymen.

Candidates are prepared for ordination in the Bishop Tucker Memorial College at Mukono; training classes for men are held at various stations; and men school teachers are trained in a normal school at Budo. For women there are evangelists' training classes at Kampala, the capital, and elsewhere, and a normal school for girls at Gayaza. The schools include an intermediate school (known as the King's School) at Kampala, and lower grade schools there and at Mukono (Bishop's School), Kasangate, Ndeje, Mityana, Kikoma, and Kako, all of them for the sons of chiefs and for others who can pay the fees; a girls' boarding school at Gayaza; and a considerable number of elementary schools. All the schools are supported by the Uganda Church, the C.M.S. providing only the salaries of the foreign missionaries engaged in them. At Kampala there is also the Mengo hospital, with a training school for men students, a maternity school for women, and several affiliated dispensaries.

II. In the Western Province, which comprises the kingdoms of Ankole and Toro, and in the kingdom of Bunyoro, in the Northern Province, the training of evangelists is prosecuted at Mbarara, Kabarole, and Hoima, and at each station and at Masindi there is also a lower grade school. There are hospitals at Kabarole, in Toro, and Kabale, in Ankole. Work is also carried on at Gulu, in the Acholi Country.

III. In Busoga work is of long standing; but in Bukedi, which, like Busoga is in the Eastern Province, it is more recent. There are training classes for men evangelists at Kamuli, Ng'ora, and Maseno, and for women evangelists at Iganga, and lower grade boys' schools at Kamuli, Ng'ora, and Nabumale.

IV. Work has been taken over from the Lutheran Mission in Buwaya, south of Uganda, in Tanganyika Territory.

The pastoral care of the 128,229 Christians connected with the Society in the Mission is shared by foreign missionaries and Baganda, Batoro, Banyoro, and Basoga clergymen. All the African clergymen and lay teachers, who now number 69 and 3953 respectively, have always been entirely maintained by the contributions of the people, save that since 1910 a number of evangelists have been sent to Bukedi who are supported from money voted to the diocese by the committee entrusted with the distribution of the unallotted portion of the Pan-Anglican Thankoffering.

Throughout the Mission evangelistic work is largely in the hands of African evangelists superintended by foreign missionaries.

The staff of the Mission consists, besides Bishops Willis and Gresford Jones, of 28 foreign clergymen, 10 laymen, including 7 doctors, 34 missionaries' wives, and 34 other women missionaries; one of the women is a doctor and 9 are trained nurses, working in connexion with the medical missions.

Race assertion

THE tendency to self-assertion of race continues to be manifest in the Uganda Protectorate, and the Muganda is beginning to question the authority of what he is taught by clergy or catechists. He no longer invariably believes simply on their word. One missionary goes so far as to speak of the young Muganda as the "Bolshevik of Central Africa." While superstition is rapidly being overthrown and animism discredited in teaching and practice, there is a real danger that irreligion may emerge in the process. In matters non-essential independent opinion is expressed. Archdeacon G. K. Baskerville tells us that "the introduction of English wine at the Holy Communion is by no means an easy matter, and though a few churches now use it, it will be a long time before it is universal." In the last meeting of the synod objections to the cross over the holy table in the new cathedral were sustained, and the proposal to unite the dioceses of East Africa in one church province was voted down. At the same time leaders are conscious that, as Canon H. T. C. Weatherhead writes, "this nationalist feeling needs guidance and not repression."

The Government has presented to the cathedral a memorial to the Baganda troops who fell in the war, in the shape of a handsome eagle lectern.

Marriage difficulties

The paucity of Christian girls in the country is a source of difficulty and danger. In Teso, no Christian marriage took place for eight months, but some hundreds of men contracted civil marriages because there were no baptized girls. Christian marriages in the young communities are regarded as rare but happy omens. In some cases Christian men marry unbaptized girls with heathen rites. Moreover, immorality is prevalent. Miss B. M. Davies, of the girls' central school, Kampala, writes that the children are regular in attendance, but their temptations from the growing population of Europeans and Indians are very great. "One's heart grows heavy so often when girl after girl leaves the school on account of immorality . . . but a large number of girls, we believe, do try to live right lives." And she gives an instance of one who so did against very difficult home influences.

Moral problems

Foreign and native staff

In many instances the African clergy have been doing excellent work, often in great isolation owing to diminution of staff side by side with growth of work. At the same time the need of supervision, both pastoral and educational, is constantly urged in the letters of the missionaries. Archdeacon Baskerville writes: "We have, I believe, as fine a set of native clergy and other workers as could be found anywhere, but they have their limitations—little initiative and deficient power of finance, together with procrastination." The problem of supervision is to give sufficient to prevent slackness, yet not so much as to make the African lean permanently on foreign oversight and stimulus. As things are, a paucity of missionary supervisors prevents due expansion of the African staff. At Kamuli, in Busoga, for instance, educational work suffered much through the withdrawal of foreign superintendence, and the high school lapsed into great indiscipline.

Administrative responsibilities

How extensive is the supervision required is illustrated by the case of Canon G. R. Blackledge, of Kampala, who had to look after three rural deaneries, with twenty pastorates, 375 churches, and 536 teachers. The ruridecanal councils meet half-yearly, and after church matters have been discussed athletic competitions are held. At the same time Canon Blackledge was preparing eight deacons for priest's orders so as to give them the advantages of the cathedral services and opportunities for learning church organization and pastoral work. Another form of administration which takes up much time is the secretariat of the Diocesan Estates Board. These estates, varying in size from six to 500 acres, are scattered all over the country, and they form an endowment, provided by Christian chiefs and landholders, for the support of the Church. In several quarters the need is expressed of more efficient transport if the pastoral and evangelistic work is to be overtaken by the few men available. Motor transport is making great advances in this as well as in other African countries, and it will become a more and more important factor in missionary work. The old days of the safari, or caravan, are numbered, and the expense of human porterage has become prohibitive.

The youthfulness of church members is often noticed. A missionary writes :—

The young eager to be taught

> The feature of the work that strikes a newcomer most forcibly is the extraordinary predominance of the young—specially boys and youths. In an average congregation there will be certainly eighty per cent males, and probably ninety per cent of the whole congregation will be under 30 years of age. The crowds of young clamouring to be taught is a matter for deep thankfulness and a ground for boundless hope, but the scarcity of women coming forward for baptism and confirmation is a very serious weakness. The insistence upon monogamy as a sine qua non for baptism is at the bottom of this scarcity, even the Christian men seeming in consequence to fail to encourage their women to read.

The risks connected with this predominance of the younger element led several missionaries to make special efforts to teach and influence the elders of the community, both men and women. Not that there is not abundant cause for thanksgiving in the effect of the school at Budo and of Christian up-bringing generally, as seen in the younger generation of which a missionary writes: "We can surely praise and thank God for what He has wrought. No one can realize it fully but those who saw the old generation of sixteen years ago, and see the young generation of to-day."

English services

The response to the ministrations in the English congregations varies. At the capital only a minority of the residents attend services, but they are greatly appreciated by those who do. The Rev. H. Mathers, on the other hand, writes from Kako of a visit to Bukoba, where the government official arranged for an English service; it was well attended by white settlers, and they subscribed liberally towards the building of the African pastor's house.

Educational work

Canon Weatherhead reports that during the year under review education was much canvassed by both the Government and the missionaries. Commissions reported on economic development and a native civil service; and the education required for workers, from the labourer to the qualified clerk and mechanic, was discussed at some length. The Government decided to start technical schools of its own in connexion with public works, the transport, agricultural, and medical departments, and also for government clerkships. Of the budget grant of £110,000 for education, the Roman Catholic and Anglican missions were to receive £16,000.

Literature

Bible circulation in Uganda amounted to nearly 22,000 volumes. A new translation of the gospels in Luhaya, the dialect of the Buhaya, will reach about 230,000 people.

The production of literature to meet the needs of the educated population will, it is hoped, be much stimulated by the recent establishment at Kampala of a branch of the S.P.C.K., which is taking over the publication work in the diocese. The Rev. H. Mathers writes: "One thing is certain, namely, that the people will need a much fuller library and education to meet the demands of the times." Uganda, which began with teaching the people to read the Bible in their own tongue, phonetically printed, has developed more on the lines of indigenous literature than West Africa, where, beyond books used in public worship, the demand is almost exclusively for English publications.

Buganda

BUGANDA PROVINCE.—The figures of the census issued by His Highness the Kabaka for the kingdom of Buganda (exclusive of the outlying districts of the protectorate) show that there is still much to be done even in the central area of the Mission. The numbers are as follows:—

	PROTESTANTS	ROMAN CATHOLICS	MOHAMMEDANS	HEATHEN	TOTAL
1908 .	147,941	191,604	57,822	273,740	671,107
1918–19 .	219,713	190,604	59,162	243,385	712,864

Clergy training

The Bishop Tucker Memorial College at Mukono had fifty-two students during the year, of whom four were ordained deacons on Trinity Sunday, three former students at the same time being priested. The gospeller was an ex-Budo boy. Other old boys of the school gave a dinner in his honour, and he is now in charge of the Mengo central school, with over 400 boys. One of the Mukono students belonged to a newly evangelized nation, the Mukumamu, in the Lango district, and still bore all the tribal tattoo marks on his face. The year was marked by a college "mission" to Ngogwe, the centre of a considerable Christian population. Participation in the mission was left to the discretion of the students, and they took it up with enthusiasm, many of them walking the twenty-four miles to Ngogwe, and each shouldering his own bundle. They were billeted in the village, and a congregation of over 1000 assembled in the church for quiet and orderly worship. After the Holy Communion, the other Sunday services were of a mission type, and the Monday was kept as a quiet day. Masons and carpenters were apprenticed for the work of the new college buildings, the foundation stone of which was laid in September, 1919, and it is hoped that they will form the nucleus of a technical branch of work at Mukono.

Boys educated at the King's School, Budo, are scattered in various posts over the country and have kept up a good name. The monthly school magazine increased its circulation and is a help intellectually and spiritually to former members, such as the head master at Ndeje with 120 boys in the central school of that deanery. Industrial work is on the increase in many quarters. The woodwork class at Budo is popular; a panel can now be designed by one boy and carved by another. In many schools girls and boys help in cultivating plantations and crops for the necessary food supply.

Girls' schools

Progress in the education of girls was hampered by shortness of staff, and also in places by the slowness of chiefs and men of substance to pay for the education of their daughters. Still, Miss A. L. Allen tells us from Gayaza, public opinion is beginning to say that children must begin younger than they did, so that they may know more. She adds: "When children of former pupils arrive with more intelligence, more character than the last generation, we thank God very fervently and say: 'Let us go on in spite of difficulties.'"

Medical work

The medical work of the central hospital at Mengo brought its receipts up to Rs 91,000, making it self-supporting, with the exception of the medical missionaries' allowances. Owing to depletion of staff, the medical school was suspended after three years' successful work. The maternity school was worked successfully and was enthusiastically helped by officials and settlers. A garden fair at Government House brought in Rs 15,000 towards it, and altogether Rs 40,000 were paid or promised. Government is legislating for three grades of certificated midwives. Their work is vital, for the population is actually on the decrease owing to infant mortality, disease, and vice. "The native chiefs of Buganda," the Rev. A. E. Clarke writes, "have agreed to build hospitals and houses for the midwives, and they have already begun the erection of a new building in Kako."

The Church in the country

A typical visit to a small rural church is thus described:—

> An expectant crowd waiting for us, escorting us all along the roads leading to the little church; a warm welcome from the Christians; chairs and mats made ready in the chief's house for us to rest on, and have food when we wanted; the little mud-walled church, with its pathetic attempt to copy some elaborate structure, with its mud pulpit and reading desk and its little fence of reeds to form the communion rails; then the hearty, if not musical, singing of the canticles, full-throated responses, and a most reverent attention to the Word of God as it was preached as simply as possible.

Ankole

Western Province.—Miss M. T. Baker, of the girls' boarding school at Mbarara, reports that she found the village girls in the outlying district of Ankole much behind their Baganda sisters, the former being the first generation to learn to read, whereas in Buganda many of the teachers are grandchildren of Christians. When left alone in September, 1919, Miss Baker was obliged to close the teachers' training class so as to maintain the girls' boarding school, and when she was invalided home in 1920, that also had to be dropped. "The girls had done a lot of digging, and we had a year's supply of food in hand, and all the buildings were in order." The boys' high school at Mbarara has a Muganda head master and fifty-seven names on the roll. A tendency to swelled head on the part of scholars is noticeable, and the influence of young Baganda among them is apt to increase it. The Rev. H. B. Lewin writes that the church services have been well attended, but the morals of the Christians both in the capital and district are lax.

In the Kigezi district Mohammedan influence is on the wane, the mosque at Kabale, the government head-quarters, being unused.

Toro

A visit from Lady Buxton to the girls' school at Kabarole was a great cheer and help. During the Christmas holidays a girls' camp was held on the Ruwenzori Mountains and "practical geography lessons were given, as the whole Semliki Valley and miles of the Congo lay stretched beneath us like a giant map." Games also and spiritual intercourse helped to bring teachers and taught together. With money collected at the services, for which 350 girls assembled in the central hall on Sunday mornings, four native teachers on distant estates are supported and an annual subscription is sent to Dr. Barnardo's Homes. At the school exhibition £75 worth of goods, all made in the school, was sold, and the industrial side is progressing.

Bunyoro

NORTHERN PROVINCE.—Miss I. M. B. Leakey describes the difficulties of a district school where "eight children are huddled in a circle on the floor round a three-inch square book, all pointing to the same letter with a bit of stick and shouting out its name, only one or two seeing it from the proper angle." The boarding school at Hoima is going forward, though chiefs are slack about sending their children; the girls do their own housework and also enjoy games; they sometimes act Bible scenes in a realistic way among themselves; insect collection, too, is interesting them. By digging and weeding the girls tried to raise money towards the support of an ex-mistress who has gone out as a teacher. A training institution and girls' school were being built, and the dispensary had on the average 290 visits a week, including several from Indian patients who were thankful for medical relief and paid good fees. This station was in charge of an African pastor who superintended the sixty-two village teachers and schoolmasters in the district. At Masindi the Rev. H. G. Dillistone promoted industrial education—carpentry, wheelwrights' work, and tanning—besides the cultivation of the Kiryanga estate which last year yielded eleven tons of coffee. The Christian children are backward in spiritual intelligence and greatly need the presence of a woman missionary.

Bukedi

EASTERN PROVINCE.—In 1915 Nabumale was dismantled as a European station, and the work previously carried on was transferred to Mbale, which had become the government station; in 1920 this action was reversed owing to the unhealthiness of Mbale. The large stone church at Nabumale was repaired, and the boys' boarding school was re-opened with forty pupils in July. A fortnight later the pupils went on strike, at the instigation, it was feared, of the Muganda assistant master. Next day the Muganda government agent brought back the truant majority and gave them some trenchant advice which they followed with meekness. The Baganda pastors had difficulties with their finance though they had been taught account keeping at college. They had never had entire responsibility before, but now they are trying to rise to it.

Busoga

The openings for extension in Busoga are such that the Rev. H. K. Banks writes: "If C.M.S. cannot send out reinforcements immediately to these parts, it ought to invite other societies to come in and help." At Kamuli, a chief, who is a very strict Mohammedan, has built a school which is also used as a church and a C.M.S. trained teacher is in charge. The chief inspects school attendance and insists on regularity and is now building a church at his own expense. The head of the new maternity hospital there, trained at Mengo school, is a widow of the late chief and mother of the present chief of Kamuli, and also a daughter of Sir Apolo Kagwa, the Katikiro (or prime minister) of Buganda. Roman Catholics and Mohammedans shun the hospital; others are gaining confidence in the African lady in charge.

Kavirondo

KAVIRONDO.—The native reserves in the western portion of the Nyanza Province of Kenya Colony having been transferred from the diocese of Uganda to that of Mombasa, the work of the C.M.S. in Kavirondo has been handed over to the Kenya Mission.

The Near East

The Mohammedan population of the world was estimated before the war at 201 millions. Of these over 90 millions were under British rule or suzerainty: 65 millions in India, 10 in Egypt, 2 elsewhere in Asia, 13 elsewhere in Africa, principally Nigeria. The C.M.S. is represented among almost all these populations.

The break-up of the political power of Islam through the war has tended to remove the restrictions on missionary work formerly imposed by the law of Islam, but it has also accentuated pan-Islamic feeling on the religious side, and this finds expression in propaganda.

EGYPT MISSION

PAST HISTORY

Twenty years after an earlier attempt had been given up, the Egypt Mission was resumed in 1882, when the Rev. F. A. Klein, an able Arabic scholar, was sent to Cairo. A medical mission was opened in 1889, and women were added to the staff in the following year. Menouf and Shubra Zanga were occupied in 1910. After the defeat of the Khalifa's forces had opened the Egyptian Sudan to Christian missionary work, Omdurman was occupied in 1899, Khartoum in 1900, Atbara in 1908, and Wad Medani in 1919.

Since November, 1920, Egypt and the Sudan have become an independent diocese, separate from the see of Jerusalem, under the Right Rev. Ll. H. Gwynne, formerly Bishop of Khartoum. For purposes of C.M.S. administration the diocese is divided into two Missions, the work in Egypt and the Northern Sudan being mainly among Mohammedans, and in the Southern Sudan among pagans.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

I. The Society occupies four stations in Egypt proper. A boarding school and a day school for girls are maintained at Cairo; and a school for boys, with a hostel attached, at Old Cairo. There is also a book depot at Cairo, and a monthly magazine, "Orient and Occident," is published co-operatively. Evangelistic meetings are also held. Medical work is carried on at hospitals for men and for women and children at Old Cairo and Menouf. Work among the fellahin is maintained at Menouf and Shubra Zanga.

II. In the Sudan, the sphere of the operations of the Gordon Memorial Mission, the Society has girls' schools at Khartoum, Omdurman, Atbara, and Wad Medani, and a medical mission at Omdurman.

There are 7 clergymen, 10 laymen, 12 missionaries' wives, and 27 other women missionaries engaged in the Mission; 8 of these are doctors and 7 are nurses. There are also 57 native Christian lay agents.

Nationalism and evangelism

EGYPT.—The national movement in Egypt is in the forefront of politics and its effect upon the Society's work was manifest in various ways. From the Old Cairo hospital it is reported that, despite the unrest, work was continued with no interruption, and that when the British staff for reasons of safety had to leave for ten days the Egyptian staff took their places and carried on the work, the missionary nurses going down day by day. The Rev. E. F. F. Bishop states that once, while he was driving in a motor in Cairo with the Rev. W. W. Cash, the vehicle was stoned, but no injury was sustained. A joint memorandum drawn up by representative missionaries for the consideration of the Milner Commission proved to be one of the most helpful documents which it received, and there is sufficient evidence that the spirit of Christian love and truth, for which missionary work stands in Egypt as well as elsewhere, is no barrier but rather the true solvent of disagreement and friction between races and nationalities.

A new bishopric

The division of the jurisdiction of the Bishop in Jerusalem, confining it to Palestine and Syria and Cyprus and making over Egypt and the Sudan to Dr. Ll. H. Gwynne, hitherto Bishop Suffragan in Khartoum, is an important forward step in the development of the work of the C.M.S. in the Near East. Dr. Gwynne will now be resident in Cairo where, Canon W. H. T. Gairdner tells us, he is already taking steps towards reunion on the basis of the Lambeth Conference resolutions. The Rev. W. W. Cash, who took over the secretariat in September, 1919, reports that an inter-mission council for Egypt is being formed to enable the Missions as a whole "to face the Moslem problem with a solid and united front." Fellowship has been much deepened by monthly prayer meetings held at the Bishop's house in Cairo, and conducted by representatives of different missions in turn; and a joint colportage committee has already proved the value of co-operative work.

Literary work

Canon Gairdner says that the "Orient and Occident" has taken a new lease of life owing to its reorganization on a co-operative basis. The magazine is now interdenominational, and Canon Gairdner is helped by co-editors; it has been enlarged and improved and an English section added; the circulation has doubled and it is acceptable to Moslems as well as to Christians.

Special evangelization

A mission held by Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy in the autumn of 1920 is referred to in several letters. Large crowds, numbering in Cairo from 2000 to 3000 nightly, attended the meetings, and these were followed up by an inter-mission committee which organized continuation meetings addressed by leading missionaries, as well as by individual touch with those who were desirous of further teaching. Some dozen Bible circles for inquirers were set on foot. Mention is also made of a mission by Lord Radstock, which was held at Menouf during July. On the last Sunday of the mission, the omdeh (prefect) of Menouf attended, accompanied by several friends, and other officials of the local government were present, all of them being Moslems.

The Coptic Church

From Cairo Mr. S. A. Morrison mentions nine Bible circles, meeting weekly, with an attendance of forty-three students, Copts and Moslems, as well as Protestants. A Mr. Gindi Wasif was secretary of the "Friends of the Bible," a Coptic Student Christian Movement; preparations are being made to extend this work in Egypt as well as to get into closer touch with Egyptian students in England.

The villages

Work in the villages was to some extent hindered, but by no means prevented, by the political unrest. Miss G. Grimwood writes of the fellahin women as "thirsting for teaching; they need the simplest colloquial language and then they just drink in the gospel stories." Their ignorance is great but they are open to the ministration of Christian friendship. In one country town a young catechumen was married but continued to live with his family, though they well knew him to be a candidate for baptism, and his young wife's relatives offered no objection on this ground to the match. A group of converts is mentioned from among army conscripts; these men continued in their calling as soldiers and helped one another. Some suffered more persecution than others, but one, particularly, remained unmolested, "for his lot has been cast in a regiment of which the officers are sensible men. When it was found that H. could work a sewing machine he was taught to make soldiers' clothes, and soon had a considerable addition to the ordinary pay of a soldier. In time he was made a corporal, and then another opening occurred; the officer wished men who were ignorant of reading to be taught and H. was appointed teacher of a class numbering about thirty-five." H. was waiting for his discharge from the army before actually being baptized.

Medical work

The influence of the medical work extends year by year, especially because it copes with what Dr. R. B. Coleman describes as "the plagues of Egypt," known by the names of ankylostomiasis, bilharziosis, and pellagra,—the first being Egyptian anaemia, caused by hook worm; the second an affection of the liver for which special treatment has now been discovered; and the third a pernicious rash which may even become fatal. The patients at Old Cairo came from a wide range of country, beginning with Alexandria on the northern sea-shore and extending to Assiut in Upper Egypt. Dr. F. J. Harpur now devotes most of his time to the work of evangelization in the hospitals; the effect of this on the spiritual work is most beneficial, for he is revered on all hands by the people as their benefactor. The increasing number of patients gives more opportunity for teaching than can readily be availed of. At Menouf the hospital work was well maintained by the Egyptian doctor. New buildings have now been put up.

Educational work

The schools were, on the whole, little affected through political unrest. The Rev. A. J. Toop reports that the Old Cairo boys' school has gone on steadily and outlived a Coptic rival. The great pressure of applications for admission has necessitated the raising of fees. Had there been accommodation the numbers might have been doubled. Miss G. M. Western states that the work of the girls' boarding school was hampered by unrest and the numbers fell to about fifty. Notwithstanding this the Moslems showed their appreciation of the training given by taking their children there in preference to other schools, and by recommending the school to their friends. Since the summer, racial bitterness has, she thinks, notably decreased. Miss J. E. B. Bywater writes of the girls' boarding school at Cairo that she is "in touch with many old pupils who are living useful Christian lives, and are bringing up their children a good deal better than they themselves were brought up by their own mothers." The ragged Sunday school connected with the Old Cairo hospital has about 149 children. The growth of the Church is evinced "in the baptism and marriage registers where entries relating to converts and their children are more frequent."

Four Moslem hospital orderlies were baptized in February at the Old Cairo hospital; later on they were confirmed. The people seem to be "beginning to think for the first time in their lives. There is apparently more religious liberty and people are less afraid of showing their desire to hear, and to believe what they hear." At Old Cairo three women were baptized, one of whom was the Moslem wife of an Armenian. Under Moslem law such a baptism should entail the death both of the candidate and of the baptizer. On the other hand we hear of a Moslem girl, baptized last year at Cairo after no little prayer and effort, who has caused "much disappointment" because of her careless life. Baptisms

NORTHERN SUDAN.—Dr. E. Lloyd reports the completion of the women's hospital as originally planned, together with a nurses' home and second doctor's house. These are built on land freely granted by the Sudan Government, and measuring over 1000 square metres, in a very good situation. He sees evidence that, although Omdurman was founded only a generation ago and there was some anxiety as to its practical evacuation when the railway was carried farther south, it is becoming an even more important centre than before. He finds the Sudanese Moslems far more ignorant and bigoted than those of Palestine. Mrs. A. C. Hall tells a moving story of twenty freed slave girls stolen from Wadai, in the French Congo, and rescued by British authorities, as they were being taken to be sold at Mecca. The charge of these girls was proposed to the Mission, the Government offering to pay £200 a year for their food and clothing. Mrs. Hall had an adventurous journey in going to fetch them from Bahr el Ghazal Province far up the Nile. Their ages were from 10 to 24. All were very wild; several of them were engaged to soldiers and arrangements had to be made for them accordingly. One ran away repeatedly, but seemed at last to be settling down. The remainder appeared to be good material and showed real improvement.

SUDAN MISSION

PAST HISTORY

In 1905 the Society was invited by Lord Cromer and the Sirdar to begin work among the pagan population of the southern part of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Malek was occupied in 1906; Lau in 1912; Yambio in 1913; Yei in 1917; Juba in 1920; and Yilu in 1921.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

At Malek, Yei, and Juba, in the Mongalla Province, and at Lau, in the Bahr el Ghazal Province, the Mission is carried on among the Dinkas; at Yilu, in the latter province, the Morus are reached; and at Yambio, the Azandi. There is a boarding school for the sons of chiefs at Juba, and a medical mission at Yilu, but otherwise the work, which is under the supervision of Dr. Ll. H. Gwynne, the Bishop in Egypt and the Sudan, is still in its initial stages.

The foreign staff consists of 8 clergymen, 2 laymen (one a doctor), and 4 missionaries' wives, besides some agents from the Uganda Mission.

A School for Sons of Chiefs

VILLAGE work in the Sudan Mission has been hindered by military operations. A conference on its future was held at the Bari village of Juba. Here the Rev. C. A. Lea-Wilson has erected buildings on rising ground above the Nile, opposite Gondokoro, where Sir Samuel Baker had his head-quarters. A boarding school has been opened and is attended by forty-three boys, nearly all sons of chiefs from six different tribes, who pay £3 yearly fees. It is hoped that the boys will eventually return to their people as Christian rulers and officials, and that the work of the Mission will forestall the spread of Islam among the surrounding pagans. Education is of course still very elementary. On one occasion a tusk of ivory was brought in payment for school fees.

The first confirmation among the Dinkas was held at Malek (in the Mongalla Province, 1000 miles south of Khartoum) on the third Sunday after Easter, 1920, when Bishop Gwynne confirmed two Dinkas as well as two Acholi teachers from Uganda. The church was filled with more than 140 Dinkas. These first-fruits, after fifteen years of toil among a hard and unreceptive people, are hailed with deep thankfulness.

A New Station

At the end of 1920, Dr. K. G. Fraser proceeded to Amadi, and in January he opened a medical mission among the Morus at Yilu, fifteen miles south of Amadi, and about an equal distance from Tombe and Rejaf. The people gave him a warm welcome, and he describes them as "simply longing for light, and many of them for healing." Among the Azandi round Yambio progress has been marked. There, too, a confirmation was held in a substantial church on a well laid out estate where the 140 pupils of all ages support themselves by their own labour.

PALESTINE MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The C.M.S. work in Palestine began at Jerusalem in 1851, in response to an invitation given by Bishop Gobat. The first medical mission (under a native doctor) was set on foot at Salt in 1883. The Society began to send unmarried women to the Mission in 1887.

The bishopric in Jerusalem was founded in 1841 on the initiative of King Frederick William IV of Prussia, the arrangement being that England and Prussia, who shared the expense of the see, should alternately nominate its occupant. The first three bishops were Dr. Alexander, Dr. Gobat (1846), previously a C.M.S. missionary, and Dr. Barclay (1879). On the death of the last named in 1881 the German Government failed to nominate a successor, and eventually declined to continue the arrangement. In 1887 the bishopric was revived by Archbishop Benson, the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews and the Church Missionary Society having undertaken to make an annual subscription to the stipend of the see to supplement the endowment. Dr. MacInnes, formerly a C.M.S. missionary in Egypt, is the present bishop (since 1914).

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The C.M.S. works at six main stations west of the Jordan, namely, Jerusalem, Nazareth, Nablous, Jaffa, Gaza, and Haifa; and at Salt in Trans-Jordania.

At each of these stations and at their out-stations day schools are carried on, that at Gaza being attended by some 300 girls. The chief C.M.S. institutions are the Bishop Gobat School for boys at Jerusalem; the girls' boarding and training school at Bethlehem; and the orphanage at Nazareth. The English College and the British High School (for girls) at Jerusalem are carried on jointly by the C.M.S. and other societies. Jaffa, Nablous, Gaza, and Salt are centres of medical missionary work and of visiting in the towns and villages.

The pastoral work in the Mission is mainly in the hands of the Palestine Church Council, with which 7 native clergymen are connected. The foreign staff consists of 7 clergymen, 7 laymen, 13 missionaries' wives, and 26 other women missionaries; of these, 7 are doctors and 9 are trained nurses connected with the medical missions. The indigenous lay agents number 59.

Reconstruction

THE year 1920 was one of reconstruction. Palestine as a State is gradually finding itself. When Sir Herbert Samuel arrived in Palestine as High Commissioner, the procession entered Jerusalem in armoured motor cars, owing to the unsettlement which resulted from jealousy on the part of the Christians and Moslems against Jewish aspirations which they regarded as threatening their welfare and independence. Leaders of Zionism have, indeed, declared that their movement is intended for the service of the country rather than for its domination, and that they wish to co-operate with the citizens of other faiths for the good of the country as a whole; but the tension is very great, and riots have lately broken out in Jaffa and elsewhere. Three languages have been recognized for official use: Hebrew, Arabic, and English.

Every letter gives evidence of the great difficulty caused by the high prices prevailing in Palestine as elsewhere. The work has been greatly reduced by war, but the native pastors were able to do good service. Unfortunately, owing largely to the cost of living, no candidates for ordination are coming forward. The moral effect of the presence of British soldiers has been both good and bad; but the contrast between their treatment of the people and that of the Turks has been all to the good.

Galilee

At Nazareth it seemed almost impossible at one time to feed the girls of the orphanage, but good harvests of corn and olives relieved the situation, and much planting of olives and vines and other fruit trees was done. The maintenance of the orphanage cost double what it did before the war, and Miss M. A. E. Newey raises the question "as to how long we can keep any of the work going." A Y.M.C.A. branch has been started at Nablous by an old Gobat schoolboy, Dr. Habeeb Salim, who is a member of the High Commissioner's "Council of Ten."

Southern Palestine

In Jerusalem, the German orphanage for girls, taken over by the Syria and Palestine Relief Fund, has become a school and training college, called the British High School, and is worked by various missionary societies, the C.M.S. being represented on the staff by Miss W. A. Coate. Last year 230 girls were in attendance, belonging to four religions and a dozen races. The Bishop Gobat School was much helped by its old boys. They arranged inter-school athletics and gave prizes; also lectures to the students, and a Christmas entertainment. In October there were seventy-five boarders and twenty-one day scholars of eight religious sects, but no Jews were among them. Many applicants had to be refused. One boy is the son of an important sheikh of the Druses in Upper Galilee. This backward sect is seeking for education. The English College had about seventy students of a standard corresponding to the years just below and above that of matriculation in an ordinary eastern university. At Jaffa and Gaza work was being resumed and buildings were rising. In the girls' school at Jaffa scholars had to be refused for lack of accommodation. At a drill exhibition before the British community the General commanding closed an appreciative speech with the words: "Long live the C.M.S." At Gaza one-third of the population perished from famine or disease during the war. There was great joy among the survivors at the coming of the late Dr. R. Sterling's son to take charge of the hospital. The work at Bethlehem was hindered by the great scarcity which made some people migrate to the land of Moab, where there was plenty of corn as in the days of Ruth, and others to America.

Trans-Jordania

Trans-Jordania is being reorganized separately from Palestine, but under the High Commissioner of that country. Great difficulties were experienced in re-opening the hospital at Salt through violent rains, followed by snow, and later on through disturbances from Arab raids. During the absence of the foreign missionaries the Syrian nurse kept open the dispensary, with 1800 attendances.

PERSIA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, formerly of the C.M.S. Punjab and Sindh Mission, took up work at Isfahan. In 1875 this work was adopted by the Society as their Persia Mission. A medical missionary was sent out in 1879, and women were added to the staff in 1891. Kerman was occupied in 1897, and Yezd in 1898.

Persia was under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of London until 1912, when a see was formed for the country, to which the Rev. C. H. Stileman, formerly a C.M.S. missionary in Persia, was consecrated. Bishop Stileman resigned in 1915, and the Rev. J. H. Linton succeeded him in 1919.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Isfahan and Julfa, its Armenian suburb, are contiguous. The other stations are widely separated, Kerman being about 420 miles south-east of Isfahan, with Yezd midway between them. Shiraz is 300 miles due south of Isfahan. The isolation of these centres is being lessened somewhat by the construction of roads and the development of motor traffic, but travelling is still slow, costly, and more or less dangerous.

Much of the work centres round the men's and women's hospitals at each station. There are schools for Persian boys at Isfahan (Stuart Memorial College), Yezd, and Kerman; for Persian girls at Isfahan (with a normal class); for Armenian boys and girls at Julfa; and for Parsi girls at Yezd.

The staff of the Mission consists, besides Bishop Linton, of 5 foreign clergymen, 5 laymen, 9 missionaries' wives, and 25 single women; of the above 10 are doctors and 9 are trained nurses connected with the medical missions. The native Christian lay agents number 72.

The need of education

THE return of Dr. Linton to Persia as bishop bids fair to speed up the work, if only it is possible to second his efforts efficiently. The dominant note of all the letters is the great need of education, imbued with a Christian spirit, so as to raise up men and women fitted to do service for their country in the great changes of the present time. Persia is being leavened by outside influences of every kind. In some places Moslem fanaticism is in evidence, but generally there is readiness to attend to the gospel message, and an eagerness for education imparted by western teachers. The education of girls is especially desired, and Persian women have asked their English sisters: "How can we work for the betterment of our country?" Such work is greatly needed from the social as well as from the spiritual point of view. Infant mortality is at an appalling figure, and the conditions of child labour in some of the carpet factories and elsewhere are terrible. The Bahai sect continues to spread and the persecution directed against it has failed to stop the movement. The sect is, however, secretly hostile to Christianity, although it has taken over much of its teaching.

Kerman

At Kerman the deputy-governor of the town, with one of the mullahs and several merchants, made a very strong appeal for the maintenance of the hospital and the boys' school, as a benefit to the town.

Yezd

Among the Parsis or fire worshippers in Yezd the girls' school under Miss M. E. Brighty had encouraging openings. The Parsi women are far freer than the Moslems and they have great influence over their husbands. There were sixty girls in the school; many who were there in former days from the age of 5 to 18 or 19 are now married and live in widely separated places in Persia, as well as in Bombay. As there was no clergyman resident at Yezd and the people desired church services, Dr. Lucy Molony and Miss J. G. S. Moore took it in turn to read prayers and give the address from the women's side of the church to a congregation of sixty to eighty. The boys' school, under the Rev. A. K. Boyland, had fifty in the day and eighty in the night section. There was an increase of competition, both state and private, but the fees of this school were the highest in the town. There was a class of inquirers, of whom several were almost ready for baptism. Most of them belonged to the South Persia Rifles.

At Isfahan much of the nursing in the hospital is done by lads who were trained by Dr. D. W. Carr. There were two baptisms in connexion with the hospital. A pastorate committee, consisting of both men and women (who meet separately) has been formed. The contributions of the congregation for the last six months amounted to 600 krans (say, £20), as against 90 for the first six months. A good harvest brought down food prices, and the suppression of robber bands made the roads safer, but political uncertainty overshadows the prospects of the Mission.

India, Ceylon, etc.

The population of India in 1911 was 316,000,000. All but one million of these were under British rule or suzerainty, the remainder being in French and Portuguese settlements. In British India the Hindus numbered 217½ millions; Mohammedans, 66½ millions; Buddhists (almost entirely in Burma) and Animists about 10 millions each; and Christians, 3,876,000. During the decade 1901–11 the increase in the general population was 7·1 per cent; among Hindus it was less than 5 per cent; Mohammedans less than 7 per cent; Animists, 20 per cent; and Christians, 32·6 per cent. In 1921 the population was 319,000,000.

Lutheran missionaries under the S.P.C.K. worked in South India in the eighteenth century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but their Missions, after the death of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained. In 1703 William Carey, the famous Baptist missionary, went out to Bengal; but for some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813 no missionaries were allowed to reside within the British dominions, and he and his companions had to take refuge in the Danish settlements. Henry Martyn, who landed at Calcutta in 1806, had been in communication with the C.M.S., but he went out eventually as a chaplain of the East India Company. He and other government chaplains, men like Brown, Buchanan, Corrie, and Thomason, did what they could to prepare the way for future workers. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the bishopric of Calcutta in 1814 by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject. In the following year the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the C.M.S.

The political situation

DURING 1920 India suffered not a little from scarcity, especially in the Bombay Province, and from a continuance of high prices. These last helped to produce an epidemic of strikes, which prevailed throughout the country, especially in railways and factories and also in the post office. Alongside with the great force of nationalism, the strengthening of class consciousness was in evidence, as shown by the riots in Oudh, which represented rebellion on the part of the cultivating classes against the exactions of landlords. The most prominent disturbing element was the non-co-operation agitation. The condemnation by Government of intimidation by unlimited use of force, and of the humiliating measures following upon the Punjab disturbances, allayed only partially the deep resentment aroused by those unhappy events. But there are signs that the appeal of the Duke of Connaught to "bury the past and work together for the future," have not been without effect. The new Delhi Parliament, elected by about 5,000,000 Indian voters, and the Provincial Councils, in which the elected members are in the majority, have set courageously to work to administer the departments of Government which have been made over to them. The inclusion among these of excise and of education is likely to have a direct effect upon Christian work. Meanwhile Mr. Gandhi, whose purity and sincerity of character are universally recognized, set himself to persuade India to refuse through passive resistance the instalment of self-government offered by the recent reforms. This was translated by his Mohammedan colleagues into incitement to active resistance, though recently the intention to advocate violence has been disclaimed by them, and the non-co-operation movement as a whole appears doomed to failure. The appointment of the Earl of Reading, the Lord Chief Justice of England, as Viceroy, has been well received, especially by the legal profession, whose members form the majority of Indian politicians, and in various places associations have been formed to promote co-operation with Government.

The work of the Church Missionary Society in India as a whole was maintained rather than advanced. The scarcity of references in missionaries' letters to direct evangelization, either among Hindus or Mohammedans, indicates that insufficiency of staff prevented missionaries generally from doing more than keep up existing work and endeavour to meet the needs of the masses who spontaneously came to them for teaching and for guidance. At the same time opportunities for personal dealing among other than outcastes were not entirely wanting or neglected. One new feature of evangelistic work came into notice—the Christian healing mission of Mr. J. M. Hickson, a layman of the Anglican Church. The sectional reports show how Mr. Hickson preached to great gatherings both in North and South India. His method was first to give by interpretation a simple gospel address to the crowded congregations in cathedrals or great open-air gatherings, in which he presented Christ as the one true healer of soul and body alike. After this, those who sought for healing, whether Christian or non-Christian, went up in batches to the chancel, where the preacher laid hands on each of them, while one of the clergy pronounced a blessing. In some centres results appeared to be but small, but at many there were signs of real revival, and some remarkable physical cures, though Mr. Hickson did not hold out the certain prospect of immediate and complete relief, but told his hearers that their cure would be completed by the healing power of Christ, through their own prayers and those of a band of intercessors.

A new form of evangelistic work

Education, both of the masses and of the classes, was much canvassed. The report of the interdenominational Commission on Village Education was published in 1920. It lays stress upon the fact that the education of the masses of new converts is far from being overtaken by the missionary societies at large. In fact there are districts in which the number of pupils hardly, if at all, increased during the decade 1910–20, whereas the Christian population increased by thirty per cent. To stem the rising tide of ignorance in the Christian community, with its concomitant superstition, poverty, and immorality, is vital to the work of the Gospel, but this can only be done if the character of the education offered is really adapted to the social and economic life of the people as well as to their spiritual needs.

Village education

The pivotal recommendations are those which deal with the adequate training of teachers through inter-mission effort, with the establishment of vocational schools to train teachers for their life as Christian villagers, with the school as a community centre, and, above all, with the provision of advisers and inspectors to maintain and improve the standard of education.

Non-co-operation

The non-co-operation movement affected higher education in the form of students' strikes. These were directed primarily against the acknowledgment of government administration as represented by its educational institutions, and apparently missionary schools and colleges suffered less than others.

Evidences of growth in the Church

There are, however, encouraging evidences of growth in the Church in India, and in estimating these it becomes more and more impossible to separate the work of the C.M.S. from that of others labouring for the same end among the same people. The Women's Christian College in Madras is an interdenominational institution, for which the C.M.S. supplies a member of the staff, and its principal, Miss E. McDougall, has pointed out how necessary it is to provide for the higher education of Indian Christian womanhood, so that it may contribute leaders in the Indian Church. The recruiting and maintenance of two Christian regiments (one now disbanded), principally from the Punjab, indicates that the Christian community is taking hold of the life of the country. An Indian Christian officer, trained at the Baring High School, Batala, formed one of the guard of honour for the Duke of Connaught on his recent visit to Agra, and the Duke, who conversed with these officers, was greatly interested to see one who was the son of a Christian clergyman. When the soldiers of the regiment were asked to sing their national songs to the adjutant, they regaled him with the Punjabi metrical version of the Psalms which they insisted were their national songs.

PUNJAB, NORTH-WEST FRONTIER, AND SINDH MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station occupied was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Peshawar was occupied in 1854; Multan, 1856; Narowal, 1859; Dera Ismail Khan, 1862; Srinagar, 1863; Bannu, 1865; Lahore, 1867; Clarkabad, 1873; Batala, 1878; Tarn Taran, 1885; Quetta, 1886; the Chenab Colony (formerly known as the Jhang Bar), 1899; Islamabad, 1902; Pattoki, 1917. Work was begun at Kotgur in 1844 and Simla in 1845, before the annexation of the Punjab. At Lahore a divinity school was founded in 1870 by the Rev. (afterwards Bishop) T. V. French. The Rev. G. M. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, 16 August, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations (since abandoned) at Pind Dadan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, both near the frontier, the latter as a base for work among the Baluch tribes. Several stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where work among the Afghans was established in 1854 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the division. In the Valley of Kashmir a medical mission was started by Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially at the time of the famine in 1880 and the earthquake in 1885. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. McLeod, Generals Lake, Taylor, and Maclagan, Colonel Martin, and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is slightly older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its always having been under-staffed. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (occupied 1850), Haidarabad (1856), and Sukkur (1859) on the Indus.

The diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877. The Right Rev. H. B. Durrant, formerly a C.M.S. missionary, is the present bishop.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

There are five sections of the Mission: in the Punjab, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, and Sindh.

I. Of the sixteen stations in the Punjab, fourteen are in the plains, namely, in the Lahore mission district, Lahore, Multan, Clarkabad, Pattoki, Batemanabad, Gojra, Montgomerywala, and Toba Tek Singh, the last four of these being in the Chenab Colony; and in the Amritsar mission district, Amritsar, Asrapur, Batala, Ajnala, Tarn Taran, and Narowal; while two, Simla and Kotgur, are in the Himalayas.

Educational work is carried on by means of a divinity school at Lahore; the Bishop Lefroy Training School for village workers at Clarkabad; boys' high schools at Amritsar, Batala (Baring School for Christians and A.L.O.E. School for non-Christians), and Narowal; Anglo-vernacular middle schools for boys at Bahawalpur, Fathgarh, Majitha, and Kotgur; and a vernacular middle boarding school, with training classes for primary school teachers, at Clarkabad. For girls there are Kinnaird College at Lahore, in the work of which the C.M.S. co-operates; the Alexandra High School and a middle-class boarding school (with a normal class) at Amritsar; and a large boarding school for village girls at Clarkabad; these schools are mainly for Christians. At Lahore there are also a widows' home and a hostel for Christian women teachers.

Medical work is represented by a hospital at Amritsar, with affiliated dispensaries at Narowal, Jandiala, etc.; a leper hospital at Tarn Taran, belonging to the Government, but superintended by C.M.S. missionaries; and a women's hospital at Multan. Some medical work is also carried on at Montgomerywala, Kotgur, Dera Ghazi Khan, and Sakhi Sarwar.

Considerable bodies of Indian Christians are found in many villages in the neighbourhood of Amritsar, Narowal, Batala, Tarn Taran, Clarkabad, and Pattoki, and in the Chenab Colony. The pastoral care of these large and scattered communities is a serious problem.

II. The Society has two stations in Kashmir—Srinagar, the capital, and Islamabad, some thirty miles higher up the Jhelum River to the south-east.

At the former there are a high school for boys, with a branch school at Islamabad; a general hospital; and a leper asylum supported by the Kashmir Government, but managed by the Society's missionaries. There is also a women's hospital at Islamabad.

III. At each of the three strategic points occupied by the Society in the North-West Frontier Province, namely, Peshawar, Bannu, and Dera Ismail Khan, at the entrances to the several passes into Afghanistan, a hospital is maintained, by means of which many members of the wild frontier tribes are influenced. Branch hospitals and dispensaries are also carried on at outlying places.

There are the Edwardes College and High School at Peshawar, and high schools also at Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan.

IV. There is a hospital at Quetta, the Society's only station in Baluchistan.

V. Karachi, Haidarabad, and Sukkur, three important centres, are the stations in Sindh. At the first named there are a high school and a bookshop. A temporary hospital, chiefly for ophthalmic work, is open at Shikarpur for a few weeks during the winter months.

The C.E.Z.M.S. carries on women's work at Amritsar, Ajnala, Asrapur, Batala, Tarn Taran, Narowal, Srinagar, Peshawar, Dera Ismail Khan, Quetta, Karachi, Haidarabad, Sukkur, etc. It is responsible for hospitals at most of these stations, and educational work at many of them, notably Amritsar and Karachi.

The staff of the Mission consists of 31 foreign and 24 Indian clergymen, 12 foreign laymen, 39 wives of missionaries, and 37 other women missionaries; 11 of the above are doctors and 13 are trained nurses. In addition there are 596 Indian Christian lay agents on the staff of the Mission.

The following are the members of the Punjab Corresponding Committee for 1921: The Bishop of Lahore, Mr. W. H. L. Church, Mr. W. S. Dorman, P.W.D., Mr. H. Harcourt, Mr. E. Tydeman, Col. Cusaik Walton, the Revs. A. C. Clarke, Canon E. Guilford, P. Ireland Jones, and C. M. Gough (secretary). The corresponding committee, however, deals only with personal matters affecting the foreign missionaries. The local governing body of the Mission is the executive committee of the Central Mission Council, which consists of the members of the corresponding committee, the secretary of the medical conference, eight foreigners or Indians elected from the district mission councils, two missionaries of the Society, and two of the C.E.Z.M.S.

SPECIAL difficulty was experienced in the Punjab Mission in 1920, partly owing to paucity of staff, which it shared with other Missions, but specially from the after-effects of the disturbance of 1919, which made the Punjab the storm centre of India. The annual letters show that, while town and village work in some places, as Amritsar and Peshawar, was hindered by political agitation or military activities, yet the normal friendly feeling was being restored to a considerable extent as the new legislation took effect and the Provincial Council settled down to its work and realized the problems and responsibility of government. Not a little in the way of evangelization goes on through channels other than missionary; in fact non-Christians themselves are spreading Christian ideas. In Kashmir, a Hindu acts as an interpreter in preaching the Gospel to the lepers of the asylum. In Multan, the head master of the Arya Samaj school asks the missionary to recommend Christian books for his school library, a request followed by a long and interesting discussion. In Karachi, the Brahmo Samaj holds an annual convention for the deepening of spiritual life at which a special opportunity is given for representatives of other religions to deliver their message. An invitation reached the Rev. J. F. Snee to represent the Christians at this gathering, and he was allowed to put the Gospel quite plainly, "while Hindus, Sikhs, Arya Samajis, Moslems, Bahais from Persia, and others too, listened appreciatively to the claims of Christ as vindicated by experience." The Khilafat [1] agitation, of which the frontier missionaries have a good deal to tell, emphasizes the scantiness of references to work among Moslems, who form so large a part of the population of the Punjab and politically have been so much to the fore. The fact is that, in the present condition of staff and with the urgent demands

Non-Christians spreading Christian ideas

[1] What in England is known as the Caliphate or headship of the Moslem world, claimed by the sultans of Turkey, is known in India by the Arabic name Khilafat. The form, Khalifat, is also used in the Nearer East.

of ever-increasing mass movements, evangelization among Moslems has perforce been much neglected, though notes of work among them are not entirely absent. The Indian Christian community of the Punjab are represented in the new Legislative Council by Mr. K. L. Rallia Ram, E.A.C., a son of the late Mr. Rallia Ram, a Christian pleader of the Chief Court and a member of the Amritsar Church.

Lahore

THE PUNJAB.—St. John's Divinity School had six students, two of them reading for deacon's orders; one of these was ordained in Lent and the other in Advent. The jubilee of the opening of the school by the Rev. T. Valpy French, afterwards first Bishop of Lahore, was commemorated on November 21.[1] Services were held on the Sunday, and the next day a reunion of friends and students was held in the divinity school garden. The principal, the Rev. F. Lawrence, writes of the occasion as one for heart-searching, seeing that there were at that time only two students in the school (one from the Punjab and the other from the United Provinces), while the divinity school at Allahabad was closed, as also was the Lefroy Training School for village preachers at Clarkabad. The Rev. Khair Ullah, Indian lecturer, gave himself largely to evangelizing by the circulation of literature. Another literature worker was Canon Ali Bakhsh, who, as editorial assistant for the Punjab Religious Tract Society, helped in the composition and translation of various works. He also engaged in evangelistic work in co-operation with members of the Presbyterian Mission, and found great openings. Canon Ali Bakhsh writes that since the Khilafat agitation, "new opinions and new sects are springing up among Moslems, and their faith seems to be rather shaken . . . an opportunity for Christians." The Rev. K. N. Dina Nath reports improvement in the finance of the Christian congregation; there are a number of well-to-do Christians, including retired government officials, now settled in Lahore.

Miss F. Sohan Lal, who superintends the Christian women's hostel for students attending the government normal school and other institutions, reports that the hostel is fuller than ever, and that the spirit and behaviour of the students has greatly improved. "They take pleasure in daily and Sunday worship and classes." Another contribution being made by the C.M.S. to women's education is the appointment of Miss D. M. Honeybourne as a teacher in the Union College for Women, which has grown out of the Kinnaird High School of the Z.B.M.M. in Lahore. Of twenty-two resident students, seventeen were Christians, the rest Hindu; altogether there were thirty-seven students, of whom twenty-two were Christian, fourteen Hindu, and one Mohammedan. One of the women gained the university gold medal for Urdu, and another that for English; the latter also won a university scholarship.

A different kind of work among women is that carried on by Mrs. E. Inglis in behalf of the fluctuating Christian population which frequents Lahore as a centre of employment, and often presents difficult problems of discipline and rescue work. Mrs. Inglis reports an increase of inmates in the women's home, which receives any Christian woman or girl who needs protection and guidance, and in some cases non-Christians also. Three of these inmates were village workers who had gone wrong. A daughter of a princess of Bokhara and of a shahzada (prince) of Kabul was in the home, and she seemed to be learning something of the Christian life. Most of these women attended a hosiery school, which was a great help in re-establishing them by equipping them with a useful industry. A number of girls came from the Benares orphanage to be trained for six months in Punjabi surroundings; they were afterwards married to workers in the villages, where there is a scarcity of Christian girls.

Multan

At Multan the women's hospital was hindered in its work by an outbreak of plague. The Indian civil surgeon was always very willing to help in difficult cases. The patients were friendly and interested. Dr. Khair-ud-din, after thirty years of faithful work at the isolated branch hospital of Sakhi Sarwar, feels that he must soon retire, and there appears to be no one available to maintain the work there, though it has not been unfruitful. At the high school, which it has been found necessary to close for financial reasons, great interest was shown by the boys in biblical instruction. At Bahawalpur, the Rev. T. M. Lazarus, the head master of the middle school, continued to evangelize by means of tracts and handbills and private talks, as public preaching is forbidden by the laws of the State.

Clarkabad

At Clarkabad compulsory education of children is in force among the 1250 Christians. A small workshop was opened in connexion with the boys' school to advance industrial training. There are about sixty boarders in the Christian hostel. The boys while in the school are taught nature study and kitchen gardening and to cook their own food. A visit from Sadhu Sundar Singh was a great inspiration to the people and the workers.

Chenab Colony

At the important centre of Gojra, on the line which carries the produce of the great corn-growing Chenab Colony to Karachi, the Rev. W. P. Hares found the work to be of central importance. On his arrival in 1917, there was a good deal of irritation and factiousness among the Christians owing to disappointment at not getting more land and help in lawsuits; some had gone over to the Roman Catholics, others to the Salvation Army. Since that time matters have improved considerably and the free-will offerings of the people have increased from Rs 530 in 1916 to Rs 2552 in 1920. These sums are in addition to the offerings of the villages of Montgomerywala and Batemanabad. Some new buildings, erected by the help of friends in Yorkshire, are of the greatest help. At Pattoki, there are 2000 Christian adherents scattered in 117 villages, almost half of them being catechumens. During the year 158 were baptized. Village education is much behindhand, with only two schools for the population referred to. People are eager to be taught, but the difficulty of overtaking the work is great. The dispensaries in the Chenab Colony have been closed for lack of workers.

Amritsar

At Amritsar, the mother station of the whole Mission, it was, for the time being, almost impossible to carry on the work of evangelization in the ordinary way, owing to the prejudice of the people against Christianity as being the religion of the Government which they had been taught to dislike. The boys' high school suffered much from the Khilafat agitation, by reason of which many Mohammedan parents withdrew their boys. The number sank to half the former average, which meant a great financial loss to the school. The Rev. D. J. McKenzie thinks "that the deepening opposition has bound the Christians together." Compensation claims on account of the riots of April, 1919, have been paid, and the book depot, preaching hall, and pastor's residence were approaching completion. The Rev. A. I. Kay writes:—

> The bitter feelings of many have been directed, not merely against Europeans, but often against Indian Christians as well; thus great caution has been necessary, and bazaar preaching has often been out of the question. However, preaching outside our ruined church was carried on for several months and was remarkable for the reverent attitude of the crowds which gathered.

A new movement towards Christianity sprang up in the villages north of Amritsar, but the forces available were inadequate to deal with it. Mr. McKenzie also refers to his work among the Christian congregation in Simla during the summer, and writes that St. Thomas's Church is now free from debt. The Viceroy and Commander-in-Chief, with other officials and friends, attended the anniversary services.

The Rev. A. I. Kay found chaplaincy work a considerable addition to his labours, but very useful in bringing Indians and Europeans together and in keeping touch with English-speaking Indian Christians who preferred English services to those in the vernacular. The Rev. J. Singh writes of three Mohammedan inquirers, of whom one was afterwards baptized in Lahore, and another was imam (leader in worship) of a mosque. The Alexandra

High School opened with almost full numbers after a break of five months and a half, though Gurkha troops were still encamped just outside the compound. There and elsewhere the shaping of the curriculum to suit new conditions is complicated by the demand among Indian Christians for English education, although it is expected that under the new educational regime the vernacular will be much more cultivated than hitherto. At Jandiala, the Rev. M. Roshan Khan added to his work among the villages the endeavour to evangelize through articles in newspapers. He writes that "the Most Rev. the Bishop of the Christian Sanyasi Mission" has expressed appreciation; but he adds that this "bishop and his adherents have not yet made themselves known to the public," and he wonders what will happen when they do so. In the Asrapur district several new villages were occupied, seventy-two persons baptized, and forty-three confirmed. Originally a little mission settlement, Asrapur has now a post office and shops of its own, and a Sunday congregation of about 120.

Batala

The Rev. A. E. Day writes about Batala:—

> The number of Christians is increasing slowly, chiefly from among catechumens who have been under instru for a long time. The need for building up the Church is very great, and other missions have intervened and taken over sundry congregations. A most urgent need is that of the training of new teachers.

The Gurdaspur district athletic tournament, which was held at the Baring High School, provided an opportunity for evangelism, as the non-Christian boys crowded into the school chapel at the evening service after sports were over and listened attentively to gospel addresses by the venerable house-master. The prize-giving in March was the first after an abstention of four or five years owing to the war. It was presided over by Mr. I. C. Lal, a retired Indian civilian, one of the earliest pupils of the school; and he spoke of his success in life as resulting very largely from the training received there. Of two nominations for the Indian Civil Service recently made by the Lieutenant-Governor one was an old Baringian, who has now gone to England for training, the son of a much respected Christian lawyer. The A.L.O.E. High School, under its able Indian master, Mr. B. M. Sarkar, prospered during the year.

Fathgarh

Work among non-Christians round Fathgarh was hampered by political disturbances, but singing parties of Christian young men gave effective assistance in preaching expeditions.

Tarn Taran

At Tarn Taran Miss L. Claydon helped in village work among the fifty villages where there are Christians. She and the Bible woman planned a short tour in the cold weather, but were prevented from making it. The house which they were to have made their centre was attacked and burnt by robbers; but the women in the villages were as friendly as ever.

Narowal

The Bishop of Lahore on his visit to Narowal in November confirmed 185 persons, of whom only forty-five were women. About sixty others who had been prepared were unable to be present, owing to work at the busy season of the year. The high school and its hostel suffered in attendance owing to political difficulties, and the Christian boys' boarding house was not full. The Rev. C. L. Richards writes that as he was entering a certain village, Mohammedans who were just leaving after their mid-day prayers asked him to address them, and listened to him attentively for more than an hour under a tree hard by. The offertories at the spring harvest thanksgiving amounted to Rs 900 against Rs 650 the previous year. With the permission of the Bishop a government licence was taken out for one of the catechists to celebrate marriages. At seasons when weddings are customary, especially in springtime, it is almost impossible for the one or two available clergy to overtake them, and the result is seen in illicit unions, either by a Mohammedan mullah or without any religious ceremony. The Rev. R. M. Waiz composed a series of Christian hymns, giving a versified account of the teaching and life of Christ. These form a useful addition to the very popular Punjabi metrical version of the Psalms, into the singing of which the villagers are apt to infuse a good deal of the Old Testament spirit of uttering imprecations on their enemies.

Srinagar

KASHMIR.—The lamented death of Dr. Arthur Neve, recorded last year, has weakened the work in Kashmir, which from the beginning has had great difficulties to contend with and few conversions to cheer the workers. Dr. Ernest Neve notices that "the attitude of the Mohammedan hierarchy is very friendly . . . the state officials also are favourably disposed." The work of the Srinagar high school is spreading the leaven of the Gospel. On the shores of the Wular Lake, the Rev. F. E. Lucey met one of the old boys of the school, a Mohammedan, who carried with him the Acts and the Epistles. He had found a mission school in his village started by the "Central Asian Mission," and as there was no one to teach Scripture, he had been doing so on his own account. In the school hostel there were a Mohammedan from Gilgit and a Ladakhi Christian, reading in the college for their B.A., three Punjabi Christians, two other Mohammedans, and one small Hindu boy, a waif supported by the school; six other Ladakhi Christians were reading in the school and two learning at the technical institute. The influence of the school is extending far afield. Mr. Lucey writes:—

> In the spring we received a visit from the Maharajah of Mysore. He was so much impressed with what he saw that he asked the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe to send him some one to start the same system in his school at Mysore. Accordingly, S. Bakkal, the convert who did so well for the Y.M.C.A. in France and Palestine during the war, has gone to Mysore. There he has a perfectly free hand and the full support of the State in his efforts to set the Maharajah's school running along our lines.

A Kashmiri law-member of the Viceroy's Legislative Council, who visited the school, showed his approval by the endowment of a scholarship. "A motto hanging in the office: 'Honesty is the best policy, but not in Kashmir,' met with his hearty endorsement and approval." Prince Hari Singh, the heir to the throne, also visited the school and showed great interest. The friendliness of the state authorities has not yet resulted in any increased grant-in-aid, and Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe has the great burden of raising over £1400 a year to keep the school going. At the Islamabad branch school, thirty miles west of Srinagar, the Hindu master kept up Christian teaching during the absence of Miss A. L. Coverdale on furlough.

Peshawar

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.—At Peshawar, despite the unrest, several inquirers were receiving instruction. "A large number of muhajirin (i.e. refugees on their way back from Afghanistan) passed through this city shouting loudly: 'God is great.'" These peasants had been moved by their mullahs and other agitators to flee from the territory of an infidel Government which was said to be oppressing the Turkish Caliph and to make their home in Afghanistan, the land of the faithful. They sold their lands and other property at a ruinous price, not without ready assistance on the part of the Hindu money-lender, and crossed the frontier cursing the British Government. A few months later the bulk of them returned, cursing the mullahs and others who had misled them, but found themselves kindly received and helped in regaining their property by their infidel rulers. After the much-regretted departure of the Rev. T. Bomford in April, the Rev. A. C. Clarke carried on the work of the Edwardes College single-handed. He writes that Mr. Bomford's "ten years' professorship will never be forgotten by his students." They greatly appreciated his wide and accurate knowledge of history, and loved his scripture teaching. The college did well in university examinations and, notwithstanding the unrest, it maintained its character for loyalty and disciplined behaviour. The students when unsettled by Khilafat agitators were given leave to go home and consult their parents as to further attendance, and all but two returned. Christian congregations from among the low castes are making real progress, both in Peshawar and Jamrud. The hospital work was much interrupted by the Hijrat agitation (for flight to Afghanistan), but the fiasco of it brought about a revulsion of feeling. "The feeling of the people has greatly changed towards Christianity, and if only you could flood the Frontier with missionaries, a great opportunity might be seized."

Bannu

The Rev. M. E. Wigram, on his return to Bannu, found it a great military camp under the administration of the commandant; the hospital was just being handed back to the Mission after long use as a military unit. The district was still unsettled and unsafe. Burglaries frequently occurred in and about the town. "A hole was cut through the city wall and four Hindu children carried off from a house a hundred yards up the road." Owing to fear of raiders the boarders in the hostel were few, but the influx of Christians owing to military operations enlarged the congregation. Mr. Wigram carried on Sunday services and other ministrations for the English community, and Mrs. Wigram was responsible, single-handed, for the hospital.

Quetta

BALUCHISTAN.—The Rev. A. E. Ball, of Quetta, was engaged in Sindhi Bible revision work. He writes that much care was exercised in the matter of baptisms from among the low-caste inquirers. There was a case of apostasy to Islam, but there were also returns of lapsed Christians.

Karachi

SINDH.—The work of the Sindh Mission was at a low ebb owing to depletion of staff. At Karachi it was only kept up by transferring two missionaries from the Punjab villages, both of whom were acutely needed there and were unacquainted with the local vernaculars (Sindhi and Gujerati). The school, however, was kept going and the congregations gave liberally towards church repairs. At Karachi, the sale of land acquired by the Mission when almost valueless has been a substantial help to the Society's funds.

Haidarabad

The Rev. D. S. Harper reports from Haidarabad that the town congregation consists of about 120 persons, while some 400 are scattered over a district 200 miles in length. Mr. Harper took part in Sindhi biblical translation—the revision of Genesis and the Psalms—and, owing to the very serious and long-continued illness of his Sindhi colleague, the Rev. T. Mansukhani, he was also responsible for the work at Sukkur. For all this he had only one helper. While thus "the Sindhi Mission personnel has gradually dwindled and is now at vanishing point," the work is opening out as never before. "Inquirers are coming in on every hand, some of them of good class and educated, and such as have to be taught by myself, or they will disappear." Government has granted upwards of 3500 acres of newly irrigated land for a hundred small-holders, mainly demobilized soldiers of the 71st (Christian) regiment, on a location fifty miles east of Haidarabad. For the settlement of these new colonists an agricultural co-operative society (under government supervision) is being started, with authority to borrow capital, and arrangements are being made for their spiritual care. Much prayer is needed for this hopeful but difficult venture.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later still that any effort was made for the evangelization of its inhabitants. The first Protestant missionaries, agents of the American Board of Foreign Missions, arrived in 1813. It was in 1820 that C.M.S. work was inaugurated in Bombay by the Rev. Richard Kenney. The operations of the Society in that city have been very limited, but in 1832 the work was extended to Nasik; Malegam was occupied in 1848; Aurangabad, 1860; Poona, 1882; and Manmad, 1901. For work among the Bhils, an aboriginal tribe, Kherwara was occupied in 1880, and Biladia and Lusadia in 1901.

The diocese of Bombay was formed in 1835. The present bishop is Dr. Palmer, who was consecrated in 1908.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Eight stations are occupied in the Western India Mission by foreign missionaries, of whom there are 13 clergymen, 11 wives and 15 other women (one of them a doctor), on the list.

I. In connexion with work among Hindus and Mohammedans the institutions consist of the Robert Money School for boys and Emmanuel School, a high school for Christian girls, and a converts' home in Bombay; at Poona to the south-east, a divinity school, a union high school in which the C.M.S. combines with other societies, and St. Helena's School, a high school for Parsi girls; and at Sinnar, south-east of Nasik, a middle school for boys. At Sharanpur, a Christian village outside Nasik, there are orphanages and a middle school, as also at Aurangabad, about a hundred miles east of Nasik. Special efforts are made to reach Mohammedans in Bombay and elsewhere; and itinerating work is carried on from Bombay and some of the other stations. Decided movements towards Christianity are in progress in some parts of the Mission, notably in the Aurangabad district. The Z.B.M.M., which has stations at Bombay, Manmad, Nasik, Panchgani, and Sholapur, does most of the work among the women, but the C.M.S., besides the girls' schools mentioned, has some zenana work at Aurangabad. The Indian clergymen, 17 in number, are responsible for the oversight of most of the 9392 Indian Christians. There are also 201 Indian Christian lay agents.

II. Efforts to reach the Bhils are still on a comparatively small scale. There are the Thompson Memorial School and an orphanage for boys at Kherwara, and an orphanage for girls at Lusadia, at which station catechists are trained and medical work is carried on. There are no Indian ordained pastors in the section of the Mission, but 29 Indian Christian lay agents are employed.

The following are the members of the Bombay Corresponding Committee for 1921: the Bishop of Bombay, Mr. A. H. S. Aston, Mr. D. S. Campbell, Mr. C. C. Fowler, Mr. H. F. Lodge, Dr. A. Lankester, and the Revs. Canon Kenelly, Canon D. L. Joshi, C. W. Thorne, W. C. Whiteside, and H. J. Lane Smith (secretary).

THE year 1920 was the centenary of the Western India Mission. Despite famine upon famine, with the intervention of only one good harvest, work in the villages continued to expand, and also the congregations in the town centres. Reports from this Mission, as also from the Central Provinces, show that Tamil Christianity has overflowed into other parts of India, and regular ministrations to Tamil-speaking Christians are a feature of the work. A less welcome one is the activity of the sect of Seventh Day Adventists, from America. The distinctive feature of their creed is that Christians must literally obey the fourth commandment by observing Saturday as the day of rest, and that until this is done Christ cannot come. The mission is said to be well provided with funds, and is known among the Indian Christians as the "Saturday mission."

Bombay

BOMBAY, ETC.—The effects of the non-co-operation movement were noticed in the Robert Money School in Bombay, and the Rev. H. W. Lea-Wilson writes that recent disturbances at the well-known Wilson College, of the United Free Church of Scotland Mission, have brought to the front the question of attendance at scripture classes in mission schools and colleges. He adds:—

> There is very little feeling against the teaching of the Bible as such. Less than a year ago a Hindu parent wrote to me saying that he noticed that his boy had done well in all subjects but scripture. Would I kindly see that he got special coaching in this? . . . Christianity is being avoided because it is the religion of the Englishman. . . . Opposition to Christianity and Christian people does not always mean opposition to Christ: Christ is being quoted against us, and the very language of the Bible is often used by objectors.

In some places public preaching was disturbed by non-co-operators. Girl Guides, of whom there is a patrol in the Emmanuel Girls' School, helped effectively with work in the telegraph office during the postal and telegraph strike. "As a rule they did a four hours' shift after school in the afternoon and were most keen about it; they were well spoken of for the thorough and whole-hearted way in which they worked."

The Rev. H. J. Lane Smith, the secretary of the Mission, appeals for more English clergy, and adds: "We have the money here to pay for several, as some of the interest on the money received for sale of property is designed to be used for this purpose." It is interesting to notice that the mass movement has spread into Bombay itself. Of the districts of Byculla and Mazagaon, the Rev. D. A. Yardi writes:—

> Here we have two large colonies of members which are being added to daily, owing to famine conditions in some parts of the Deccan. . . . Since March we have had thirty baptisms, and there are about thirty-five under instruction; most of these people are employed as day labourers.

They are ready to support their own worship and also a hostel which has been started for their benefit and has seventeen inmates. These people belong to the Mahars, a caste which is endeavouring to gain recognition from Government as an independent community; their leader is a Hindu, but he openly advises the people to embrace Christianity. Owing to the pressure of scarcity and high prices, the Co-operative Credit Society in Mr. Yardi's district, and others elsewhere, found it very difficult to realize loans.

The Church in Western India has suffered a great loss in the death of Mr. L. L. Joshi, M.D., brother of Canon D. L. Joshi, at the early age of 39. Dr. Joshi for nine years was analyst to the Bombay municipality, and made notable contributions to research, especially on the milk question. "His integrity, outspokenness, and thoroughness have left their mark on his fellow Christians." Canon Joshi writes that the two Bombay congregations now number about 1000, and that, in addition to their contributions for other church expenses, they paid some Rs 1500 for the pastorate work and Rs 2500 for evangelism. Among the Marathas, fifty-two adults were baptized; also two Mohammedans. Twenty-two of these baptisms were in connexion with the converts' home. Canon Joshi is sending out his "fishers" from the head-quarters in Bombay to different parts of the diocese to give help in evangelization. These activities called forth a reaction on the part of the Hindu Missionary Society, which staged a drama about the work of the converts' home, introducing Canon Joshi as a busy propagandist who eventually sees the error of his ways and returns to Hinduism. The work among Christians at various centres on the railway lines is of increasing importance. At Bhusawal it is maintained by an honorary lay pastor.

Poona, etc.

In Poona itself, "596 Christians with 323 catechumens contributed Rs 2558." The members of the congregation are, for the most part, independent of the Mission. The Tamil congregation, under the Rev. I. Y. Yesudian, grew to the number of 500, belonging to various denominations, whose differences made the position of the pastor somewhat difficult. At Kamset, which is visited monthly by the Rev. S. S. Suryawanshi, the congregation is greatly helped by Miss Campbell, "a retired Z.B.M.M. missionary, who lives there with her adopted Indian sons." Caste people come to her for medical advice, and the baptism of a Christian infant in the presence of a number of Hindus greatly impressed them. The government factory officers speak well of the work and character of Christians employed under them. A Christian, Dr. Y. T. Jadhav, is in charge of a hospital at Ghorpuri; a weekly prayer meeting is held in his house. The title, "Rao Sahib," has been bestowed on him by Government in recognition of his military services. The work of the converts' home was of use, but some of those baptized were won back by the local Hindu Missionary Society. The young men's hostel has been recently reopened and is quite full. Poona was crowded during the year with army officers and clerks from all parts of India, who had seen service in various theatres of war. Mr. Suryawanshi visited the Punjabi Christian regiments quartered at and near Poona. The Union High School was in difficulties owing to lack of funds and suitable buildings, and a decision to close it has since been reached with regret.

Nasik

At Nasik, the Rev. J. H. Robinson noted growth in independence among the Indian Christians. There was also a tendency to overemphasize the purely human and social aspect of Christ and His teaching, as compared with the spiritual aspect, and "even destructive critical forces are in evidence in some quarters, so that the very person of Christ is assailed." But Mr. Robinson adds:—

> We see what tremendous influence the preaching of the Gospel has had in setting up a different standard of life, combating gross forms of idolatry, bringing before people a more spiritual idea of religion as well as . . . the leading of souls into the Kingdom of God, with lives transformed and sanctified.

Evangelistic work was inadequate, but the sale of 4000 gospels exceeded all records. At one large fair held in Holy Week, 774 were sold by two masters and three boys of the school. "I saw one man who had bought a copy of St. John's Gospel, sitting down and reading it to fifteen others." The Rev. D. P. K. Shindé writes of work done at the great Hindu festival of Simvast, in July. The rush of people with which it began afterwards dwindled. Mr. Shindé thinks this was in consequence of a decay of belief in the virtue of the shrine. "Among the many pilgrims we found some who already had considerable knowledge of Christian truth, and such men received us and our message with great cordiality." On account of the inquirers who came forward, a converts' home was started, and nine persons were baptized from among the higher castes, one being a Brahman and another of the warrior caste. These conversions aroused not a little opposition and Christian preachers were roughly handled. A religious congress was held by the Hindus in order to adapt their customs to the new conditions and prevent such conversions. Complaints were made against "forcible" Bible teaching in St. George's High School, and there were threats of a strike against Bible teaching, but discipline has so far been well maintained. The school has 250 boys and is mainly self-supporting. There is no proper church as yet for the growing Christian congregation, nor any regular pastor. Mr. Shindé's position as vice-president of the municipality of Nasik and president of the local board gave useful opportunities of talking with Indian fellow-countrymen and of service to the people. Describing their misconceptions, he writes: "We Indian Christians are looked upon as part of the British Government." The financial difficulties of the Indian agents, owing to the high prices, were great. The work among the village congregations, of which there are six, was greatly impeded by scarcity, which caused many to migrate, leaving behind them the old and infirm, with widows and orphans who were sorely in need of help. The railway congregations at Manmad, Bhusawal, and Nandgaon numbered some 500 persons. Sixty-three adults were baptized during the year. These congregations are self-supporting; but famine conditions in the district were distressing.

The village work in the north-west corner of the Nizam's dominions was severely tried by famine, but continued nevertheless to develop. The Rev. H. T. Vodden writes :— Aurangabad

There are manifold signs that within a comparatively short time the whole of the Mangs (among whom our work chiefly lies) will become Christian. This tribe is reckoned at 700,000, but not all of them are in this district.

Mr. Vodden tells us that the movement among the Mahars is also on the increase. This is a much larger tribe, numbering 3,342,000, and extending beyond the limits of Western India.

The effect of Christianity among the outcastes is having stirring results among the farmer class. These people, the true Marathas, are the backbone of the community. They are seeing that the hitherto despised outcaste, when a Christian, is leading a life which is clearly more healthy, happy, and contented than their own. Consequently, our pastors and workers everywhere find Marathas coming to them—some secretly, some openly—for information about Christianity. Some have been baptized and many are turning slowly but surely towards Christ.

Notwithstanding famine, when harvest thanksgiving offerings were collected in the autumn of 1919 " the people themselves suggested that twenty-five per cent of all the money so given, should be sent to the starving in Europe."

The numbers in the boarding school continue to increase. . . . It is significant that where a new school is opened, the farmers, and sometimes the Moslems send their children to be taught. . . . Had we the teachers available, I believe we could open Christian schools to which all children would come in every village in the district.

The Rev. S. Umap writes that " while the outcaste Christians are influencing non-Christians by their improvement in morality and in social status, converts are still often persecuted by their relatives or masters." Friction, which is common between Christians of different outcaste communities such as the Mangs and Mahars, was being overcome. Work among the Bhils also developed, chiefly through a Christian peasant of Hindu origin. Seventeen were baptized during the year in two places. In one case the baptisms were held near to the Hindu temple, so as to convince the people that no repulsive ceremonies were enacted at such a time. Bhil converts are outcasted by their own people. The Rev. S. S. Patole writes that in his district of 3000 square miles, there are about 2000 Christians, in ninety villages ; there, too, a movement among the Mahars and the Bhils was in progress, as also among the shepherds. The Rev. W. Wyatt writes of difficult times for the co-operative bank, and of a migration of village Christians on account of scarcity. Christian village lads who have been educated away from home seldom care to return to the place where their community is in a depressed condition any more than does the converted slum dweller in England.

Old boys from our schools are to be found all over the diocese, in all kinds of employment, as carpenters, clerks, teachers, labourers, etc. Many of them keep in touch with their villages but would never think of settling down there.

The need of industrial training in the schools is great. The Rev. S. Daniel carried on evangelistic work among Mohammedans in Aurangabad, and there is an Urdu-speaking congregation of thirty persons belonging to different denominations, but mostly Anglican. During the hartal (shop-closing) in March, 1920, the agitators threatened Mr. Daniel because his preaching hall was kept open while the shops were shut; this eventually gave an opening for friendly discussion before a large audience, followed by inquiry. The Rev. D. M. Dhivar found difficulty from the fact that Christians, owing to famine conditions, expected the Church to maintain them. He thinks that further baptisms should be postponed till the famine is past. The central girls' school, which has middle and primary departments and a roll of 300, was re-organized, and the children, who are mainly from the depressed classes, seemed to be keen and promising.

BHIL MISSION.—As there was no training class in the C.M.S. Bhil Mission, two of the most promising catechists were sent to the divinity class of the Irish Presbyterian Mission at Ahmedabad, with the sanction of the bishop; but the lamented death of the principal of that institution caused its suspension, and the men had to return without completing their course. The Rev. C. L. Shaw writes: "It is forty years since the Bhil Mission was started, and we have not got a single Bhil Christian ordained yet." The moral life of the Church is generally low. The drink traffic is a great stumbling-block and its licensing by Government produces a lamentable impression.

Lusadia

At Lusadia there was a strike of the masters in the schools because the Mission was unable to raise their pay. After the schools had been closed for three months, the less efficient men were dismissed, and the pay of the others was raised. The girls' school was reopened with much enthusiasm after re-building, but owing to the apathy of the parents, attendance soon fell off.

Kherwara

There were scattered baptisms in the district, and at Kherwara, the Rev. J. I. Lea baptized in January seventeen converts from a neighbouring village, the result of work by Christian schoolmasters. Mr. Lea is honorary chaplain to the officers of the Bhil Corps at this place. Of the two missionaries who composed the staff, one had not yet passed his language examination, and the other was about to go on furlough; hence two stations remained unoccupied.

UNITED PROVINCES MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The Society's first agent in India was stationed in the United Provinces. He was an Indian, Abdul Masih, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, and he was placed at Agra, under Corrie's auspices, in 1813. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, and was the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Meerut was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad and Annfield, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; Muttra, 1878; and Hathras, 1915. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened as a high school by T. V. French (subsequently Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (subsequently Bishop of Waiapu, and afterwards in Persia). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused caused a great extension of its work. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its reconquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages were established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed for Oudh, of which Dr. G. H. Westcott is the present bishop. In 1903 another new diocese (Nagpur), with Dr. Eyre Chatterton as bishop, was formed, including the Central Provinces and Rajputana, and certain "assigned districts" of Haidarabad.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

I. The C.M.S. has ten chief stations in the province of Agra. They may be regarded as forming three groups, namely, Allahabad, Benares, and Gorakhpur, in the south-east of the province; Agra, Muttra, Aligarh, Bulandshahr, and Meerut, in the west; and Mussourie and Annfield, in the hills to the north-west.

The educational institutions include a divinity school and the Oxford and Cambridge Hostel for students at Allahabad; St. John's College and Collegiate School, with a number of hostels, at Agra; St. Andrew's College and High School at Gorakhpur; high schools for boys at Benares (Jay Narayan's School), Jaunpur, and Meerut; girls' middle and normal schools at Benares and Meerut; the Queen Victoria High School for Christian girls and St. John's Girls' School at Agra; and industrial schools at Benares and Sikandra; besides a number of middle and elementary schools. There are also district training schools in several districts where mass movements are in progress, to prepare outcaste converts and their wives to act as preacher-teachers. Itinerating is carried on among the numerous villages, notably those in the plains around Agra, Aligarh, Bulandshahr, and Meerut.

II. In the province of Oudh there are two stations, viz., Lucknow and Faizabad (which is under an Indian church council). A boys' high school is carried on at Lucknow, and also a school for purdah girls. Tours are made in the villages of the two districts.

Medical work in the Mission is almost entirely in the hands of the Z.B.M.M., which has hospitals at Benares, Jaunpur, Lucknow, and Patna, and also engages in women's work at Bulandshahr, Gorakhpur, etc., in close co-operation with the C.M.S. The latter society has women missionaries working in the zenanas at many of the stations.

The staff of the Mission consists of 26 foreign and 11 Indian clergymen, 5 laymen, 17 wives of missionaries, 34 single women, and 392 Indian Christian lay agents.

The following are the members of the Allahabad Corresponding Committee for 1921: The Bishop of Lucknow, Hon. Justice Sir G. E. Knox, Hon. Mr. Justice Piggott, Dr. Weir, Mr. W. D. P. Hill, Mr. T. H. Way, Miss D. J. Snelson, and the Revs. Canon A. W. Davies, Canon H. Menzies, A. J. Harvey, J. F. Pemberton, and J. N. Carpenter (secretary).

Village work

THE weakness of staff in this as in other Missions has affected village work severely, especially that among women. Miss M. H. Laurence, of Meerut, says that, during her necessary absence on furlough the Christian women in from thirty to forty villages were not visited even by a Bible woman. On her return Miss Laurence took up the work energetically. She finds that the general unrest is making itself felt in the villages, chiefly among the farmers and landlords; they think that the British raj is coming to an end, and meanwhile are doing their best to oppress the outcastes who depend on the help of foreigners. The chief educational centre for girls from the depressed classes is the boarding school at Jeyi, which now has fifty-seven names on the roll. In November, 1920, the head government inspectress reported that the training given to the girls was "very simple and intensely practical, and seems to be on exactly the right lines. The aim is to prepare the girls to lead useful lives in their village homes." This report was followed by a grant of Rs 50 per month, dating from the previous March. One of the girls passed the vernacular middle examination and is working as a teacher.

Inquirers and converts still have to suffer a good deal from their masters and caste people generally. Missionaries have great difficulty in getting land for the building of schools or prayer rooms, and the supply of transport for itineration is greatly restricted. The Rev. J. F. Pemberton mentions that the mass movement, to a considerable extent, springs from a desire to escape the oppression to which the outcastes, as such, are subject, and that the story of the deliverance of Israel in the Old Testament consequently appeals to them with very great force. A good deal of building was done in the villages, largely through the help of friends at home, but in addition to difficulties of site, those of construction were great, as contractors for such work were hard to get. It would seem that the movement towards Christianity is spreading among the Chamars, or leather workers, who are a step higher in the social scale than the sweepers. Canon J. S. C. Bannerjee mentions four villages in the Meerut district with a community of about seventy-five persons who asked for baptism and are gradually being prepared. The American Episcopal Methodists have baptized a considerable number near Hathras, and a movement is reported from Ghaziabad. In that district, some 430 persons were baptized between January and March by the Rev. L. C. Perfumi, assisted by the Indian pastor. A summer school for village Christians was held at Aligarh in May and June for six weeks, with good results. The missionary often has to act as amateur doctor when sickness is rife. During September and October the Rev. E. Fieldhouse, of Aligarh, dispensed among the villagers about ten pounds of quinine, which was furnished for the purpose by the civil surgeon. This would represent nearly 8000 ten-grain doses. The sweepers in the villages from which Christians come, will spend as much as £4 on incantations and sacrifices to drive away evil spirits, which shows that it is possible for them, despite their poverty, to contribute for religious purposes. Though their social position is extremely depressed, and they are excluded even from schools founded by the Arya Samaj, who profess to do away with caste, yet these same people act as exorcists for Brahmans. To do the work of visitation among groups so widely scattered Mr. Fieldhouse finds a motor-cycle indispensable.

Higher education

The Rev. J. F. Pemberton, of Meerut, convener of the mission education committee, writes that he " learnt much of the influence that our institutions are exerting as mission agencies . . . There is cause for much thankfulness as one realizes what a splendid work our educationalists are pursuing." But he mentions certain improvements which urgently need to be made: First, an augmentation of the European staff pending the provision of Indians who can take over, not only the actual teaching but also the maintenance of a spiritual atmosphere and Christian character; second, an increase of the Indian Christian element on the staff, which is far too largely non-Christian; third, a revision of method and system in religious instruction, too often relegated to teachers who have little training or fitness for the work. The industrial element of education, on which much stress has been laid by the Village Education Commission, is assuming increasing importance. Mr. J. McIntosh gave temporary help in the mission farm near Allahabad, worked under co-operative auspices. He had been much struck when in Mesopotamia by " the immense amount of work done for the troops by missionaries from India and the very great friendliness created through the daily and almost hourly contact with men of all races and creeds . . . The mere statement that I was with the troops awakens eager interest at once." He also writes of "the splendid work done by young Indian Christians in the war area, which has helped to fit them to take real leadership in the Churches and societies." The Rev. F. W. Hinton, at the Sikandra boarding school for Christians, did his best to realize a combination of industrial and literary training, and he hopes to get the school recognized as preparatory for the government carpentry school. There was still difficulty in persuading boys and parents that manual work is not inferior in dignity to literary work, but the half-time system was gradually finding acceptance. Political agitation affected the work of education and missions generally to some extent, but much less acutely than in the storm-centres of the Punjab. Aligarh high school was closed in May, 1920, on account of insufficiency of accommodation and staff. Mr. Gandhi and the Ali brothers visited Aligarh and endeavoured to upset the Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental College, but the Rev. W. V. K. Treanor writes:—

> So far, mission work has not been touched by their influence. . . . People are as pleasant and as courteous as ever. In fact I have been surprised at receiving a letter from the head master of the Arya Samaj high school here, asking me to come to their school a few times and talk English with the boys. A short time ago, an Arya Samaji would not have dreamed of putting himself under an obligation to a Christian missionary. I hope that we are at the beginning of better times.

The Rev. T. D. Sully, on his return from furlough to St. John's College, Agra, " was greatly struck with two things: the intense mental and political unsettlement, and the open personal friendliness " of the student community. He found them dissatisfied with the existing system of education and resentful against government action. The failure of Mr. Gandhi's effort to carry through non-co-operation as to education, Mr. Sully believes to be due " not to the wisdom or energy of opponents but . . . to unwillingness to rise to the point of actual sacrifice, and the restraining influence of parents and the social system." Missionary leaders will have to consider " not merely the place of educational institutions in the new university system, but their place in a new national life." As regards compulsory attendance at religious instruction, there is a tendency among students to settle the question by practical action without waiting for a conscience clause. Mr. Sully writes that he had " recently had several appeals from moderate and friendly leaders for a greater and more open co-operation in matters in which we can share a common aim," and he has all along enjoyed free and friendly intercourse with students on the staff. At the Oxford and Cambridge Hostel in Allahabad, the Rev. L. K. Morton had the assistance of two ex-students in place of a foreign sub-warden. The appointment of Indians in this capacity was well received by the students and they remained loyal to discipline.

As many as sixteen of the non-Christian students have been gathering for corporate prayer at the close of the day. At their own request several of them were allowed to conduct the prayers and did so with considerable reverence and earnestness.

The social life of the hostel was greatly helped by the presence of the principal's wife. During Mr. Gandhi's campaign, only two students left the hostel, both being somewhat uncertain as to examination prospects. The students have done well in the university and elsewhere. Some have become junior professors in the government college, four have gone to England for further training at government expense for the Indian Civil Service and the Forest Department, and other old students have received important government posts. Mr. R. C. Das, of St. John's College, Agra, found the plan of lending books from a religious literature depot to the students of scripture classes very useful; he believes that much more use might be made of Christian literature, both English and vernacular. Mr. Das found the weekly inter-mission meeting for prayer and discussion a source of inspiration and strength. He records the great esteem and affection felt by the Indian community for the late Miss V. H. Latham, whose work for the relief of suffering made a great impression upon the students. By leading them to realize the poverty of the people and the need of their service it did much to combat the spirit of selfishness which is too rife among the men. The Indian Church, Mr. Das fears, is weakened by the desire to get rather than to give. He believes that religious instruction should be unconditional, like the gift of eternal life, freely bestowed by God. The Agra branch of the National Missionary Society sent up Rs 500 last year, and Indian Christian associations are spreading throughout the country, their object being to represent the interests of the community as a whole.

Work among women

The chief centre of higher education for Christian girls is at Agra. The Queen Victoria High School, in that city, has now two Indian graduate women on its staff, and one ex-student is studying at St. John's College for her M.A. degree in philosophy. Missionary interest was maintained and on Friday afternoons, when possible, visits were paid to villages near by. In one such village the teachers and girls were begged to come oftener, and gospels were eagerly bought. Miss A. J. Nethercote, of Agra, writes that the Bible women find less demand in the zenanas than before for the teaching of reading and writing, but they still receive a kindly welcome in many homes, and there is reason to believe that there are many secret disciples. An Indian woman doctor came forward to prevent the closing of one of the girls' schools by providing five-sixths of the teacher's salary. The effect of Christian education and preaching among the people at large is illustrated by the case of a railway official met by Miss M. Stratton, of Muttra. He told her that he was the son of one of her first zenana mission pupils. This lady "used to read the Bible and pray with us for years and showed evidence of faith in Christ." The official in question was "reading from his mother's Bible, and would like to be a Christian. He has talks with Indian or English missionaries whenever he can get an opportunity." At the girls' normal school, Benares, which has the names of a hundred pupils on the roll, one pupil is the child of a Hindu merchant in Calcutta; she attends church and scripture lessons with the others, the only difference in her habits being that she eats no meat. A Hindu woman lately joined the training class connected with the school, having been brought by her husband who, though not a Christian, "had respect for our religion and wished his wife's mind opened to a larger outlook than most Indian women have."

Miss B. S. Fowler helped the relief corps of St. John's College by giving occupation to poor women in the city who were badly sweated by the baniyas (food merchants), and access was thus gained to many homes. Looking back to the beginning of her work in 1896, Miss Fowler realizes the large growth of the Indian community in numbers and in substance, and also the greater efficiency of workers as a whole. The old system by which Bible women gave elementary teaching in zenanas is fast passing away, and teachers are needed who will give English lessons in better-class homes and instruction in needle-work and the like to the poor, to help them earn their living. The attitude of the Moslem women appears to differ in the upper and lower districts of the Mission. At Aligarh, several influential families seemed ready to receive English ladies, and there were indications that a desire for English education was spreading among this class at Lucknow and elsewhere. On the other hand Miss M. I. Birkinshaw, of Benares, says that the Bible women were not being received favourably in Mohammedan zenanas, indicating perhaps a need for revised methods of work. At Muttra, during the great pilgrimage, which brings over 300,000 to the place, Miss Stratton noticed that "pardah is not much practised, and women of all castes may always be seen walking in the streets." The work of the dispensary in the city was greatly appreciated by the converts and the general public. Opportunities for the circulation of books were good. "One shopkeeper, in decorating his shop for the recent Festival of Lights, posted up on it eleven of our gospel leaflets, because he liked them so much." An old lame woman convert who came to Muttra as a pilgrim was baptized a few years ago; she now sells and distributes books and leaflets to people of the educated class, who take them gladly; another old Brahman lady, a convert from Bengal, preaches the Gospel to many from her little bungalow, just inside the city gate.

The amount of ministration to English congregations in the United Provinces was very considerable. At Allahabad, Trinity Church is in the civil lines, and the services were taken by the missionaries; at Mussourie, All Saints' Church was served by the Rev. G. W. Thompson, who deplores the isolation of Anglo-Indians from their Indian fellow-countrymen; the Rev. E. Fieldhouse was chaplain at Rasgany and Hathras; the Rev. J. F. Pemberton was visiting chaplain at Ghaziabad; and the Rev. P. E. Curtis found English ministrations much appreciated at Dehra Dun.

CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The Central Provinces of India, together with Rajputana and the other native States known as Central India, were formed into the diocese of Nagpur in 1903, the first bishop, Dr. Eyre Chatterton, being consecrated on March 25 of that year. The Society's work, which is carried on in the Central Provinces and Rajputana, was severed from that in the United Provinces and placed under a separate committee in the same year. Jabalpur, the oldest of the C.M.S. stations in the diocese, was occupied in 1855; Katni Murwara in 1899; and Bharatpur (in Rajputana) in 1902. Among the Gonds, Mandla (1879), Marpha (1892), Patpara (1897), and Deori (1909) are the stations.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Mission is carried on in three sections: among Hindus and Mohammedans in the Central Provinces (I) and also in Rajputana (II); and among the Gonds (III), an animistic people.

I and II. At Jabalpur and Katni Murwara, in the Central Provinces, and at Bharatpur, 300 miles from the former and within some thirty miles of Agra, but situated in Rajputana, the work is mainly among Hindus, and is carried on by means of a high school, a middle school, and two hostels at Jabalpur, and by vernacular schools and evangelistic efforts at all three stations. The women's work at Jabalpur and Katni Murwara is, for the most part, in the hands of missionaries of the C.E.Z.M.S.

III. The Gonds, an aboriginal tribe, are reached from Mandla (where there is also some work among Hindus), Patpara, Deori, and Marpha, which are in the Central Provinces and within about a hundred miles of Jabalpur. A training class for evangelists is held at Mandla, and there are a boys' middle school and hostels for boys and girls at Patpara.

The Society's staff comprises 5 foreign and 6 Indian clergymen, 1 layman, 6 missionaries' wives and 5 single women. The Indian Christian lay agents engaged in the Mission number 115.

The following are the members of the Jabalpur Corresponding Committee for 1921 : The Bishop of Nagpur, Archdeacon, F. W. Martin, Mr. C. C. Chitham, Miss C. A. Hall, Mr. A. I. Mayhew, Dr. J. Solomon, and the Revs. E. R. Clough, H. Samida, J. L. Wakeling, A. F. G. Wardell, and F. E. Keay (acting secretary).

Jabalpur

THE difficulties of the Central Provinces Mission have been greatly increased by the severe loss which it suffered by the death in September, 1920, of the Rev. J. A. F. Warren, whose return to work in the previous March was enthusiastically welcomed by his fellow missionaries. The Rev. F. E. Keay has since had a heavy task in keeping up the work of education at Jabalpur as well as that of the secretariat of the Mission. The high-school building was condemned by Government, and non-co-operation troubles disturbed school work a good deal, but the Christian influence of old boys was very marked. The parish school for Christian boys gave encouragement, though the poor lads were sorely tried by lack of clothing owing to their poverty. In the Christian boys' hostel numbers increased and a good spirit prevailed. In a zenana visited by Mrs. Keay, a nominal Hindu pupil gave a most impressive exposition of the gospel pictures. The Tamil Christians who are scattered over the town were cared for by the Rev. U. D. Theophilus, a Hindi-speaking priest. He managed to carry on the work in English, which most of the Tamils know, and a South Indian catechist read the service in their language. Many of the military employees were interested in Christianity, but frequent transference prevented a permanent impression. The young men's club, with about eighty members, both Christians and non-Christians, proved useful, and men of the educated classes in Jabalpur showed much friendliness, notwithstanding the political situation. The mission district measures about 7000 square miles in exent, and Mr. Keay invested his savings in a Ford car so as to get about more effectively, but lack of recruits left the work almost at breaking point. Eagerness to buy gospels was very manifest.

Schools

District

The Rev. M. Gideon has been appointed by the church council to work among the Christians and non-Christians at Bharatpur. Of the former there are some fifty connected with the Anglican communion as well as others. In response to the Bishop of Nagpur's appeal for Rs 10,000 from the diocese for missionary work, Rs 100 was raised by this congregation. Mr. Gideon found the Chamars, or leather workers, specially attentive. Two hundred gospel portions were sold in the course of visiting some twenty villages, and three converts from upper castes were baptized. Miss M. M. Crossley writes that among her zenana pupils there are wives and daughters of state officials and of military officers. It was possible to do a certain amount of work among the village women. In one place a shopkeeper helped the sale of books by setting them out in his shop, and the people generally were eager for literature. The Christian women, in response to the Bishop's appeal, held a missionary meeting which greatly helped the offerings of the Church, and the workers' Bible class sent over Rs 50 to the National Missionary Society.

Gond Mission

The Rev. W. Hodgkinson found a welcome in many Gond villages, and a good sale for gospels, notwithstanding the visits of non-co-operators who did their best to persuade the people to have no dealings with foreigners and to refrain from providing transport. Students and schoolboys were formed into a volunteer force to render assistance to non-co-operators. Mr. Hodgkinson acted as chaplain both at Mandla and Nainpur, and the English congregations contributed to C.M.S. funds. Owing to the smallness of staff, both foreign and Indian, operations were weak and results small.

Mandla

At Mandla, amateur medical relief was useful in promoting good feeling, and though evangelistic work was hindered, two men were baptized, one a teacher and the other a gardener. In the town, and also in the villages around, Miss E. E. Smyth found a readiness for teaching and for the sale of gospels.

Patpara

At Patpara the Caroline Fryer Memorial Girls' School, with thirty-six Christian girls, was taught by qualified and trained Gond women. An inspectress of schools, who paid a visit to the school, said that it was certainly the best she had seen in the province. The autumn harvest festival collection, amounting to about Rs 28, was sent to Bishop Molony, a former secretary of the Mission, for work in his diocese of Chekiang.

Marpha

The Rev. F. D. O. Roberts visited Marpha, and was warmly welcomed by the Christians, after a perilous journey. He acted as chaplain at Katni and at St. Paul's, Jabalpur.

Deori

At Deori a new church was completed. The agricultural farm was self-supporting, and bade fair to help in setting up Christian young men as farmers. Six lads were being trained there, and the Government has granted a qualified man to work an administration farm for the benefit of the people generally.

BENGAL AND BIHAR MISSION

PAST HISTORY

Before India was opened to missionaries, a corresponding committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which several government chaplains and influential laymen were members. Two English missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1819; Krishnagar (Nadiya) in 1831; Bhagalpur in 1850; Deoghar in 1912; and Kanchrapara in 1918. Purulia, in the diocese of Chota Nagpur, became a C.M.S. station in 1918. Work among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe in Bihar, was begun at Hiranpur in 1860; Taljhari was occupied in 1862; Godda in 1872; Bhagaya and Barharwa in 1878.

The see of Calcutta was formed in 1814, Dr. Middleton being the first occupant. Dr. Foss Westcott is the present bishop and Metropolitan of India.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Mission is divided into four sections, two in Bengal and two in Bihar.

I. In Calcutta and its suburbs there are a number of educational institutions, including the Henry Martyn Divinity College, a first grade arts college (St. Paul's), two high schools for boys (St. Paul's and Garden Reach), and a boarding school for Christian girls. Hostels are maintained in connexion with all of these, except Garden Reach School. Evangelistic work is carried on in several languages both in the city and district, and there are some half-dozen pastorates under a church council. There is also a mission station at Burdwan, seventy miles from Calcutta, in and around which town evangelistic work is maintained.

II. In the Nadiya district, with its large village population, Krishnagar, Chupra, Doyabari (Ranaghat), Bollobhpur, Kanchrapara, and Santirajpur are occupied by foreign missionaries. The last named is a centre from which itinerating work is maintained. Nine parishes are connected with the Nadiya Church Council.

A teachers' training school and boys' high school are found at Krishnagar, and a Christian boys' boarding school and an industrial school at Chupra, besides a number of vernacular schools at various places. There are also a couple of hostels. A medical mission is carried on at Doyabari, with separate hospitals for men and women.

III. At Bhagalpur, in Bihar, the institutions include a high school and Christian hostel for boys, a middle vernacular school for boys, a boys' orphanage, a dispensary, and a leper asylum; while at Jamalpur there is the Fraser Hostel for Indian Christian apprentices. There are a divinity class and a girls' boarding school with a normal class at Deoghar. A band of evangelists itinerates in the extensive district. At Purulia, the Society has undertaken charge of a large leper asylum on behalf of the Mission to Lepers.

IV. Work is carried on also among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe, in Santalia, which lies among the Rajmahal hills in Bihar, south of the Ganges, and also in a colony in British Bhutan north of the river. The pastoral care of the Christians is entrusted almost entirely to clergymen of their own race. The Society has boarding schools for boys at Taljhari and Godda, and one for girls at Barharwa. It is also responsible for the management of a training class for men at Taljhari, which is financed by the Government. At Godda there are hostels for Santals and for Paharis.

The women's evangelistic work, save in Santalia, is mainly in the hands of missionaries of the C.E.Z.M.S., which has stations at Calcutta, Burdwan, Baranagore, Barrackpur, Jamalpur, Krishnagar, etc.

There are 24 foreign clergymen engaged in the Mission, 6 laymen, 20 wives of missionaries, and 11 single women; 2 of the above are doctors, and 3 are nurses. The Indian workers consist of 29 clergymen and 470 Christian lay agents.

The following are the members of the Calcutta Mission Administrative Committee for 1921: The Bishop of Calcutta, Hon. Justice Walmsley, Mr. T. Ashton, Dr. P. D. Bose, Mr. J. C. Dutt, Mr. F. G. Hawkins, Mr. W. E. Pincombe, Mr. S. E. Roy, Mr. W. A. A. Wood, and the Revs. E. T. Butler, J. Godber, T. Lenman, A. G. Lockett, R. F. Pearce, N. H. Tubbs, and Canon E. T. Sandys (secretary).

Work among lepers

An interesting feature of the Mission was the activity of the work among the lepers in Bengal and Bihar. Mr. P. A. N. Sen writes of an All India Leper Conference, held in Calcutta in February, as a successful gathering to which the Governments of India and Bengal, as well as the various missions, sent their representatives. Hindus and Mohammedans also "are acknowledging their indebtedness to the Church by contributing their shares towards bringing happiness and comfort to these lepers year after year, through us." Seven baptisms of lepers took place in Calcutta during the year and several had to be put off. The care of untainted children yields encouraging results. For Bihar, there is a centre of leper work at Bhagalpur, with over 150 inmates, of whom forty are Christians, ten Mohammedans, and the rest Hindus. At Easter, eight were baptized and nine confirmed; the chapel services were usually attended by seventy or eighty. Even among these unfortunates, the unrest of India is said to be in evidence, but matters have quieted down. The leper asylum at Purulia is the largest in India. It had more than 800 inmates during the year, among whom no less than 247 received baptism, and the Rev. E. Cannon tells us that a large part of his time was spent on the instruction and preparation of these candidates. Special methods of treatment of the disease are being tested with beneficial effect, but they have not as yet resulted in complete cures.

Calcutta and Burdwan

BENGAL.—The Rev. R. F. Pearce, the acting secretary of the Mission, writes that, besides himself, "in Calcutta we have only three men missionaries—all engaged in higher education and of less than three years' standing." The three Calcutta congregations are advancing in self-support, and in the mission councils anti-British spirit and resentment of the presence of British missionaries are happily not in evidence, but evangelistic work "languishes for the lack of leaders, notably in the case of a large part of the Burdwan district containing the aristocracy of Bengal, among whom practically no work is being done at all." The village boarding schools for boys and girls "have a tremendous power in building up the character of the rank and file of the Indian Christian community. . . . Their maintenance is of the very first importance." The rise of prices and the poverty of the parents make their upkeep difficult. At the girls' boarding school, girl guides have become a popular institution; quite a number of them have gained badges for first aid, home nursing, and the like. "The guides helped to form a guard of honour when Lady Sinha was entertained by Indian ladies at the Ladies' Park." The Rev. R. C. Biswas writes that a mission, conducted at Cossipore by a South Indian brother, known as Tamil David, was helpful to the divinity college students (eight in number). Two of them were ordained deacons on St. Thomas's Day, 1919, and one was ordained priest in March, 1920. The present number of students is four. Mr. Biswas is secretary of the Scripture Union for Bengal, which has over 2000 members. St. Paul's College, Calcutta, had 150 resident students, and 93 others. The college was presented with a new library by the generosity of Mr. G. C. Ghosh, in memory of his son. "The opening ceremony was performed by H. E. the Governor of Bengal, and a large and representative gathering was present." A grant of Rs 10,000 was made by the Government towards equipment and books, and it is rapidly becoming one of the best college libraries in Calcutta. Examination results were satisfactory; "our Christian students on the whole did better this year than in past years, though considerably below the level of the average of our Hindu students. In the economics honours examination, a son of the C.M.S. pastor at Tiruwella obtained the tenth place in the university." In personal relationships racial bitterness is found side by side with personal friendliness and a good deal of interest in religion, but always from a nationalist angle rather than for its own merits. Indian Christians are stigmatized as de-nationalized. But the missionary's influence on them is of the greatest value, as shown by letters received from ex-students.

Nadiya district

The Rev. Ilsley W. Charlton (since returned to England) was appointed chairman of the church council, and wrote from Bollobhpur that during his absence of sixteen years village education on the whole had lessened in quantity but improved in quality, and he thought that there was less apathy on the part of the parents. Evangelistic work had dwindled through lack of missionaries who could give themselves to it. In spiritual life he feared that there was a set-back. Educated and ambitious young men now leave for larger spheres than a purely agricultural district can offer, and Roman Catholics and Seventh Day Adventists are drawing away people. On the other hand the Rev. F. N. Didsbury writes from Santirajpur, that a local festival celebrated in February by the Bengali Church in these parts is known as "blessed Wednesday," "in commemoration of a great outpouring of the Holy Spirit which they received some twenty years ago. It is held at various places and the time is chiefly spent in praise and prayer." Last year the meeting place was Shikarpur, which is somewhat remote from most of the Christian villages; yet over a hundred people assembled. "One old padre, with a patriarchal grey beard, tramped about forty miles, and others twenty to thirty; a few of the younger teachers came on bicycles, and only two came in bullock carts." It was "a glorious strength-giving day of prayer." There was opposition on the part both of Mohammedans and Brahmans to the educational work, and only one boy was baptized in 1920, but the school results were good. Dispensary work is on the increase; the number of attendances rose from under 10,000 in 1919 to over 13,000 in 1920. The congregation at Kanchrapara consists chiefly of people from other parts of the Nadiya district, who have come in search of work in the government railway shops, and now numbers over 200. Church attendance is poor, but on Good Friday and great festivals the temporary chapel is filled. An eight-day mission by Mr. Charlton and his preachers was a means of real blessing. One of the Christian workmen was recently carried off by meningitis. His English foreman, himself an agnostic, said that this workman was the only Indian in his workshop who spoke the truth. Small as it is, the congregation suffers from factions. The hostel for Indian Christian apprentices was overflowing throughout the year. The lads were of very different standards of attainment and behaved well. At Kushtia, the Church is making progress, and there are great openings, both among Hindus and Mohammedans. At Doyabari the work of the women's hospital gains increasing confidence among the people, but religious teaching is inadequate owing to weakness of staff. Dr. H. E. Flint received the Kaisar-i-Hind medal at the end of 1919. In February the hospital was visited by the Maharajahs of Burdwan and Nadiya. "The former came as a representative of Government, to hear and see what our needs really were." Colonel Maynard, F.R.C.S., gave the missionary a small motor launch to be used as a travelling dispensary on the river.

Santalia

The Rev. T. Lenman describes the C.M.S. Godda district as covering about 1000 square miles, and being inhabited by 750,000 people in 3000 villages. The population consists of Paharis, a Dravidian hill people; Santals, in the lowland hill tracts; and Hindus and Mohammedans in the west and north. Conditions are gradually displacing the Santals, with the result that many of them emigrate to other parts of Bengal or to Assam, and the question of keeping in touch with these people is giving food for thought. Another task of increasing importance is that of evangelizing the non-Santal population which is coming in. The Pahari Christians are few in number and weak in Christian character. There is a hostel for their boys in connexion with the school at Godda. Of Santals, there are about 1000 Christians scattered throughout the district, with congregations at nine centres. These are cared for by two Santal pastors and by catechists. Besides the boys' school referred to at Godda, there are also a girls' boarding school and fourteen village schools. The Bishop of Calcutta on his visit last March confirmed about sixty candidates. A co-operative grain bank has been started, which should contribute materially towards the independence of the Christian Church. The girls' boarding school at Barharwa had 150 boarders, beside a few day scholars. There was a considerable waiting list, but the school had to be closed for the holidays three weeks before the usual time on account of the prohibitive price of food. Almost all the present Bible women and teachers of the Mission were educated there. Six girls were baptized.

In the Nadiya district at Kanchrapara, the Rev. E. B. Sharpe ministers to Europeans as well as to Christians in several out-stations, and at Kanchrapara itself he is pastor to over a hundred Europeans and Anglo-Indians engaged in the workshops. In acknowledgment of this ministry a free bungalow has been assigned to him, besides a monthly grant of Rs 100 from the railway. Mrs. Sharpe is superintendent of the European Sunday school, which contributed nearly £5 to the funds of the Bengal Mission. Several members are regular subscribers to the work. Mr. Sharpe also visited Naihati, Chinsura, and Chooadanga. The work is a real help from the missionary point of view, though there is a lamentable amount of indifference among the people as to Christian privilege and duty. Work among English congregations BIHAR.—The Rev. A. G. Lockett, of Bhagalpur, was struck on his return to the Mission after an absence of eight years by the change in the working of the church council. It is now an executive of the Mission, with the foreign missionary operating side by side with his Indian brother. The province of Bihar and Orissa is foremost in political progress towards independence with an Indian Governor, but independent members of the Church are as yet few, because better-class converts seek employment and settle down elsewhere. There is a great field for evangelization, and in a few places advantage is being taken of the openings. At Bhaptiahi "one elderly evangelist has long been holding the fort quite alone. His stipend is provided in large part by a keen Christian Irishman engaged in zemindari work in that neighbourhood; he is extremely eager for the C.M.S. to put more energy into the work there." The Rev. J. H. Hewison writes that the orphanage had fifty boys, among whom ten baptisms took place during the year. In the middle English school there were 120 names on the roll, including the orphans just mentioned, in addition to sixty-eight Hindus, and two Mohammedans. The chief Hindu zemindar (landlord) of the town has an opposition school about a quarter of a mile off. Three of the orphans were being prepared for engineering work. The high school, under the Rev. S. K. Tarafdar, continued to flourish, but the difficulty of getting suitable Christian masters was very great. Twenty-nine of the boys secured commercial certificates, a sign of the increasing tendency of Indian educated youth towards commercial life. They were keen on helping in the annual flower-show of the Seva Samiti (society of service). They did excellent work also during some heavy floods that occurred, relieving 268 families. At the Jamalpur railway works, about forty miles off, there is a hostel for non-Christian apprentices, superintended by the Rev. P. C. Biswas, with twelve boys resident. The local superintendent of the East Indian Railway has shown himself a true helper in the work, having procured, among other things, a supply of electric light for the church. The work of Mr. Biswas is chiefly among the labourers and artisans of the railway. In the Deoghar district, the Rev. B. Grundy was disap- Bihar pointed that the work done during famine relief in the previous year had not more largely opened the hearts of the people for the gospel message; however, the sale of gospels at fairs was encouraging and the fourth session of the divinity class was completed. Orphans are still being brought to be entrusted to the care of the missionaries. At the girls' school one pupil won the high school scholarship medal, being first in the whole of the Central Provinces. The training class work did well under Miss Biswas, who unfortunately expected to have to close it for a year while she carried on the school during the absence of Miss F. E. Orme. Miss Orme was encouraged by visits to the homes of old pupils, one of whom is a doctor in charge of a big leper asylum where over a hundred inmates were baptized one Sunday.

SOUTH INDIA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The Tamil country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s missions in the eighteenth century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1815, having been preceded in 1814 by two men in Lutheran orders. The East India Act of 1833 made provision for a new bishopric of Madras, and Daniel Corrie was consecrated in 1835. Dr. Whitehead (consecrated 1899) is the present bishop. Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of C.M.S. missionaries, Robert T. Noble and Henry Watson Fox (an old Rugbeian). Noble started in 1843 the famous English school at Masulipatam now known by his name, worked it for twenty-two years, and died at his post in 1865. Many Brahmans trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several Indian clergymen to work among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing Indian Church, hitherto chiefly drawn from the Malas and other outcaste or low-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Khammamett, 1888. Haidarabad was occupied in 1901. A mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godavari, was founded at Dummagudem by General Haig in 1860. An Indian clergyman, the Rev. V. S. Azariah, was consecrated as Bishop of Dornakal (a part of the Telugu Country) in 1912.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3000 professed Indian Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent, and others (not to mention workers of the S.P.G., which has a fruitful mission contiguous to that of the C.M.S.), the Gospel has continued to spread among the Tamil population. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous itinerant mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn, and Meadows. Assistant bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Indian congregations in Madura and Tinnevelly were consecrated in 1877; and in 1896 the bishopric in Tinnevelly and Madura was founded. The Right Rev. E. H. M. Waller, a former missionary and secretary of the C.M.S., is the present bishop.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The South India Mission, in which 16 foreign clergymen, 96 Indian clergymen, 1 layman, 10 wives of missionaries, 16 single women, and 2180 Indian Christian lay agents are engaged, falls into three divisions.

I. The first division comprises the work in Madras, the Nilgiris, and the Wynaad, though these are widely separated, Ootacamund being 300 miles south-west of Madras; and at Bangalore, in Mysore.

Pastoral evangelistic work among Hindus in Madras is exclusively in the hands of a district church council, which is staffed and, as regards pastoral work, entirely financed by Indians; but the Society has the Harris High School, and is responsible for special efforts to influence Mohammedans. It also co-operates in the Christian colleges for men and women in Madras. In the Nilgiris and the Wynaad the C.M.S. has several schools for boys, and a number of hill tribes are reached by evangelistic work.

II. The Telugu Country stretches 500 miles northward from the city of Madras along the eastern coast of India, in some parts extending inland for 300 miles. About half-way up, near the coast, lies Masulipatam, the oldest station of the Telugu Mission; the other chief stations are Bezwada, on the Kistna, some fifty miles from its mouth; Ellore, north of Masulipatam; Dummagudem, in the diocese of Dornakal, 100 miles up the Godavari; and Khammamett and Haidarabad, both in the Nizam's dominions, the latter being the capital.

The chief educational agencies are a training institution, the Noble College (first grade) with an attached high school, and the Sharkey Memorial Girls' School, at Masulipatam; and a high school for boys at Ellore. There are 40 Indian clergymen engaged in ministering to the numerous but scattered bodies of converts, who number 58,000 in all.

At Haidarabad, where there are two high schools for boys, the work is carried on by the Australian C.M.S. and is chiefly among Mohammedans. At Dummagudem a few Kois are reached.

III. In Tinnevelly, at the extreme south of the Indian peninsula, a district church council with a foreign chairman, under which 48 Indian clergymen are working, is responsible for pastoral ministrations among the 76,000 Christians, and also, with the help of an itinerating band of evangelists, for most of the evangelistic work, the majority of the Society's missionaries being engaged in education.

There are a theological school and preparandi class at Palamcotta, and a college (second grade) and high school in Tinnevelly Town, now managed by a council, composed of Indians and foreigners, which is responsible for the finances, the Society making an annually decreasing grant. There are also high schools for boys at Palamcotta, Srivilliputhur, and Mengnanapuram, and boys' boarding schools at Surandei, Sachiapuram, and Dohnavur; while female education is provided for by the Sarah Tucker College (second grade) and a boarding school at Palamcotta, the Elliott Tuxford School at Mengnanapuram, and boarding schools at Nallur, Sachiapuram, and Suviseshapuram. There are schools for blind boys and girls at Palamcotta.

The C.E.Z.M.S. carries on women's work at Madras and Ootacamund; at Masulipatam, Ellore, Bezwada, Khammamett, and Dummagudem, in the Telugu Country; and at Palamcotta (with schools for deaf and dumb boys and girls) and other places in Tinnevelly.

The following are the members of the Madras Corresponding Committee for 1921: The Bishops of Madras, Dornakal, and Tinnevelly, the Archdeacon of Madras, Major F. F. Elwes, I.M.S., Mr. P. Appasami, Mr. A. Davies, Mr. E. S. Hensman, Mr. W. H. Sell, and the Revs. Canon E. Sell and R. W. Peachey (secretary).

Madras

MADRAS.—Canon M. G. Goldsmith reports that the work of the Harris School, with its majority of Mohammedan boys, has not, so far as he can see, been much influenced by agitations over the Khilafat or non-co-operation, nor has there been any change in the general friendliness of parents and neighbours. He writes:—

> The Scripture teaching prospers under the Christian teachers who are responsible for it, and the general educational results have been good. The number on the roll is 376, an increase over last year of twenty-nine. . . . The influence of the Y.M.C.A. has been good. . . . It has developed lectures and Bible classes and social gatherings which largely affect the Harris School boys and the boys in the Wesley College.

Evangelistic work for Moslems, both in Urdu and in Tamil, was carried on with three helpers, and the demand for handbills containing the Christian message was brisk. Canon Goldsmith also had pastoral charge of Trinity Chapel.

Telugu Country

TELUGU COUNTRY.—The encouragement and help received by the missionaries through special gifts for mass movement needs are referred to repeatedly. The Rev. A. Woodhouse writes that, despite the burden of frequent requests for reports and statistics, the work done in writing about the villages has more than repaid the missionary for the time and effort expended. More than twenty new schools were built during the year through help from parishes in the Manchester Diocese. The Rev. E. Evitt, of Bezwada, writes to the same effect. Altogether ninety buildings were completed in 1920 and more were under construction "owing to the splendid response in England to the mass movement appeal." In some cases the congregation had been longing for such a spiritual home for years past, and now they are rejoicing in the realization of their desire. In many instances a building was placed in a hitherto heathen village where people had come forward as inquirers.

Gifts from home

Temperance

The heathen outcastes of the Telugu Country are much given to drunkenness, and there is still need for temperance work among Christians. In Dummagudem, a temperance society has, for the first time, been started. The Rev. W. T. Simeon, the Indian pastor in charge, says:—

> The movement is very necessary here, as, owing to the large income which some of the people have from lace work, there is large scope for giving way to drink, and we have had sad instances throughout the year.

And the Rev. E. S. Tanner, of Ellore, writes as follows with reference to four villages:—

> The Christians have voluntarily banded themselves together to prevent any of their members drinking toddy, etc. Some of the village caste people are concerned at this turn of events, and say if the outcastes give up toddy they will become as respectable as themselves.

Accessions to the Church

Accessions to the Church continue. Mr. Tanner notes that the contributions of the church members in the Ellore district have increased during the last decade, and that the increase is growing in momentum. There are seventy teachers receiving no stipend from the C.M.S., who also act voluntarily as pastoral helpers. In the Bezwada district the adherents increased during 1920 by at least 2000, and Mr. Evitt was glad to notice that this increase was largely among the old congregations. Evangelism by the Christians themselves is spoken of at Ellore and Masulipatam. Mr. Tanner mentions "the special work of evangelism during the last three years when about fifty per cent of our adult Christians have given up from one to eight days to this work. School teachers also take a good deal of part in it." Of Masulipatam, the Rev. A. Woodhouse writes:—

> There is a small but very faithful band of volunteers, teachers in the school and college, which gives much of its leisure time to this work. Through its efforts quite a number of villages have been added to the pastorate.

A special week of evangelization is annually held, during which in 1920 over 11,000 people were addressed, and in which 115 volunteers took part. As a result 367 inquirers were enrolled and thirty-three new villages asked for a teacher.

At Dummagudem, much help is given by Mrs. J. Cain, the widow of the well-known missionary, whose co-operation is thankfully welcomed by the Tamil clergyman in charge. The Christian lace-workers in that district realized by their work over Rs 8000, from which they subscribed Rs 842 for church purposes, besides making other offerings. A dispensary and schools are kept going by the profits. The Rev. W. T. Simeon writes of "big baptisms this year in three places . . . all in the River Godavari," the sacred character of which added to the impressiveness of the rite.

The non-co-operative movement at Masulipatam made a dead-set at the Bible teaching in the Noble College and High School, but the Rev. W. C. Penn says: "Happily we have had very little trouble in the college; three students out of 200 left, and three students left the high school out of nearly 1200." The collector of the district gave sage counsel to the boys when he presided at the prize-giving in December, advising them to live their school life strenuously and with undivided mind if they wanted to attain to political usefulness later on. Unfortunately it has been necessary to close the Bezwada high school in order to strengthen other work.

In the Telugu Mission the work of village education bulks largely. In a village in the Masulipatam district, caste Hindus and Mohammedans were as eager to have a Christian school as the outcastes. A money-lender offered to give a house for the teacher's residence, and a thatched shed was ready in which to set up the school, nearly thirty children being entered to begin with. In the girls' school at Dummagudem, there were fifty-five children of the upper castes and forty-five Christian children. The teachers are old pupils trained in Masulipatam, mainly from among the depressed classes. The girls' middle school at Masulipatam, with 124 pupils, of whom seventy-three were boarders, was well reported of by the inspectress.

Tinnevelly

TINNEVELLY.—In Tinnevelly the foreign staff is gradually being reduced to the vanishing point. The Rev. E. A. L. Moore, chairman of the church council, mourns the deaths of Mr. E. Keyworth and the Rev. H. J. Schaffter, that of the latter occurring soon after his retirement. He had been a member of the staff of Tinnevelly mission college since its beginning, and when he left, a great farewell celebration was held, and he was taken round the Hindu town in a procession in which a temple elephant was prominent. All directly evangelistic work, as well as the elementary schools, is now under the direction of the church council. For the education of 4000 girls the council employs 256 elementary school mistresses. Only the higher institutions remain under the direction of the missionary conference; the college, however, is under Indian management. The year financially was a very difficult one, and though Rs 5000 were granted for extra famine allowances, workers were still hard pressed. The Indian Church contributions for 1919 amounted to Rs 99,000. The baptisms in that year were 910, which is a small number compared with the Christian population of 70,000. More aggressiveness on the part of Christians is needed.

The new reform scheme gives a seat in the Madras Legislative Council to the Christians of Tinnevelly and Ramnad, and two young Christian vakils, both C.M.S. men, appeared as candidates. The Roman Catholics of the district rather generously refrained from contesting the seat. The Protestant vote being divided, a Roman Catholic candidate would have been practically sure of success.

Colleges

The Rev. H. P. Young reports that Tinnevelly mission college was practically immune from the non-co-operation movement. To a considerable extent the same may be said of Tinnevelly generally, which, being at the extreme southern point of India, has only partially been affected by the movements that are overrunning the peninsula. The college was overcrowded, with 800 students instead of 500, the normal number. From the Sarah Tucker College at Palamcotta, Miss R. E. Howard reports that, thanks to the Madras Women's College, the supply of really good Indian workers is steadily increasing; she was hoping that one such would supply her place when she went home on furlough. The Saturday confirmation class for girls had sixty members. Ten old girls of the Sarah Tucker College were reading in the Women's Christian College for B.A. or science-intermediate examination, others were taking a medical course at the Union School in Vellore or at the government medical college. At the latter college one of the girls came out above all the men of her year, and is to go to England with a government scholarship. When a flood, after exceptionally heavy rain, threatened some of the buildings in the college compound, boy scouts from the high school worked in the water, and stopped the breaches until the flood subsided. The teachers and the elder girls of the boarding school carried on evangelistic work week by week at the village schools. They made garments for an annual sale and with the proceeds supported a Telugu child in one of the Indian Missionary Society's schools. Miss D. M. La Brooy reports that in the kindergarten and junior school a beginning was made in introducing Montessori material and method for the tiny children. Teachers eagerly welcomed new material and methods, but were slow to realize the principles behind them.

Tinnevelly centenary

The centenary celebration of C.M.S. work in Tinnevelly was held at Palamcotta from 21 to 25 February, 1921. The actual date of the centenary was 7 July, 1920, for Rhenius had arrived in Palamcotta on that day a hundred years before to shepherd, on behalf of the C.M.S., the scattered congregations of the earlier S.P.C.K. missions. As, however, most of the Indian bishops were at the Lambeth Conference in July, 1920, the full celebration of the centenary was postponed until February, 1921. The occasion brought together the largest crowds that had ever gathered for a festival of the Anglican Church in India, and it is estimated that not less than 12,000 attended. Troops of boy scouts (including some from Hindu schools) deftly managed the great concourse, and did innumerable things for the service of the public, being on duty night and day. The successful organization of the arrangements of the festival was due to the untiring and long continued work of the Rev. C. Devadas, an Indian clergyman. A very large congregation attended the daily services of the Holy Communion at 5.30 a.m. On the 23rd some 4000 communicated, the service lasting about three hours and the distribution after consecration being made by about sixty clergy from the main table and three subsidiary ones. A striking feature of the service was that the Swedish Bishop of Skara (who had recently consecrated a bishop for the Swedish Church Missions in South India) helped to distribute the elements, using the Swedish formulas and language.

The largest gathering at the festival was the thankoffering service, at which it is computed that there were about 8000 present. A solemn thanksgiving was offered to God for the work of missionaries and others in the past, and the Metropolitan unveiled a memorial tablet to be placed in the Centenary Hall; then came the presentation of an address of thanks to the C.M.S., and the handing over by the C.M.S. secretary of the documents by which the Society made over to the diocese the property hitherto held by the Church Missionary Trust Association. Afterwards there followed the presentation of the thankoffering. This was expected to total £2000, of which £550 was given at the service. In connexion with the celebrations a baptismal service was conducted by Bishop Azariah, assisted by other clergy, at which some 350 persons were baptized in the river. The service was witnessed by hundreds of Hindus, and made a great impression on them. Afterwards, the huge congregation gathered round a sand-hill in a natural amphitheatre and was addressed by Bishop Azariah. Among other interesting features were: (1) A gathering for the delegates who conveyed greetings from the other missionary societies and whose speeches mostly turned on some form of union and fellowship; (2) the laying of the foundation stones of the new buildings of Tinnevelly college, and of the C.M.S. Palamcotta high school; and (3) the children's entertainment, consisting of scenes representing the past and present life of the Tinnevelly Church. The celebration was attended by the Metropolitan, the Bishops of Travancore, Dornakal, Tinnevelly, and Skara in Sweden, a large number of the European community, and many clergy and Christians from the S.P.G. missions, to say nothing of other communions. The Bishop of Madras was prevented from being present by indisposition.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The Mission in the protected Hindu States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the Malabar Coast in the extreme south-west of India, between the Ghats and the Indian Ocean, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. The metran (or bishop) of the ancient Syrian Church of Malabar, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas, had in 1806 requested help from the English Church. For twenty years the Mission was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others, with the object of benefiting the Syrian Church by encouraging and aiding it to reform itself. Since 1837, however, the missionaries have aimed directly at the evangelization of the heathen, thousands of whom have been baptized, while, as an indirect result of the work, a love of the Gospel has sprung up among the ancient Christians, whom the missionaries have urged to remain in and reform their own Church. Mar Athanasius, an old C.M.S. schoolboy, who was metran from 1843 to 1877, was an active reformer. Since his death a large section of the Syrians has become an autonomous episcopal Church, known as the Reformed Church of St. Thomas, which maintains reformed worship in the vernacular, holds annually a convention for the deepening of the spiritual life, and carries on evangelistic work; it has also sent missionaries to other parts of India to work in connexion with the Indian National Missionary Society, to the funds of which it contributes liberally. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Kottayam, 1817; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission was begun in 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy in 1881.

The see of Travancore and Cochin was constituted in 1879. The present bishop is Dr. Charles Hope Gill, a C.M.S. missionary.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Of the stations at present occupied by the Society's foreign or Indian missionaries, four, namely, Kottayam, Pallam, Tiruwella, and Allepie, are in the State of Travancore, where also is the Alwaye Itinerancy; while two, Trichur and Kunnankulam, are in the Cochin State.

The staff of the Mission consists, besides Bishop Gill, of 7 foreign clergymen, 4 missionaries' wives, and 9 single women. The Indian clergymen number 36, and the Indian Christian lay agents 792.

One foreign and two Indian missionaries are in charge of districts and carry on evangelistic work at Trichur, Kunnankulam, Alwaye, Allepie, and Tiruwella. Others are engaged in educational work at the Cambridge Nicholson Institution (a theological college and normal school), the college, and the Baker Memorial School for girls, all at Kottayam; and the Buchanan Institution (a middle boarding school and normal school for women) at Pallam. The C.E.Z.M.S. has stations at Kottayam, Ernakulam, Trevandrum, and Trichur.

The majority of the 61,500 converts in the Mission are linked with one or other of 35 pastorates connected with 4 church councils, and the care of them apper-tains to Indian clergymen, who occasionally join in evangelistic work with some of the foreign missionaries.

The missionary conference, of which Bishop Gill is chairman, is the local governing body of the Mission.

Devolution

THE inauguration of a diocesan council at the close of 1920 should serve to bind together the various departments of the Travancore and Cochin Mission more closely than before, as parts of the Indian diocese; and another step in this direction has been taken by the appointment of three Indian graduates to spheres hitherto filled by foreigners. The Rev. C. K. Jacob is now principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution for training of clergy; the Rev. A. V. George has taken over the charge of the Alwaye Itinerancy, and Mr. P. A. Stephen that of the Trichur and Kunnankulam districts. The total Christian community connected with the C.M.S. now numbers 61,449 (2585 catechumens, 58,864 baptized), and there are 21,412 scholars.

Educational work

The Rev. G. A. N. Shackle, who is working at the Kottayam College and High School, writes that the one had an enrolment of 210 students, the other of 730 boys. One college student and twelve high school boys were confirmed in November. "The small numbers [of confirmees] are accounted for by the fact that the majority of our boys are Jacobite or Mar Thoma Christians, and only a minority Anglicans." The Hindu students of the college gave great attention to the religious instruction. The highest marks in the last annual scripture examination were gained by Hindus, and they showed a grasp of the spirit as well as of the letter of the teaching of Christ. When Mr. Shackle visited the Shiva Ratri fair at Alwaye, he found that the discourses of the Hindu preachers were either merely political or else Christian truths in Hindu garb. In the Baker Memorial School for girls, the Christians numbered 294—Anglican 140, Mar Thoma Reformed Syrian 70, Jacobite Syrian 82, and Romanist 2. The Jacobite Syrians have opened a new boarding school which has about seventy girls and is worked by two ladies connected with the Oxford Mission, Calcutta. The number of women teachers in the Mission is largely increasing. Of the Baker Memorial School it is said:—

> We have seven unmarried women, two of whom are graduates, who gave up a great deal from a financial point of view in order to join us. The women teachers of all grades are paid more than the men by the Government, and women graduates, when they begin to teach, receive nearly twice as much as men having the same qualifications.

The girls' camp, held jointly with the Buchanan Institution at Pallam, was specially helpful in 1920. Miss G. J. Kellaway writes that during some meetings conducted by Mr. Archibald of the Children's Special Service Mission many girls "were definitely brought to Christ, and, to give an outlet for service, we started a meeting on Saturday mornings for the poor Pulaya women in connexion with our Church," in which the girls give help. Miss K. M. Richards writes that fifteen students were resident at the Buchanan Institution at Pallam, representing the Anglican, Reformed Syrian, and Jacobite Syrian Churches. An appeal to old girls for help in financial difficulty brought an immediate response of Rs 100. At Tiruwella, the Rev. W. S. Hunt noted the difficulty experienced in the Christian boarding school of setting boys to six hours' daily book work, after a life so far spent out of doors doing manual labour. He writes: "We have been allowed to introduce weaving into the curriculum."

Rural work

Mr. Hunt has become chairman of the Tiruwella Church Council, the congregations of which are drawn mainly from among the outcastes. The congregations vary in size, from those that worship in churches of their own and have school buildings also, to those who still have to use one building, and that of mud and palm leaves, for both church and school. Mr. Hunt noticed a certain deadness among the people; he feels "that the Church does not touch their lives as intimately as it might and ought." The Johanan heresy is little heard of nowadays, but Seventh Day Adventists are actively proselytizing, not to mention other sects. The Rev. F. Bower, who has been at work in Malabar for over fifty-two years, and is now retiring at 81 years of age, writes that the mass movement among the depressed classes in the Cochin State is only beginning; it is both important and hopeful, in spite of bitter opposition not only from Hindus and Moslems, but also from Romanists. The higher classes are increasingly ready to hear the Gospel. Some of the Namburi Brahmans stood among the ordinary crowd of hearers in the streets of Trichur and listened to the message with deep attention. Fifty years ago such openness was not even dreamed of. During a visit from Sadhu Sundar Singh, the Gospel was preached to some 10,000 people in front of a Trichur church with perceptible effect. Mrs. Bower found from her visits among many former pupils of the high school, the majority of whom are Brahmans and Nayars, that the scripture teaching given in the school had reached and benefited the women in their homes. Moslems, too, were more approachable; the knowledge of the Bible has increased among them. Unrest among the Izhawa section of the Hindu community continued, and it was actually proposed (though not carried) at a meeting in Allepie that they should seek admission as a body into the Christian Church. Some of them were baptized during the year.

The healing mission held at various centres by Mr. J. M. Hickson was "fruitful, not only in physical cures of a remarkable kind, but in stimulating faith and arousing inquiry."

CEYLON MISSION

PAST HISTORY

Ceylon, which became a British possession in 1796, was one of the first fields to which the fathers of the C.M.S. turned their eyes. It was not, however, until 1818 that the Mission was begun among the Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) which mainly form the population of the island. For the Singhalese, work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddegama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kurunegala, 1880. For work among the Tamils, Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1850 (subsequently for Singhalese work also); while the Tamil Coolie Mission was begun in 1855.

The see of Colombo was formed in 1845. Dr. E. A. Copleston is the present bishop.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The greater part of the pastoral work in the Mission is in the hands of Ceylonese clergymen, 33 in number, who are supported by native church funds; only two of the many district councils are now subsidized by the Society. Both the pastoral and the evangelistic work may be regarded as carried on in four sections, viz., in southern and western Ceylon; in Kandy and the Kandian Singhalese Itinerancies for the Singhalese of the hill country; in the itinerant Tamil Coolie Mission among the labourers from South India on the tea and rubber estates; and in Jaffna, the peninsula at the north of the island.

I. The chief stations in southern and western Ceylon are Colombo, the head-quarters of the Mission, where pastoral, evangelistic, and educational work is maintained in both Singhalese and Tamil; Cotta, within a few miles of Colombo, and Baddegama, near the southern end of the island, where Singhalese is spoken; and Negombo, north of Colombo, where the work is in Tamil.

II. The work of the Kandian Singhalese Itinerancies is carried on in three districts, viz., the central, with Kandy as its head-quarters; the northern, worked from Anuradhapura; and the western, worked from Kurunegala.

III. The Tamil Coolie Mission has three divisions, namely, the northern, the central, and the southern, with their head-quarters at Kandy, Hatton (south of Kandy), and Haputale (farther south-east) respectively.

IV. In northern Ceylon the chief station is Jaffna, near which are Nellore and Copay. All the work is in Tamil.

The educational work is on a large scale, nearly 26,000 children being under instruction in the schools. Besides a number of middle schools, the chief institutions are, for male students, Trinity College, Kandy, St John's College, Jaffna, and English schools at Cotta and Copay; and for girls, the Ladies' College, Colombo, a college at Jaffna, and English schools at Cotta and Baddegama. Provision for the supply of Singhalese agents is made by means of a training colony at Peradeniya, near Kandy, in which the C.M.S. and the Wesleyans co-operate, and there are a training institution for Tamil men at Copay, and a class for Tamil women at Nellore.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has work at Kandy and Gampola, and a school for the deaf and blind at Mount Lavinia, near Colombo.

The work is carried on by a staff of 12 foreign clergymen, 3 laymen, 13 missionaries' wives, and 19 other women, with whom are associated, besides the Ceylonese clergymen mentioned above, 980 Ceylonese catechists, school teachers, and Bible women.

Educational work

In the educational work of the C.M.S. in Ceylon, the element of social service is increasingly emphasized. At Trinity College, Kandy, there was a growth of interest in questions of public welfare, housing, child care, and the like. A boy who had recently matriculated at the London University was baptized in 1920, and carries on a night school for about thirty, with games and scout law. Another is working in the Kandy Social Service League; he had been head boy for two years, and could easily have obtained more lucrative and showy work. Many, however, who are ready to volunteer for work of this kind "rapidly tire of their undertaking." The Rev. L. J. Gaster writes that the school union for social service, founded eleven years ago by the late Capt. N. P. Campbell, is regarded as "one of the most important of our school activities, not only for what it accomplishes in the way of social help, but as fostering the spirit of service among the boys." At Jaffna, the school has now twenty-five per cent of Christians among its 450 boys, including sons of the leading Tamils of Northern Ceylon. It had become somewhat slack in discipline, but this was revived, and the boys, whether Hindu or Christian, took remarkably well to the observance of the "quiet time."

The students at the Peradeniya Training Colony numbered nearly 100, almost equal proportions being men and women. Besides these, ten teachers and one catechist were being trained in the evangelist department, in practical as well as theoretical work. The dispensary was well visited, and the Rev. J. P. S. R. Gibson was assured by responsible friends that an entirely new kind of teacher was being sent out from the school. In the Ladies' College at Colombo Miss M. A. Bath found great opportunities among the girls, who comprise Christians, Buddhists, Mohammedans, and one Hindu. At the girls' school in Cotta there was some evidence of influence being exercised on Buddhists, one girl in a Buddhist family being baptized and another removed for fear of the same result. Miss A. Higgens notes that the Buddhist children have a great love for hymns about heaven, which is ignored by their religion. In the girls' college at Jaffna the students carried on social work and a Sunday school for low-caste children. At Borella there are important boarding schools for Tamil boys and girls, from which eleven baptisms took place during the year. The village schools are in a double difficulty. On the one hand there is a conscience clause, which limits the evangelistic opportunities of a school considerably; on the other hand the multiplication of government schools, as well as the opposition of Buddhists in certain cases, hinders a mission school.

Congregations

The Rev. A. E. Dibben, as secretary of the Mission, writes of polyglot work in and about Colombo. The English congregation at Galle Face was ministered to under difficulties, but that in St. Luke's Church was encouraging. In Colombo itself there is a fluctuating Malayalam population of some thousands from Travancore and Cochin; some of these are Christians, and Sunday services are held for them in two churches by catechists of their own race. Evangelistic work was also done among the Malayalam-speaking Hindus. The funds for this were collected by an energetic Tamil layman. Of the 202 Christians among these people seventy-four were communicants, and there were two adult baptisms. Mr. Dibben laments the lack of evangelistic zeal among the Singhalese Christians, their idea being that evangelism is only the work of the paid catechist. In all the three divisions of the Tamil Coolie Mission (western, central, and southern) steady work went on, with progress in self-support and definite evangelization. The morality of the congregations in some places gave cause for anxiety, and one of the missionaries writes: "The greatest enemy of the faith is the immoral Christian." Notwithstanding financial stringency caused by falling markets, the planters and the members of the Christian Churches were generous in their support of the Mission, but the missionaries had no little anxiety themselves and great trouble in collecting the necessary funds, which almost entirely have to be raised locally.

Evangelization

The Rev. R. P. Butterfield tells of work at Ratnapura, which began with prayer by the Tamil pastor for the casting out of evil spirits from a new row of coolie dwellings where two women had died, with the result that the place was thought to be haunted and no coolies would live there. A Christian overseer took up his abode in the place, with no evil results, and this victory over evil spirits became the occasion of a movement towards Christianity. Up to the year under review about thirty-five had been gathered in. The company superintendent agreed to double the amount subscribed for the building of the church, and it was opened in December last. The planter who entertained Mr. Butterfield said that the Christians needed much less checking in their tapping of the trees than his other workers. "This and other movements towards Christianity have nearly all been connected with the unostentatious work of Christian overseers and other minor estate officials." Owing to the influence of one of these men, fifty-five adults have been baptized within the last thirteen years. The head overseer in the Ratnapura district in 1920 built a prayer house for himself and his Christian coolies. So many were the baptisms that he was obliged to extend it at a cost to himself of Rs 700. He holds daily service in the building before and after working hours. Difficulties in the way of the work owing to non-observance of the Lord's Day, to which some Christians have yielded, were noticed, but a planter told one of the preachers how a convert, after his baptism, declined to work on Sunday. The planter at first regarded this as an excuse, and endeavoured to overcome his objection by a threat of penalties, but when the man expressed his willingness to endure these rather than work on Sunday, the planter relented and gave him permission to spend his Sundays as he wished. This he does by walking twenty miles to and from church. The total increase in the number of Christians in four pastorates during the year was nearly twenty per cent, and in spite of high prices there was an increase in the total of the food offerings which the housewife puts aside daily when she prepares her meal.

China

The boundaries of China contain probably one-fifth of the habitable world; the population is estimated by some at 250,000,000, by others at 350,000,000, and by others, again, at a still higher figure. The chief religions are Confucianism, Taoism, and Buddhism; but the real religion of China may be said to be ancestor worship. The pioneer Protestant missionary, Robert Morrison, of the L.M.S., reached Canton in 1808, but he could only live there as an employee of the East India Company, and China was not open to missionary effort until shortly after the Treaty of Nanking in 1842. The C.M.S. began work in 1844, and the Wesleyans, Presbyterians, and several American societies at the same time or soon after. In 1865 the China Inland Mission was founded, and is now by far the largest of the missionary societies in the country.

In 1917, Protestant missionary societies in China had a staff of 2263 men and 3637 women missionaries (of whom 1819 were wives); and 846 ordained and more than 22,000 lay Chinese workers. There were than 944 stations with a resident foreign missionary, and 6121 out-stations. The Chinese Christian community numbered about 655,000.

Famine and earthquake

THE year 1920 will long stand out in the history of China by reason of the extraordinary visitations of famine and earthquake. The Chinese Minister, speaking in London in December, said that an area of 35,000 square miles in northern China, with a population of about fifteen millions and a half, was suffering from famine. In some sections the disaster was the result of several successive failures of the crops as at Chuchang, where they were destroyed by floods in 1917 and 1918, by grasshoppers in 1919, and by drought in 1920. Many leading Chinese, including the President of the Republic, who gave $100,000, subscribed to the relief fund, and large amounts were raised by foreigners, but it was feared in December that as many as 14,000,000 people might perish. It was estimated that 40,000 Chinese Christians were among the sufferers, but the area of the C.M.S. Missions was spared this visitation. The earthquake was of enormous extent in the northern and western provinces. Many towns and villages were obliterated and it is believed that some hundreds of thousands of persons perished.

Public security was, if anything, lowered during the year. Exactions by the soldiery and depredations by bandits continued, and missionaries from time to time were molested, though without loss of life and limb. General morality has deteriorated, more especially as concerns the cultivation and consumption of opium, and gambling. The cultivation of opium is said to be allowed or even encouraged in at least seven of the provinces of China, mainly with the idea of obtaining an easy source of revenue to meet the waste of internal warfare. The increase in gambling has had its effect on Christian Churches as well as on the general population, but there has also been reaction against it. In Canton a Christian anti-gambling society was formed, which succeeded in enrolling more than 50,000 men and women, each of whom paid a fee of ten cents and took a pledge not to gamble. Following on a change of Governor all the 400 gambling houses in Canton were closed.

Opium cultivation

Gambling

Educational work

Patriotic indignation at the concessions made to Japan in the Shantung Peninsula by the Peace Treaty, produced widespread strikes among the students and schoolboys and girls, which have affected the work of C.M.S. schools in several places. This does not mean that the evangelistic work of the schools was held up; on the contrary, education was an important element in the evangelizing work of the year, and a large proportion of the baptisms recorded were from schools. The fact that a Chinese government commission has been investigating, with great care and thoroughness, educational institutions and methods in the United States of America is an indication that the standard demanded for Chinese schools and colleges is likely to be raised considerably in the near future. It is encouraging to note in more than one quarter the growth of a graduate ministry in the C.M.S. China Missions.

Social service

Organized social service on the part of Christians, especially of the younger generation, is increasing in extent and effect, and the teachings of Christianity are more and more being judged by the moral effect which they produce on mercantile and industrial life. This is illustrated by the work of the Y.M.C.A. health campaign, in which have been enlisted the services of many students, who are turning their energies and patriotic aspirations into the waging of a fight against plague, cholera, and typhus, which claim myriads of victims in China. The boys are first taught by lectures, and then are sent out to collect audiences for lectures, meetings, and kinema shows in centre after centre. The health campaign has been conducted in Shanghai and Foochow, and is planned for other large cities.

SOUTH CHINA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

Hong Kong was occupied by the Society's missionaries in 1862; Pakhoi in 1866; Canton in 1898; Limchow in 1902; Hokshan in 1910; Nanning in 1914; and Yunnan in 1915.

The diocese of Victoria, Hong Kong, comprises the British colony of Hong Kong, and jurisdiction in the Chinese provinces of Kwangtung and Kwangsi (south of the central branch of the West River) and those portions of the provinces of Kiangsi, Kweichow, and Yunnan which lie south of lat. 28°. The present bishop is Dr. C. R. Duppuy.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Seven stations are occupied, namely, Hong Kong; Kowloon, Canton, Pakhoi (south-west of Canton), and Limchow, in the province of Kwangtung; Nanning, the capital, in the province of Kwangsi; and Yunnan, in the province of that name.

Chinese men are trained for ordination or as catechists at the union theological college at Canton, the C.M.S. students living in their own hostel, and there are Bible women's schools at Hong Kong (St. Stephen's House) and Limchow. A middle school is carried on at Canton for Christian boys; while for Christian girls there are similar schools at Hong Kong (West Point), Kowloon, and Pakhoi.

There are also at Hong Kong a number of other mission institutions, namely, St. John's Hall, a hostel in connexion with the university; St. Stephen's College, where a Christian education on modern lines is provided for the sons of well-to-do Chinese; St. Stephen's Girls' College, a similar school for the daughters of the gentry; and St. Paul's Anglo-Chinese School (for boys), where the sons of Eurasians and Chinese unable to pay high fees are received. At Canton there is a middle school for daughters of the gentry and others.

A hospital and leper asylum are maintained at Pakhoi, a dispensary at Limchow, and a hospital at Yunnan. Evangelistic work is carried on in the numerous towns and villages of the large districts.

The staff of the Mission consists of 13 foreign and 10 Chinese clergymen, 3 laymen, 11 missionaries' wives, and 20 other women missionaries; 2 of the above are doctors and 3 are trained nurses. The Chinese Christian lay agents number 185.

THROUGHOUT South China the tale of military disturbances, robbery, and insecurity continued, with the result that missionary operations were hampered and from time to time held up.

Hong Kong

HONG KONG.—The students at St. John's Hall decreased somewhat in number, and financial difficulties told upon the hostel work. On the religious side an effort was being made to affiliate the Hong Kong University Christian Association with the World Student Federation. At St. Stephen's College, the vacancy caused by the loss of an English master was filled by Chinese graduates; the number of students rose to 200. In St. Stephen's Girls' College the numbers almost doubled during the year, and the principal, Miss E. M. M. Smith, regrets having had to refuse boarders, with the result that they went to Roman Catholic convent schools. Four girls came forward for baptism, but there was very strong opposition from the parents in each case. The Christian girls were active in such work as they could do. The students arranged a sale of work, with a net result of $1000, in help of the fund for new buildings, and $250 for the leper hospital at Pakhoi; they also raised $77 by a self-denial week for the famine relief fund. Examination results were good, and "the fact that the Governor, Sir Edward Stubbs, has sent his two children to study with our little ones has created a very favourable impression among the Chinese parents. . . . The school is now known as the 'league of nations,' Indians, Chinese, Americans, and English working happily side by side." One old girl was studying at Chicago and doing excellent settlement work among the Chinese of that city. She hopes on her return to devote herself to Christian work in China.

Kowloon

KWANGTUNG PROVINCE.—From Kowloon, Miss A. K. Storr writes of the baptism of twenty-six persons from her school, "Victoria Home," and of two fishermen from the coast, employed by an earnest Christian family of the name of Chan who are great helpers of the work and of other Christians. One of Miss Storr's girls declined a promising offer of marriage from a well-to-do Chinese Christian in Sumatra in favour of one from a young preacher in very inferior circumstances, for the sake of being able to serve Christ among her fellow-countrypeople. Miss S. L. Hollis records a good report from the education department. The school has a Y.W.C.A. committee of its own, and, at the request of the senior girls, they were granted the use of a class-room each morning during the holidays so as to hold a summer school, as well as permission to go out by two and two in term time to evangelize neighbouring villages. Their intentions appear to have been well carried out. Miss Hollis writes that in seven C.M.S. primary schools about 350 children attended regularly throughout the year. Most of these were heathen. The weak point of the work was the lack of an evangelistic spirit among the teachers, who otherwise did their routine work faithfully. The staff of elder girls carried on seven Sunday schools—one in a fishing village where the people were passionately addicted to gambling; yet their children came in fair numbers to picture classes.

Canton

The Rev. W. W. Rogers writes that the erection of new buildings for Holy Trinity School at Canton were begun, and the number of boys increased to 105, nearly all of whom were boarders, after which he had to refuse applications. One old boy gained a scholarship at St. Stephen's College. A junior master went to the union theological college to read for holy orders. A young Christian graduate of Hong Kong, an old St. Stephen's College boy, helped at a very low rate of pay during a vacancy on the school staff, to show his appreciation of the work, and refused to go away to Hong Kong for safety during the disturbances. Some short, sharp fighting took place near the school for about an hour, "during which we kept the boys busy singing. A bullet struck the door, but otherwise the school did not suffer, though afterwards there were dead and dying men on the road outside." Eight baptisms took place from the school during the year. The appearance of Canton has greatly changed, owing to the broad new streets which are being run through the city. On one of these streets a church capable of seating over 700 is being built by the Chinese congregation, at a cost of $30,000, of which four-fifths are from Chinese sources. United meetings of the Christians in Canton were held in a "tabernacle seating 4000, which was filled on ten nights running; more than 2000 people signed cards asking for instruction."

The Rev. Tso Paul-See Fong, a graduate of the union theological college, Canton, who was ordained in Advent, 1919, works in Canton and in the country round. He also helps as assistant lecturer at the theological college. He puts in a plea for Canton, and especially for Shekkei, "a place that produces merchants who seek their fortunes abroad, and all over the world. It is the most fertile soil for Christian work," and needs more force than one catechist can bring to bear.

Miss A. M. Jones records twenty-five baptisms in January, 1920, including that of an old lady of 82, and another group of eleven baptisms, in June. Miss E. G. George carried on the work of training Bible women, who receive elementary education together with scripture teaching, and who also help the evangelists while their course is going on. The Rev. C. I. Blanchett notices a spirit of "willingness to forsake the conventions of centuries and adopt modern methods," even among the villagers. The general rise of education demands a corresponding increase of culture among Christians; "only the brightest lights among the Christians stand out as an evidence of the Church's work." At the out-station of Taileung, the English wife of a Chinese, returned from South Africa, helped to keep things going.

Pakhoi

Miss S. Beattie, in the absence of a doctor, after March, 1920, had to treat out-patients at Pakhoi and superintend the leper wards, the other work among men being closed down. The teaching of inquirers in the leper compound was chiefly done by the Christian lepers themselves, with some help from outside. Sixteen were baptized on Christmas Day, 1919, and the same number confirmed by Bishop Lander in the following March. During the fighting in October and November every possible space in the hospital and its out-buildings was occupied by refugees. The wives and children of either party were sheltered impartially, and consequently whichever faction was in power sent a guard to the hospital. The firing was high, and bullets went over the building, so that it did not suffer. The Chinese helpers did well under difficulties. Miss G. E. Dunk, who had the supervision of the Bible women, found the elder church members obstructive towards voluntary and independent action on the part of the younger Chinese Christians; nevertheless an evangelistic campaign lasting a week was held in five different centres by the Bible women, school teachers, and elder scholars. Miss Dunk's school was the only one in Pakhoi which charged fees, but it had by far the best attendance of any.

Limchow

The city of Limchow was crowded with soldiers when Miss A. M. Bakewell wrote, and fighting was looked for. Gambling had been officially forbidden, and as a result the condition of the streets had much improved. Miss Bakewell was able to visit and comfort Christians and others during the time of unrest and danger.

Yunnan City

YUNNAN PROVINCE.—The Rev. R. F. Lankester resumed charge of the work in Yunnan City in February, 1920, after three years' absence on war duty. The Chinese evangelist who maintained the work during that time was helped by the doctors and by two English business men of the place. New members were added to the Church, and self-dependence increased. Mr. Lankester found the influence of the government schools helpful to Christianity, but no work was being done in the form of organized Christian education. Ten catechumens were received during the year, and seven adults baptized, and the Church contributed more than half of the salary of the pastor, the Rev. Yui En-Su, who was transferred from Chekiang to Yunnan in March, 1920. The attendance of women at the services decidedly improved. A very earnest young man who was teaching in one of the government schools resigned his position to work as hospital evangelist. One of those whom Mr. Lankester baptized during the year was the head of a local branch of a large publishing firm. At his request regular weekly services were held at his business house for the employees, of whom twenty or thirty attended and showed much interest. The manager of the largest iron foundry in the city asked that a service should be conducted every Sunday morning for his employees, and forty of them generally were present, being given an hour off work for the purpose. "The manager told us that he had invited us because his foreman was a Christian, who first heard the Gospel in our church, and later was baptized. The manager had found this man an example, both in diligence and honesty, and wished other employees to be like him." Mr. Yui estimates that one-third of the population of Yunnan Province have become opium smokers and that two-fifths of the cultivation is given to the poppy. Idolatry is strong and polygamy rife; women are practically sold, and the condition of slave girls is very lamentable; disorderly houses are licensed and openly protected by the police, and foot-binding also is in full force.

KWANGSI AND HUNAN MISSION

PAST HISTORY

Work was begun by the C.M.S. in the province of Kwangsi in 1899, when Kweilin was occupied. Four years later a forward step was taken by opening a station at Yungchow, more than a hundred miles distant, in the province of Hunan. Hengchow, north-east of Yungchow, was occupied in 1910, Siangtan in 1911, and Nganyuen (in Kiangsi Province) in 1917.

The diocese of Kwangsi and Hunan was formed out of the diocese of Victoria, Hong Kong, in 1909, and consists of the province of Kwangsi, north of the central branch of the West River, and that portion of the province of Hunan which lies south of latitude 28°. Dr. W. Banister, a C.M.S. missionary, was appointed bishop, and consecrated in the year named.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The work in the Mission is chiefly evangelistic and educational, but medical work is carried on at Kweilin. The women's work in the Mission is under the C.E.Z.M.S.

The staff of the Mission consists, besides Bishop Banister, of 6 foreign clergymen, 5 Chinese clergymen, 6 missionaries' wives, and 3 other women missionaries, including 1 doctor and 1 nurse. The Chinese Christian lay agents number 78.

Kweilin

HDEACON J. HOLDEN was able to resuscitate work among the ts at Kweilin, of whom there are thousands. The English classes which he opened early in July were attended by about thirty, and a good number were present at special meetings on Sunday evenings. The Christians are recognizing their responsibility towards their heathen neighbours. The second Christian church in Kweilin is in a very degraded neighbourhood, and had fallen low, but it recovered itself to some extent. The district reached from Kweilin covers about 3000 square miles, with a population of 1,000,000. Archdeacon Holden had to do his work entirely on foot, spending seventy-five days during the year on the road. In one large country town, "gambling and opium have wrought havoc in the Church," but the catechist was working bravely to raise its tone and life, and the schools were flourishing. In another the work went on well; twenty baptisms took place, and the church was becoming inadequate. In the whole district seventy adults and over twenty children were baptized. Owing to the inaccessible position of Kweilin the district was not much troubled by political upheaval, but depreciation of paper currency caused great difficulty. A new building for the hospital was in course of erection and a dispensary was started in the Mohammedan quarter across the river.

Yungchow

From Yungchow Miss R. A. Bachlor writes:—

> My principal work has been in the little women's school and training class—the only one of its kind in our diocese. . . . I have one woman from each of the other stations now with me.

Owing to unsettlement, women's work in the city was much impeded. There were opportunities of intercourse with the ladies of officials, civil and military, but these have now gone away. The work at the boys' school in Yungchow had a set-back, owing to defection of teachers. The daughter Churches seem to be more active than the central Church in Yungchow. At the triennial synod, the Churches for the first time elected women delegates, and others were chosen to serve on various committees. A sustentation fund also was started, each Church being proportionately assessed. A band of Chinese Christians, known as the "Los Angeles Evangelists," who are supported by the Bible Institute of that Californian town, toured throughout the Yungchow district. As a result of their work new congregations were formed in three different centres.

Hengchow

The Rev. T. P. Tindall writes that the growing congregation in Hengchow was ably ministered to by a Chinese priest. In February, 1920, a week of evangelization was held by the C.M.S. workers, together with the American Presbyterians and the German branch of the C.I.M. The town and district were systematically worked, and a great open-air meeting in the city was preceded by a procession, which was headed by the town band. The meetings resulted in a permanent increase of evangelistic work, and also of church attendance and of Bible study. The strike fever in April passed without stoppage of work, and Chinese helpers rose to the responsibility laid upon them.

The "China for Christ" movement carried out a vigorous united mission in February, 1920, in the city of Siangtan. In June severe fighting took place, and the missionaries were busy sheltering refugees and caring for the wounded. Difficulties of Christian life owing to the force of pagan social custom were considerable, and discipline in matters of marriage and burial was necessary. Siangtan

At Nganyuen, just over the border of Kiangsi Province, the boys' and girls' schools connected with the Pingshiang Colliery were made over by the company to C.M.S. management on an agreement for five years. Funds are supplied by the company and administered by a board of management of three of their officials, together with the Chinese pastor and the missionary. There are about 500 children attending. Christian instruction is a part of the curriculum, and the majority of the teachers are Christian. Nganyuen

FUKIEN MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The Mission in the Fukien Province has a truly remarkable history. Foochow, the provincial capital, was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert being won. Two out of five missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the firstfruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (afterwards Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Foochow City. In that year and the following other large cities were occupied by Chinese evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts were baptized. Funing was occupied by foreign missionaries in 1882; Kutien, 1886; Loyuan, 1889; Kienyang, 1891; Hinghwa, 1893; Kienning, 1894; Ningteh, Futsing, Kengtao, and Kaosanshih, 1896; Lienkong, 1897; Sienyu, 1901; Hotung, 1903; Doshun, 1904; Sungki, 1906; Chungan, 1913; Fuan, 1914. The province of Fukien which had previously formed a part of the diocese of Victoria, Hong Kong, became a separate diocese in 1906. The Right Rev. J. Hind, the present bishop, a C.M.S. missionary, was consecrated in 1918.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The work of the Mission is carried on at Foochow, and also at many cities and villages scattered over the northern half of the province. Three of these, besides Foochow, are "fu" (i.e. prefectural) cities, namely, Funing and Kienning, north of the Min, the river on which Foochow stands, and Hinghwa, south of it. The other chief stations are Lienkong, Loyuan, Ningteh, and Kutien, north of the Min; and Futsing and Sienyu, south of that river. The Dublin University Fukien Mission largely supports the work at Funing and Fuan and some of the educational work at Foochow.

Besides the Bishop, who resides at Foochow, the mission staff comprises 16 foreign clergymen, 8 laymen, 19 missionaries' wives, and 55 single women. Of these 10 are qualified doctors and 12 are nurses. There are 29 Chinese clergymen and 322 male and 457 female Chinese Christian evangelists and teachers.

The chief institutions are at Foochow, some of them in the city and others in the European Settlement on the island of Nantai, in the River Min. They include a union divinity college; the Stewart Memorial School for Bible women; a women's normal school; Trinity College, consisting of an Anglo-Chinese school (St. Mark's College), a middle school (including normal school), and an upper primary school for boys; a boarding school for girls; a hospital and union medical school; and a school for blind boys. The Society also co-operates in the arts department of Foochow University.

There are also women's schools at Funing, Ningteh, Hotung, Futsing, Hinghwa, Kienning, and Lienkong; boarding schools for boys at Funing, Kienning, Kutien, Hinghwa, and Sienyu, and for girls at Kengtao, Ningteh, Funing, and Hinghwa; and lower primary day schools at a great number of villages.

Medical work is represented by hospitals at Foochow, Ningteh, Funing, Sienyu, and Kienning, besides dispensaries at several stations. Work among lepers is carried on at Foochow, Loyuan, Kutien, and Kienning.

A number of the women missionaries devote themselves almost entirely to evangelistic work, in which also the missionaries engaged at the institutions named above take part from time to time. The C.E.Z.M.S. co-operates with the C.M.S. in work among women at Foochow, Kienning, Kutien, and Loyuan, and occupies a few other stations as well.

Bishop Hind tells us in his review of the work that steps are being taken to introduce a phonetic script for the Fukienese dialect, modelled upon the national script which is suited to the official Mandarin form of Chinese. In the diocesan synod of 1920, the women delegates gave real help in the debates. The welcome progress of womanhood in China is, however, not without its dangers in social relations, which in some cases have progressed from the ancient strictness of Chinese etiquette to a familiarity considerably beyond that of western standards, causing not a little anxiety to those who are charged with the education of Christian girls. The synod took over the administration of the C.M.S. grant for catechists in the whole of the diocese. There are about 170 of them, for whose support $50,000 has to be raised annually, towards which the C.M.S. contributes $12,000. The recrudescence of opium growing in the province is noticed by the Bishop and other correspondents. He writes that it is being countered by efforts on the part of the International Anti-Opium Association.

Foochow

The Rev. J. B. Carpenter, the late secretary of the Mission, worked for half the year in the union theological school at Foochow. He writes that a Chinese clergyman of an American Mission has been appointed principal. Another Chinese, Dr. Sing, has taken Mr. Carpenter's place as lecturer. The theological students were affected to some extent by the unrest which shook other schools and colleges. In Trinity College the vernacular middle school had to close down in December, along with others, for some time. Fourteen of the normal school students signed the Student Volunteer declaration of intention to serve Christ as evangelists. Ten normal students gained their certificates in July, of whom seven were posted out as teachers, while three joined the union theological school. In the girls' boarding school 250 come together at daily prayers, and the fees for their education are readily paid, often on the opening day. There was difficulty in getting some of the girls to school owing to fear of molestation by soldiers of the northern army; these cases, however, were few, as almost all the girls are boarders. In May

Miss Dora Yu, of Shanghai, held special meetings for schoolgirls in Foochow, with the result that many lives were changed. In 1920 the union medical college completed its tenth year with a roll of fifteen students. Dr. B. van S. Taylor reports that their general level of intelligence and standard of entrance are being raised year by year. Of past graduates seven are in missionary employ, two of them in that of the C.M.S. One received his diploma in connexion with the Federated Malay States, another in connexion with the China Mutual Insurance Co. The Sunday school connected with the women's hospital had an attendance of over 300, and there were several baptisms among the scholars. One of these children, who developed phthisis, was cared for in the hospital, but died. The impression made upon her family resulted in their baptism. The father was treated successfully for the opium smoking habit by the Chinese method. This is described by Miss M. E. Baldwin as follows :—

> They lock up their suspects and watch them. If they are reduced to suffering for want of opium, then they have to pay a very heavy fine. If however they can pass the test of being without opium for forty-eight hours, then they are set free. There was great fear for this new inquirer; all the Church were in sympathy with him, and anxious for him, so they had a special prayer for him at the Saturday night prayer meeting, that the Lord would deliver him, and lo, he passed the ordeal without suffering.

Doshun

At the branch station of Doshun the Christian women organized a league to help the Bible women's fund, and subscribed $30 for that purpose during nine months, in addition to their contributions to the synod assessment. Good feeling was shown towards missionaries and their work, but the propaganda of Seventh Day Adventists was very injurious.

Ningteh

At Ningteh the exposing or otherwise getting rid of female children was in evidence, and that not only among pagans.

Funing

The Rev. J. Curtis taught English in the government school at Funing, and as a result of his experience he raises the question whether missionaries should not encourage Christians to make full use of government schools, leaving only the training of Christian agents to be maintained by C.M.S., or perhaps by the diocese with the help of grants. He feels that teaching in the government schools brings the missionary into touch with the future leaders of the district in a very direct and fruitful way. In his pastoral work Mr. Curtis had to travel over a thousand miles by land, mostly on foot, and 700 by water. The chief centres of interest were Hoceuk and Dieugie, where eighty-three and eighty-two persons respectively were baptized, in groups of families. They showed more readiness to provide for their own needs than groups composed of more scattered elements.

Fuan

The girls' school at Fuan has between sixty and seventy children. Miss A. M. Heard found heathen parents anxious to send their children as boarders, almost every one appearing on the first day. The punctual observance of school dates tends to overthrow the superstition of bondage to lucky days. The "women's western training class" was suspended owing to the misconduct of one of its prominent members and the doubtful character of others. "The ladies' classical mistress came out as a Christian after four years and a half of hearing and learning the doctrine. She was baptized in January, 1920, with several other women." She is an "elderly woman, daughter of a mandarin."

Futsing

The closing of the men's mission hospital at Futsing was a setback to the work, and there was some difficulty in persuading women that the medical work for them would not also be abandoned. Well-to-do patients in the women's hospital paid good fees, which helped towards its maintenance; a handsome tablet and silk scroll telling of the benefit received were presented by one who had made a notable recovery. The new Chinese pastor is an energetic man, and carried on evangelistic meetings with his helpers for fourteen days, during which thousands of men and women heard the gospel story with great interest and the evangelists met with kindness and courtesy. A branch of the Mothers' Union was started with a Chinese lady secretary and committee. Miss A. L. Leybourn writes: "The addresses given by Chinese women have been just what are needed to help our Christian mothers to bring up their children for Christ and to have real Christian homes."

Kengtao

The girls' boarding school at Kengtao, after being closed for two years, was reopened, and was appreciated by the people much more than formerly. There were signs, too, of spiritual movement among the children. The women were learning the phonetic script and beginning to unbind their feet, while some were being prepared for baptism.

Hinghwa

The Rev. W. H. Maddock, of Hinghwa, writes that recently when he was operated on for appendicitis the anæsthetic was administered by a Chinese woman doctor, and he himself was nursed by two Chinese women—the first male patient they had cared for in that way. To some extent the demand for mission hospital work diminished, owing to the increased number of shops where foreign medicines were sold (and often used with little regard to suitability), and also to the multiplication of medical men with foreign training acquired overseas or in China. In the men's ward the majority of the patients were soldiers, wounded in the fighting between the northern and southern armies. Six of the women nurses were preparing for confirmation. The spiritual work at the hospital was faithfully carried on by Chinese helpers while Mr. Maddock was laid aside. Some time ago an opposition Church was started in Hinghwa by dissatisfied catechists who had left the Anglican communion, but it appeared to be on the wane in 1920, and the offerings of the people increased. At the annual thanksgiving service, though foreign subscriptions were far smaller than in previous years, the total amount contributed proved larger. Six or seven Hinghwa workers and one Sienyu catechist expressed their willingness to read in the Bishop's class with a view to ordination; one of them was the head master of the boys' boarding school. Miss M. I. Bennett writes that it was difficult to get women to take up Bible women's work. In 1920 there were twenty-five in the women's school, mostly the wives of catechists or teachers. In connexion with the "China for Christ" movement, literature was circulated, especially such as was suitable for the student class; the pamphlets and handbills were cordially received, particularly during the time of unrest.

Kienning

From Kienning Archdeacon H. S. Phillips writes that since his return from furlough he had noticed increased unrest, and also, more widespread use of opium and morphia. At the invitation of the head master, he gave lessons in English in the government middle school, with the result that some of the boys, who belong to the leading families in the prefecture, began to visit his home for "tea and talk." On one Sunday eighteen persons were baptized in the Kienning church, being the largest number ever baptized at one time at that station; fifteen of these were pupils in C.M.S. educational institutions. Soldiers quartered in the city preferred to attend the mission hospital rather than have recourse to their own trained doctor, for he did not give much attention to the common soldier. Contributions to the famine relief fund, after high-sounding appeals, were disappointing. Three women were baptized, one was admitted to the catechumenate, and one was confirmed.

Chungan

Miss E. J. Harrison, one of eight C.M.S. women missionaries who arrived in Fukien in 1896, and of whom seven are still in the field, gives expression to the thankfulness which is felt for the earnest work, straight life, and fearless preaching of the Chinese pastor at Chungan. In the surrounding villages, congregations are growing. In one of them, called Denghah, there is a colony of stonemasons, belonging to a non-idolatrous sect known as Tabeh. One of them heard "the doctrine" at a Christian wedding feast, and nine of them put themselves under instruction for baptism. In another village a congregation of inquirers subscribed towards the building of a church and catechist's house, and started a boys' day school with its own resources. The dispensary at Chungan was self-supporting. The vestry meeting or parish council under the pastor's chairmanship, with a woman membership of one-third, worked well.

CHEKIANG MISSION

PAST HISTORY

China, north of lat. 28°, became the sphere of a separate episcopal jurisdiction, "North China," in 1872, Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., being the first bishop, and residing in Ningpo. In 1880, after his death, the diocese was divided into two, North and Mid China, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became bishop of the latter see; he retired in 1907, and was succeeded in the following year by Dr. H. J. Molony. The Protestant Episcopal Church of America appointed a missionary bishop to China in 1844, who reached Shanghai with a band of missionaries in the following year. In 1908 by an agreement with the American bishops, the province of Chekiang was recognized as Dr. Molony's sphere of episcopal jurisdiction, and his title was changed to "Bishop in Chekiang." Archdeacon Sing was consecrated as assistant bishop in 1918, being the first Chinese Anglican bishop. The first C.M.S. missionaries reached China in 1844, and Shanghai was occupied in 1845; Ningpo, 1848; Hangchow, 1865; Shaohing, 1870; Taichow and Chuki, 1892; Tunglu, 1913. In the earlier years of the Mission much success was achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Later, in 1877, the Gospel was introduced in striking circumstances into the Chuki district from Hangchow, and again in 1886 into the district of Taichow from Ningpo.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Excepting at Shanghai, in the province of Kiangsu, the commercial metropolis of China, where the Society has an Anglo-Chinese school open to non-Christian boys and some elementary schools, and also maintains general evangelistic work, the operations of the Mission are carried on in the province of Chekiang. Ningpo, one of the first five ports in China to be thrown open to foreign trade, and Hangchow, another treaty port, are the chief stations, the others being Taichow, to the south of Ningpo, and Shaohing, Chuki, and Tunglu, east, south-east, and south-west respectively of Hangchow.

The more important educational institutions are Trinity College (with its theological class and normal school) and a women's school, at Ningpo; Bible women's classes at Shaohing and Taichow; a higher elementary school at Shaohing; and the Mary Vaughan High School for girls at Hangchow.

Medical work is represented by hospitals at Hangchow, Taichow, and Ningpo. In connexion with the Hangchow hospital there are a medical school, lepers' home, maternity home, etc.

The staff of the Mission consists besides Bishops Molony and Sing, of 13 foreign and 31 Chinese clergymen, 12 foreign laymen, 22 missionaries' wives, and 28 other foreign women missionaries; 7 of the above are doctors and 7 are nurses engaged at the mission hospitals. There are also 201 Chinese Christian lay agents. The Chinese Church Missionary Society carries on work in the Hangchow district.

Population and missionary force

THE report of the Chekiang Mission tells us that, amidst all the turmoil of surrounding provinces, save for the students' strike and boycott the province of Chekiang has passed a comparatively peaceful year, and continues:—

According to the latest computation the population of Chekiang is about twenty millions. There are six cities with a population of over 100,000, and five others with over 50,000. Altogether there are fourteen Protestant missions at work, and yet it may be truly said that their united forces are not sufficient for the warfare. The work of the C.M.S. is largely confined to four prefectures out of the eleven, comprising only about one-fifth of the provincial area, but it contains the most densely populated portion of the whole province. The prefectures of Shaohing and Ningpo alone must contain a population not far short of 7,000,000 people. The number of communicant Christians in the province, not counting those of the Roman Catholic Church, has now reached about 28,000, an increase of 8000 since 1912, or an average gain of 1000 a year since that time. The percentage of male communicants is sixty-two. The number in connexion with our own Church is over 2500. The number of baptized at the end of 1919 was just over 5000.

On the missionary staff there was only one man of under twelve years' standing when the report was written; the majority had seen from twenty to thirty years' service.

An ordination, held by Bishop Sing at Christ Church, Ningpo, on Easter Day, 1920, was the first ordination by a Chinese bishop of the Anglican communion. The whole service was arranged and carried out by Chinese Christians. Dr. Sing, a nephew of the Bishop, officiated at the organ, and the only foreigners present were three women missionaries. In July, 1920, the Ningpo Church mourned the death of Mr. David Wong, one of its leading members. He was baptized as a young man in England, and afterwards did much useful work in his own country. Miss I. M. Hughes writes that her work is almost entirely among upper-class people, for whom she holds drawing-room meetings, enlivened by lantern slides on general subjects and on the life of Christ. A spirit of friendship and genial intercourse is on the increase. Miss S. Morris found the accommodation at the dispensary entirely overtaxed, and opened a subscription list for enlarging the building. The Chinese matron promised to be responsible for $100; another lady gave $50, to which her brother added a like sum, and she afterwards undertook to collect $3000 for the new building. Miss Morris paid a visit on Easter Sunday to Punsaen, and attended a remarkable service conducted by a Chinese working man, who in the morning preached a thoughtful sermon on the resurrection, and in the afternoon catechized the congregation on the international Sunday-school lesson. Miss M. M. Clark found the fishermen in the district very open to the gospel message, but she was much distressed by two great evils in Chinese social life—the selling of wives and the destroying of baby girls. In the women's school work she was struck with the "gradual development of stupid women and elder girls as the light of truth becomes to them a reality." In St. Catherine's School, the girls' Sowers' Band sale realized about $180. One of the girls and her sister were baptized in the summer; they are nieces of the wife of the foreign minister to Germany and Holland. The mother was unwilling that they should make a public confession, but the aunt persuaded her and "they are now preparing for confirmation together with nine other girls." There was anxiety about another ex-pupil, married into a heathen home and tempted to compromise her faith. Some of the elder girls of the school attended a lecture given to students by Mr. C. T. Wang, one of China's delegates to the Peace Conference, and son-in-law of Pastor Sing, and afterwards joined a patriotic league like those that caused strikes elsewhere; happily the excitement passed away without any harm being done. The girls are open to generous impulses, and decided to sup on thin rice gruel for a month so as to send the money saved to the famine sufferers. The matron of the school is a daughter of Bishop Sing, and a former pupil.

Taichow

Miss E. Parker, writing of the girls' boarding school at Taichow, says: "the boarders are forgoing their morning meal of rice, and having only gruel in order to help the funds of the Chinese Missionary Society, besides doing needlework for the same cause." A heavy flood at the end of the summer almost rose to the upper story of the school, and when it subsided the building was left damp and unsavoury. Dr. J. C. P. Beatty managed to rescue many of the boys of the C.M.S. boarding school from the upper story of their building. The Rev. T. Thomas found much difficulty in the work in the southern part of the country owing to the illiteracy of the people. At Kyinmen the church was inert and dying out, but in two of the villages the courtyard of the temple was lent for lantern preaching and the villagers attended in a body. The bad typhoon that caused the flooding of the mission house and other buildings was followed by a great tidal wave which brought about widespread destruction. The Christians of Hangchow and Ningpo united in sending help to the distressed inhabitants. In the northern district Mr. H. N. Bishop found the attendance at worship in the country churches mostly poor. The zeal of the Christians had decreased when less help was given them in their lawsuits. The welfare of the Church will depend upon work among the younger generation, especially the women.

Shaohing

The number of boarders in the lower elementary school at Shaohing fell off, possibly owing to the fees being increased. An inter-mission evangelistic campaign was held throughout the city in February, 1920, and a Bible school at the Chinese New Year for women workers and more advanced Christians to the number of nearly forty. In the country district many catechumens had to be kept back from baptism for a long time on account of the fewness of opportunities for teaching. The Rev. W. J. Wallace was able to open up a new out-station in Daokoten. Lantern meetings in another part of the district resulted in four baptisms, besides admissions to the catechumenate. The boys' school had some thirty pupils, and three of them were candidates for baptism. Social intercourse between the missionaries and the more influential classes increased, and Mr. Wallace found that a good many of them were sending their children to be educated in Christian schools elsewhere. The expression of good feeling was sometimes a little embarrassing:—

> The other day a servant appeared bearing four bottles of champagne and ten pots of the most lovely chrysanthemums. I returned the champagne but kept the flowers, and then a few days afterwards sent a nicely bound

Chinese-English New Testament and a foreign-made cake as an acknowledgment of the gift to me.

Among the poorer classes in Shaohing four out of five of the people are "engaged in the manufacture of tinsel money for idol and ancestor worship," and find it extremely difficult to give up this source of livelihood. The women's Bible training school had ten students from scattered places. Three women were baptized on Trinity Sunday and two catechumens brought in. Contributions to the Chinese C.M.S. were higher than in any previous year.

Hangchow

The Mary Vaughan High School, at Hangchow, nearly had to be closed owing to lack of workers. Dr. D. Duncan Main found his work hampered by the smallness of the foreign staff, and trained hospital workers were much in demand as doctors, chemists, and nurses in government institutions, at salaries much higher than the missionary hospital could offer. It was not possible to build a new medical school, but the old college was reopened with twenty students, in order to secure a succession of helpers as well as government recognition. The hospital continued to issue a bi-monthly medical journal with a circulation of 1000, as well as a weekly letter to all the helpers. A clergy rest house was opened and "a home for weary workers has been built. . . . The newest remedy for leprosy has been tried with hopeful signs of improvement, and the British Chamber of Commerce has made a special effort on behalf of British medical missions." A free ragged school was carried on by the students, and a Sunday school in the hospital continued to flourish. Three of the female nurses were baptized and confirmed during the year, and a fourth was under preparation for baptism. Four of the older students were baptized on Whit Sunday, and two were afterwards confirmed. In spite of high exchange the debit balance was almost wiped out. Dr. Duncan Main writes:—

> If our work is to continue and prosper we need enlargement. It is not enough that we have had a successful past. We are up against new conditions and unprecedented difficulties in China, and on all hands there are unseen forces swaying men and nations to-day in a way hitherto unknown.

The effect of the gospel teaching given in the women's hospital was noticed by two American women missionaries who during an itineration found several former C.M.S. patients among those who joined instruction classes. Miss D. C. Joynt was for some months the only C.M.S. woman evangelist in Hangchow. Her opportunities for visiting among the educated classes are continually opening up. Moral conditions among educated women who have been carried away by reforming movements, seem to be improving; in place of dissipation, more is seen of domestic handiwork, and in one place the family allowed Miss Joynt to hold a Bible class twice weekly, to which they brought some of their relatives. Three of these were teachers in the government girls' school. From ladies of the old class of monarchists she heard that they read the Bible daily. "One pupil pressed into my hand the other day a ten-dollar note for the restoration of our little church." Miss Joynt's translational work has lain a good deal in the direction of newspaper evangelism, but her "Life of Mary Vaughan" and "Life of Dora Yu," a Chinese evangelist, both in Chinese, were published during the year through the R.T.S. She says:—

At an "Editors' Lunch," to which I was invited some months ago, I sat next to the proprietor of the principal provincial paper, and had a deeply interesting conversation with him. A strict Confucianist, he showed a broad, sympathetic desire to meet the arguments for a fair examination of Christianity. Before our conversation was over I got him to promise to publish in the columns of the "Chekiang Herald" articles and information bearing on Christian mission work. He has kept his promise, and much use will increasingly be made of this, the best channel to reach thoughtful people among the Hangchow literati class. . . . As "Own Correspondent," in conjunction with Dr. Duncan Main, to the leading English newspaper, "The North China Daily News," I have had valuable opportunity to plead the C.M.S. cause with foreign communities throughout the length and breadth of China.

Chuki

The Rev. J. G. Bird finds the magic lantern a most useful accompaniment for missionary preaching in the Chuki district, but it cannot compete with village theatricals. Where these are not going on, preachers are generally well received and the sale of scripture portions is on the increase, but Mr. Bird noticed new temples springing up and old ones restored. The "China for Christ" movement has had an enlivening effect upon the workers, and the periodical published by it helps in their practical training. The isolation of some of the missionaries is illustrated by the experiences of Miss B. L. Frewer, who for "eleven months of the year was the only foreign woman in Chuki." Her movements were much impeded by serious brigandage in the spring and early summer. Miss Frewer is sometimes helped in looking after serious ailments of the boarders in the girls' school by a Chinese Christian doctor with western training, who lives in the city. The Chinese head of the women's school was a great stand-by.

WESTERN CHINA MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The province of Szechwan was occupied by a party under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh in 1892, but for more than a year it was impossible to rent houses in any place not already occupied by other societies. The cities of Chungpa, Anhsien, Sintu, Mienchuh, and Mienyang (Mienchow) received resident missionaries in 1894; Shihchuan in 1895; Chungkiang and Tehyang in 1903; Mowchow in 1906; Lungan in 1911. In 1895 the Rev. W. W. Cassels, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was consecrated as Bishop in Western China.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The district which constitutes the sphere of the Society may be described as an oblong, some 150 miles long and 80 miles broad, covering an area of about 10,000 square miles. Mienyang, Chungpa, and Lungan are on the Fow River, while Mowchow is on the Min River, another tributary of the Yangtse, farther west. The remaining stations lie more or less in the intervening area. Much territory is waiting to be occupied, especially in the north and west of this district.

The work is still for the most part directly evangelistic, and is carried on by means of meetings in preaching-rooms, lantern lectures, receiving the people in guest-halls and visiting them in their homes, and by bookshops and colportage.

The majority of the schools are junior primary day schools. In addition there are boarding schools for boys and girls at Mienyang, and the Society co-operates in the West China Union University and a diocesan hostel at Chengtu, and a diocesan theological training college at Paoning.

There is a medical mission at Mienchuh, and dispensary work is carried on at many of the other stations.

The work of the Mission is in the hands of Bishop Cassels, 17 other clergymen, 4 laymen, 21 missionaries' wives, and 17 other women missionaries. Two of the above are doctors and 2 are nurses. With these are associated 75 Chinese Christian lay agents.

Increased unrest

THE report of the Western China Mission speaks of an aggravated condition of unrest in the province of Szechwan. There were not even two distinct contending parties; when one combatant gained an advantage over another, fresh combinations were made and more fighting ensued, the only result being that the resources of the country were destroyed and its people terrorized. In addition, throughout the province there was a terrible visitation of cholera, which was carried from place to place by the soldiery, while the understaffing of the Mission threw upon its members burdens which would be difficult to bear even in times of quiet. In several instances missionaries were molested during their journeyings. The Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Seward were compelled to stay for some weeks at Chungking with the American Methodist Episcopal missionaries, as the river was in the occupation of armed robbers. On one occasion Mr. Seward's company were captured and overhauled by a strong armed gang, but were released because no money, opium, or ammunition was found on them; other missionaries were despoiled of money or goods with more or less of courtesy. Labour of every kind was commandeered, often very tyrannically, bedding stolen from the poor at night, agriculture hampered; supplies were scarce, shops were closed, men and women disappeared, and villages and towns were destroyed by fire.

Educational work

During 1920 eighty-nine adults and thirty-four children were baptized in the Western China C.M.S. Mission, bringing up the number of Christians to 1071, of whom 653 are communicants. In the schools there were 947 pupils. More competent teachers, with at least some training, are replacing those of the old style. Among them fourteen men and sixteen women have been more or less trained in C.M.S. institutions. The Bible school at Mienyang was opened in 1908. Altogether 129 women have been trained in it for shorter or longer periods, many of them being wives of present catechists, and all being senior Bible women. Other missions, too, have sent pupils, and the effect of the training is being felt throughout the Mission. During 1920 four of the women in the school were baptized. As regards the training of men, it is reported that for the first time a theological student of the Mission was being sent to the union university at Chengtu for a course in theology. During ten years of its existence, up to July, 1920, the university has sent out 104 graduates and undergraduates, the great majority of whom were Christians, principally to educational work. The inter-mission Board of Education continued to consolidate and reorganize the educational work of the missions.

Evangelism

Despite unrest, there were manifold signs of seeking after God. A readiness to listen to the Gospel was found, especially among the young people. Miss V. C. Mannett, of the girls' boarding school at Mienyang, speaks of spiritual blessing among the girls. She made a short evangelistic tour with Miss Wu, one of the teachers, and at Tehyang they were allowed to speak freely to the girls of the big government school, and many higher class ladies were visited. The Rev. A. A. Phillips had an audience of 400 at a Sunday evening service for university and medical students. At Huangsiuchen ten families were led to Christ by the witness of a warm-hearted Christian woman, the wife of a butcher. At first they met in her house, but later they built a little chapel for worship. At Sintu the Christians walked from eight to fifteen miles to church on Sundays, the wonder being that they were not commandeered by the way for army work. As a fruit of individual work by Christians there were thirty candidates for baptism. Nine women from Anhsien attended a Bible school at Mienchuh, five of them walking all the way—no easy task, as the distance was twenty miles and the district was noted for robbers. The missionary's company was a protection to them, but walking with their small bound feet was a difficult business.

Medical work

A good site was obtained for the mission hospital at Mienchuh, but no doctor was available for the work. In the women's dispensary at Mienyang 1000 patients were treated during the year, and maternity work was also carried on in the city. A Social Service Association defrayed the cost of cholera pills for distribution during an epidemic.

Social service

Social service at Mienyang and elsewhere went forward, although it was hindered by the excesses of the soldiery. Schemes for social reform are often submitted to missionaries, and they are even sometimes asked to administer subscriptions towards the carrying out of the schemes. In Sintu as much as $500 was entrusted to them for the Northern Famine Relief Fund.

Japan

Japan consists of four principal islands, namely, Honshu (mainland), Kyushu, Shikoku, and Hokkaido (Yezo), besides a number of smaller islands. The Japanese Empire includes also Formosa, the Pescadores, and Korea. Japan proper covers an area of 147,000 square miles, and has a population of about 56,000,000. Roman Catholic missionaries reached the country in 1549, but engaging in political intrigues they were expelled, and in 1624 Christianity was prohibited on pain of death. For 230 years Japan was practically closed to the outer world, but in 1853 it began to open to American and European influences, and since that time the country has made extraordinary progress in the adoption of western civilization. Still more recent is the toleration now fully accorded to Christian effort. In 1889 a new political constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of the United Kingdom, was promulgated. At the first general election under this constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker. In 1899 new treaties came into operation by which the country was thrown completely open to foreigners. Lastly, in 1912, the government policy which gave exclusive patronage to Shinto, the official religion of the country (Buddhism, the popular religion, had been disestablished in 1884), was changed, and Christianity was recognized and its aid sought.

American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. The first British missionary, the Rev. G. Ensor of the C.M.S., reached Japan in 1869. According to the "Christian Movement in the Japanese Empire, 1920," the Protestant missionaries in Japan, excluding Formosa, in 1919 numbered 1096 (men 367, wives 325, single women 389, and short service workers 15). There were 775 Japanese ordained men and 3181 other Japanese Protestant Christian workers, and 98,084 adherents of Protestant Missions. The converts connected with the C.M.S., S.P.G., Canadian Church, and Board of Missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America unite to form the Nippon Sei Kokwai, which had 19,863 adherents. The missionaries of the Roman Catholic Church numbered 352 and converts 75,983, and the Russian Orthodox Church had one foreign missionary and 36,265 adherents.

World's Sunday-school Convention

A NOTABLE effect was produced by the World's Sunday-school Convention, held in Tokyo in the autumn of 1920. The cordiality shown by Japanese authorities and the public generally was very real; a great impression, both social and religious, was made; and closer relations were established. Nothing could have been more generous than the help given by the Japanese public when the hall erected for the meeting was burnt down, and the leaders of the convention had unfettered opportunity for pressing the claims of Christ upon large audiences at the public meetings which were held. At the same time too much importance should not be attached to the attention paid to the convention by the Japanese, since they are ready to take up any new sensation.

Attitude of Japanese towards Christianity

A few months later a Buddhist congress was held in Tokyo, which became the sensation of the day. Buddhism is endeavouring in many places to make a stand against the spread of Christianity, often by adopting the methods of Christian missions, such as the Sunday school, the newspaper article, and public preaching. The Japanese is ready to hear whatever doctrines the new age has to set forth; he is critical of anything which may tend to undermine the enthusiasm of nationality, represented by the imperial family; and he judges the doctrines preached to him by the business standard of their effects on modern life. There are many in Japan who would be glad to have the Christian spirit and ideals accepted by their nation, but are unwilling to accept the divine facts upon which those ideals are based. The educational authorities and staff as a whole are against Christianity as a foreign religion; but the felt need of a strong moral and religious foundation for national life is in its favour, and pupils crowded to C.M.S. schools, both for boys and girls, in numbers far larger than could be accommodated.

Call to social service

Stress is laid again and again by foreign missionaries, both men and women, and by Japanese, on the great opportunity and the great need for social service as a most effective witness for Christ in the present rapid industrial development of Japan. The need of religious work such as that of the Christian missionary and helper in the slums of Tokyo and Osaka is felt by many Japanese, and facilities for carrying it on are frequently given. There seems also to be a feeling in the minds of employers that the inculcation of Christian ethics upon their workpeople will make them more reasonable and honest and amenable to discipline.

Nippon Sei Kokwai

The statistics of the Nippon Sei Kokwai for the year ended 31 December, 1919, were as follows: Foreign missionaries (men 73, single women 110, wives 45), 228; Japanese workers (ordained 122; lay 202), 324; baptized persons on roll, 27,976; baptized persons present (i.e. known to workers), 19,165; communicants on roll, 11,103; baptisms during year (adults 835; infants 546), 1381; total contributions, 88,515 yen, of which 11,845 yen was given in offertories. The contributions per head of present baptized persons was 3.53 yen in 1917, and 4.62 yen in 1919. Few of the Christian leaders of wealth and culture in Japan are connected with the C.M.S., the reason being that in comparison with the American missions it has done little to impart higher education. The scanty supply of clergy and of students under preparation for the ministry of the Church is disquieting.

CENTRAL JAPAN MISSION

PAST HISTORY

The Rev. G. Ensor, the first C.M.S. missionary to the Japanese, landed at Nagasaki, in Kyushu, in 1869, and in 1873 the Mission was extended to Honshu, the Main Island, and Osaka was occupied. Tokyo received a resident missionary in 1874; Matsuye, 1888; Fukuyama, 1891; Hiroshima, 1892; Hamada, 1893; Yonago, 1902; Kure, 1907; and Yokohama, 1916. In Shikoku, Tokushima was occupied in 1888.

Arrangements were made by Archbishop Tait for the establishment of an English bishopric in Japan, and his successor, Archbishop Benson, nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. missionary in South India, to be the first bishop. He was consecrated in October, 1883. On his death in July, 1885, he was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth. In 1893 the Committee undertook, on the invitation of Bishop Bickersteth, to support two new bishops for the southern and northern islands respectively. In 1894 Bishop Bickersteth agreed with Bishop McKim, of the American Episcopal Church, upon a division of the Main Island into the dioceses of North and South Tokyo, Kyoto, and Osaka; North Tokyo and Kyoto being assigned to the American Church. The Rev. S. Heaslett, a C.M.S. missionary, has been appointed bishop of the diocese of South Tokyo, and Dr. Foss is bishop of Osaka. A new diocese, Mid Japan, was formed out of South Tokyo in 1912, for which Dr. Hamilton, of the Canadian Church, a former C.M.S. missionary, was consecrated bishop.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The chief stations on the Main Island are Osaka, the centre of trade in southern and western Japan; Fukuyama, to the west of Osaka: Kure, a naval port, and Hiroshima, on the Inland Sea; Hamada, the chief town of the western province of Iwami; and Matsuye and Yonago, to the north-east of Hamada. Tokushima is on the island of Shikoku. All these are in the diocese of Osaka. In the diocese of South Tokyo, Tokyo, the largest city in the empire and the seat of the Emperor's Government, is occupied.

The educational institutions include the Momoyama School for boys, and the Bishop Poole Memorial School for girls, at Osaka; and a Bible women's training home at Ashiya. The C.M.S. men theological students attend the central theological college of the Nippon Sei Kokwai at Ikebukuro, while the preparatory students attend the American higher school; for the latter a hostel is provided.

Evangelistic work throughout Japan is prosecuted largely by means of English and other classes. Public meetings of an evangelistic character are regularly held at the Whidborne Hall, Tokyo, and at all the stations and out-stations; special services are frequently conducted in, or in connexion with the various churches; and preaching tours are made in the country districts as opportunity offers.

The staff engaged in the Mission consists of 12 foreign and 14 Japanese clergymen, 1 layman, 12 missionaries' wives and 18 other women missionaries. The Japanese Christian lay teachers and evangelists number 71.

Osaka

THE Momoyama School at Osaka has experienced serious trouble of late years on account of the restrictions imposed by Japanese authorities on religious instruction. These are still in force and prevent any direct Christian work, even in the boarding house among forty Christian boys who are especially under the missionary's care. Besides these, some seventy others attend weekly meetings outside the school for Christian instruction, out of 720 on the roll. Attendance at service is of course entirely voluntary. During the year, one master, four students, and two children of Christian masters were baptized. A Y.M.C.A. branch has been formed among the boys, and they have sent clothing to Siberian refugees and money to famine sufferers in North China. Recently a fifth-year boarder who attended church and Bible classes committed suicide by throwing himself under a train. He left a letter for his Christian chum in which he had written: "Death is annihilation, that is what I hope for." In the Bishop Poole Girls' School there were only three non-Christians on the staff, and these seemed very near to faith in Christ. There were 300 pupils on the roll, after 150 had been rejected as the result of an entrance examination. Members of the school's Alumnæ Guild are working hard to raise a school endowment fund by regular subscriptions among themselves and a sale of work. The school supports a child in an orphanage, at the head of which is an old pupil; also a Sunday school in the neighbourhood.

Out of the year's graduating class of thirty-six, thirty-three were Christians. Miss L. L. Shaw writes :—

> The daily Bible classes at the school are always a joy to both teachers and pupils. In fact when one asks in the homes what is the favourite lesson, the reply is nearly always "the Bible." It is so different from anything that they have heard elsewhere, and our fine Christian teachers are so full of enthusiasm in their presentation of it that the girls are usually keenly interested. On Advent Sunday we had the joy of seeing nine of the girls definitely decide for Christ.

Tokushima

The work at Emmanuel Church, Tokushima, suffered through the inability of the pastor to hold the congregation together. There were troubles also about the church property at Muya, which was in private hands, but these were adjusted. At Matsuye, the acquisition of a good preaching hall greatly promoted the work ; a Bible class for students and a children's service were well attended, as also a weekly meeting for high-school girls. One of those recently baptized went to Ashiya to be trained as a Bible woman. Among the graduates of the middle school there were six Christians who were regular in attendance at church, and in helping with evangelization. The church at Hirose was at a low ebb, but the Sunday school, carried on by two voluntary workers, flourished. At Yonago, the deanery system is said to be working well, but self-support as yet is not far advanced. At the great naval and shipbuilding centre of Kure, work was done in the wards of the naval hospital, where the missionary found a welcome. The work among women at Kure is accomplished by individual visiting ; that among children was hampered by the large Buddhist Sunday school. English teaching in night schools resulted in establishing touch with many government employees. Preaching on Sunday nights was attended by thirty to fifty, mainly sailors and arsenal workers.

Fukuyama

Six adults and four children were baptized. In Fukuyama, special services were held during Lent, and a large tent seating about 700 was filled every night ; many inquirers were preparing for baptism as a result. Women's meetings at this station suffered owing to difficulties of domestic service ; Japanese middle-class ladies cannot get servants and, therefore, cannot leave home for meetings. There was also trouble about church buildings, one of the trustees being an excommunicated Christian.

Ashiya

The Bible women's training institution at Ashiya opened the year with a small class, owing largely to difficulties caused by the rise in prices. "An old graduate who has married a well-to-do business man is sending each month enough money to keep a student in training," as she wanted some one to do mission work in her place. The students do some field work and give fortnightly help at a crèche in Kobe and in the slum work there which is carried on by Mr. Kagawa, a Princetown (U.S.A.) graduate, and a well-known labour leader. Altogether the students carry on twelve Sunday schools and children's meetings. Work among the villagers increased as a result of friendly intercourse. Several ladies asked to have their servants taught, in some cases with the result of baptism. The Church in Ashiya is now semi-independent, the catechist having been admitted to deacon's orders; it has 4000 yen in hand for a projected church building, and during the year thirty persons were baptized and nineteen became catechumens. At Amagasaki, where Miss A. M. Cox has taken up her residence, a Japanese catechist had resided for eight years and built up a Church of sixty-eight persons, almost all belonging to the working class. The children's meetings in five places are attended by about 150. At Hiroshima, a strong Buddhist centre, the Buddhists have established "a salvation army," and also at Shimonoseki. This army is said to be "unsparing in its vilifications of Christianity," and apparently takes its fighting somewhat literally, as the aged Christian pastor was "knocked down senseless by some of its members while preaching in the street." The lapse of a leading Christian entrusted with the finance of the new church site caused much trouble in the early part of the year, but under a new pastor things improved, and steps were taken to raise a church fund; the committee refused to accept for the fund money acquired by immorality The work of newspaper evangelism was carried on irregularly; but nearly 1200 applications for more information were received from all over the country. Hiroshima

Among the inquirers are to be found army and navy officers, schoolmasters, students, elementary schoolteachers by the dozen, Buddhist and Shinto priests, and even criminals. The great bulk, however, seem to be young countrymen. Nearly 160 have joined the New Life Society for further study, while over seventy of them are enrolled in the correspondence course. This latter was completed during the summer after several months' work, and is meant to give a fair knowledge of Christianity, sufficient to warrant baptism, if there are evidences of a living faith. In addition several are now being prepared for baptism both in Hiroshima and Kure, while three have already been baptized.

Evangelism in the country districts was in abeyance owing to weakness of staff.

In Tokyo, the Rev. S. Heaslett, who has since been appointed as Bishop in South Tokyo, acted as lecturer on the New Testament in the central theological college at Ikebukuro, and was secretary of the Mission; he was also secretary of the Christian Literature Society, and assistant editor of the "Japan Evangelist." Mr. Heaslett writes that the students and schoolboys in all schools, even those directly under Government, practically govern their schools. The authorities are afraid of the spread of "dangerous ideas," but are at a loss to combat them. The synod of the Nippon Sei Kokwai passed a resolution making the present standard of salaries for all Tokyo Japanese workers double the pre-war standard, but missionary societies have not been able to reach this mark as yet. "The anxiety raised by the possibility of retrenchment and drastic curtailment in our work has had a weakening effect on the spirit of the workers," but Mr. Heaslett believes that things are now brighter, and that the movement towards independence in individual Churches and the foundation of a diocese with a Japanese bishop, is gaining in momentum. Emmanuel Church, Kojimachi, made a decided advance in self-support. There is a committee which settles the women's work and arranges speakers for the weekly mothers' meeting. In Yokaichiba the catechist was given entrance into a large silk factory, where he reached hundreds of girls each week; the manager of the factory has been baptized.

Work among Chinese

The Rev. W. H. Elwin writes that the Chinese in Tokyo are giving up the stilted classical style (Wenli) and writing the spoken language (Mandarin) and up-to-date magazines are doing the same. This means that the spoken and written languages are beginning to be identical, and that one form of the language is likely to be used generally throughout China. Mr. Elwin tells of a former Chinese student in Tokyo, who had an educational opening in the Straits Settlements and there helped the missionaries by preaching regularly every other Sunday. Later on he became a major-general in the Chinese army, but after three or four years in that position, disgusted with war, he returned to civil life. At Karuizawa, in the summer, Mr. Elwin baptized by immersion an English lady, a Chinese student, and his own little Japanese servant boy. He was assisted by the Methodist pastor and a Baptist missionary. A tour among Chinese students outside Tokyo met with marked response, and resulted in the starting of Bible classes in various places by local missionaries. The work in Tokyo itself was more stationary; men's and girls' hostels take up much time. "A spirit of prejudice and opposition has to be overcome." Mr. Elwin writes that the problem of sex relationships is difficult, some girls having imbibed advanced communist ideas. An invitation reached the Rev. Yü Hyien-Ding from a Japanese pastor to do something for 300 Chinese students during their seaside holidays at Hojo, and Mr. Yü spent over three weeks there, holding daily meetings for Bible study, and occasionally larger ones. The membership of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. mounted to 1130, including many non-Christians. Great efforts were made by the students on behalf of the famine-stricken districts in China. In theatricals arranged for the purpose "they specially tried to depict the spirit of sacrifice in a Christian dress whether they were Christians or not." In magazines "love, equality, freedom, and other Christian virtues are taken as the basis of their theme." Nine men and three women were baptized—rather fewer than in 1919.

At Yokohama, the work among the Chinese carried on by the Rev. and Mrs. O. St. M. W. Forester suffered through the departure of two leading members of the committee and the death of the oldest member of the Church, an active and earnest Christian. Mr. Forester took charge of a Chinese business night school, originally started by a returned student from England, which affords great openings for Christian teaching among commercial circles. There were two baptisms from among the Ningpo Chinese, one of the converts being a piano maker.

KYUSHU MISSION

PAST HISTORY

When the C.M.S. began work in Japan in 1869, Nagasaki was the scene of its operations. Kumamoto was occupied in 1887; Fukuoka, 1888; Oita and Kagoshima, 1895; Kokura, 1898; Omuta and Saseho, 1914; and Kurume, 1915.

The diocese of Kyushu was constituted in 1893, and in the following year the Rev. H. Evington, a C.M.S. missionary of twenty years' experience in Japan, was consecrated. He retired in 1909 and was succeeded by Dr. A. Lea, a missionary of the Canadian C.M.S.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The work is carried on in much the same way as in Central Japan. Saseho, Nagasaki, Omuta, and Kumamoto in the west; Kokura and Kurume in the north; Oita in the east; and Kagoshima in the south of the island, are the stations. There is a Bible school for catechists at Fukuoka.

The staff of the Mission consists, besides Bishop Lea, of 5 foreign clergymen, 9 Japanese clergymen, 6 wives of missionaries, 9 single women, and 13 Japanese Christian lay agents.

THE Rev. J. Hind writes in the General Review of the Mission that, owing to the great increase of material wealth throughout the country, a materialistic spirit is prevalent, and the spiritual message is neglected. There is also, he thinks, a danger of social and intellectual substitutes for the Gospel being put forward without first laying the Christian basis. There is, however, "an advance in the corporate life of the Church." Compared with 1915, on the main railway line through Kyushu, in place of two Churches connected with the diocese and one with the Mission, there are one quite independent Church, five Churches partially self-supporting, and eight others, all under diocesan administration. Eleven of these are in charge of missionaries, as presbyters of the Nippon Sei Kokwai; the others are worked by Japanese. Some even among the Japanese think that advance towards independence is being made too rapidly. Mr. Hind says that in Kyushu "the advice and co-operation of the foreign missionary are genuinely desired and welcomed by the Japanese brethren." Each needs, in the present state of the Church, what the other can give. Japan, in her post-war condition, is looking not a little to Britain for an example of solid foundation principles for the social structure. The Japanese ministry is greatly in need of more young men.

Advance in corporate church life

HOKKAIDO MISSION

PAST HISTORY

For four years the work of the C.M.S. in Japan was confined to Nagasaki, and it was not until 1874 that the northern island received a missionary by the occupation of Hakodate. Kushiro was occupied in 1889; Sapporo, 1892; Otaru, 1897; Muroran, 1907; Asahigawa, 1909; and Usu, 1911.

The diocese of Hokkaido was formed in 1896. The see is now vacant.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Hakodate, Sapporo, Otaru, Asahigawa, Obihiro, and Kushiro are the chief stations, the last named in the east of the island.

The staff engaged in the Mission consists of 2 foreign and 12 Japanese clergymen, 2 missionaries' wives, and 6 other women missionaries. The Christian Japanese, Japanese and Ainu lay agents number 14.

THE Japanese Church in Hokkaido is on the increase and missionary organization is decreasing. Four men were recently ordained as deacons and one as priest, the last-named being placed in charge of the Church at Otaru which is now self-governing and self-supporting. Here the Christians raised 800 yen for the repair of the pastor's house, the women helping by collecting money and by a sewing meeting. In July, a Japanese children's missionary, Mr. Aoki, who is supported by children in England, conducted a four days' special effort among young people which was fruitful in results. Ten adults and eleven children were baptized. Archdeacon J. Batchelor visited by invitation a large Japanese coal-mine to baptize certain converts, among whom were three fine young men, engaged as clerks. One of them went through considerable persecution and for a time fell back, but was afterwards restored and became a bright, stirring Christian. There were three other candidates for baptism among the young men of the same place.

Work among the Ainu

The Ainu, an isolated branch of an Aryan race, are being humanely cared for by a pagan Government, but seem to be dying out. Christian work among them continues, though under great difficulties. Curtailment of grants prevented Archdeacon Batchelor from visiting many villages with Christians and catechumens, and compelled him to discharge two workers, one of whom was in charge of 175 Ainu Christians, 125 Sunday-school children, and 25 catechumens. This was only a sample of what was going on elsewhere. From Piratori, Miss E. M. Bryant writes of the coming of a young, well-educated Ainu, eager to work among his own people. His hoped-for ordination had to be postponed. She says:—

> The moral condition of the villages is deplorable. It is not safe for any young girl to go on an errand after dark . . . and the women are without protection in their own homes. . . . To give them any real help one must take them right out of such surroundings.

Canada

NORTH-WEST CANADA AND BRITISH COLUMBIA MISSIONS

PAST HISTORY

The Society's work in North-West Canada has been among the Red Indians and Eskimo scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson Bay Territory, but now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. Now the Red River District is the flourishing colonial province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the cathedral of the diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. It has often been subdivided, and there are now eleven dioceses in place of the one.

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. Great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours, and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. Other stations were afterwards opened.

The Society's Missions in North-West Canada and British Columbia were handed over to the Church of Canada in 1920.

THE transference of the North-West Canada and British Columbia Missions to the Missionary Society of the Canadian Church was made in 1920. The year was marked by the visit of the treasurer (Mr. S. H. Gladstone) and honorary secretary (the Rev. C. C. B. Bardsley) of the C.M.S. to Winnipeg, the seat of the bishopric of Rupert's Land, in October. A parting gift of £25,000 from the peace thankoffering fund of the C.M.S. was presented to the Missionary Society of the Canadian Church, and memorial wreaths were laid on the graves of Archbishop Machray and other great pioneers. St. John's College, belonging to the University of Manitoba, conferred the degree of D.D. on Mr. Bardsley in recognition of all that the C.M.S. had done to foster the growth of the Church in the province.

The Missionary Society of the Canadian Church has now assumed the responsibility of developing the Christian life among the Indians and Eskimo, and of linking them up with the religious and social life of the great white majority in such a way that the principle of trusteeship represented by the League of Nations may be vindicated and followed up. This task, like that of the Church of New Zealand in taking over the Maori Mission of the C.M.S., will not be without its difficulties, but the prayers and interest of C.M.S. supporters will follow the Society's sometime Canadian Missions in the future as in the past, and with confident hope of a blessing greater than has yet been seen.

The Colonial Associations

Colonial C.M.S. Associations were set on foot in Australasia in 1892 as a result of a visit from Dr. Eugene Stock and the Rev. R. W. Stewart, who were sent as a deputation by the Committee of the Society. The New South Wales C.M. Auxiliary, which had existed since 1825, was then reconstituted, and new associations were formed for Victoria (with which Tasmania and South and West Australia afterwards combined) and New Zealand. In 1916 the two Australian associations were incorporated into one society, with the title: "Church Missionary Society of Australia and Tasmania." This society and the New Zealand C.M.S., as the association in New Zealand is now termed, accept, train, and send forth candidates for missionary work in C.M.S. and other fields, and are responsible for their support. They have sent to the C.M.S. field 104 missionaries (excluding wives of missionaries), namely, forty-three from the New South Wales Branch, forty-four from the Victoria Branch, and seventeen from the New Zealand C.M.S.

In Canada, Wycliffe College, Toronto, formed a missionary association in 1888, which maintained men in Japan and in North-West Canada. In 1895 this gave place to a Canadian Church Missionary Association, afterwards called the Canadian C.M.S., and the missionaries previously sent out by Wycliffe College were added to the Society's staff. The Canadian C.M.S. is now financially an integral part of the Missionary Society of the Canadian Church, which sends out and supports the missionaries, but the former still administers a number of trust funds. Since the formation of the Canadian Church Missionary Association twenty-two of its missionaries have joined the C.M.S. staff, but many of these are now working in India, China, and Japan, in spheres which are not, though some of them were, a part of C.M.S. Missions, and their work is administered by the M.S.C.C.

In 1895 several parishes in Cape Colony which supported the C.M.S. formed themselves into a South Africa Association, which is analogous rather to diocesan or archidiaconal associations in England than to the Australasian associations. The association is responsible for the personal allowances (in whole or in part) of a number of missionaries, in the same way as parishes or unions in the United Kingdom having "own missionaries." Candidates for missionary service are sent to England for training and acceptance.

The West Indies C.M. Council, which was constituted in 1897, selects West Indian agents for service in West Africa, and superintends their preparation at the Mico College in Jamaica. It is not responsible for their support.

The C.M.S. of Australia and Tasmania.—This association has now four distinct branches, those of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, and Tasmania. The income for 1920–1 was approximately £33,000, considerably more than in the previous years. A new field of work among the aborigines of Groote Island has just been undertaken, to which a party of missionaries has recently gone forth. At the invitation of the Australian Board of Missions, the C.M.S. of Australia and the Bible Society united with it in its seventieth anniversary celebrations, which included the holding of a missionary exhibition.

New South Wales

The New South Wales branch suffered severely through the destruction by fire of its former head-quarters in Sydney, in January, 1921, involving a loss of about £3000. One new missionary was added to the list of those working in C.M.S. fields, the Rev. H. S. Cocks, located to India (United Provinces Mission); and the name of Miss E. M. G. Barber was again enrolled on her return to China for a further period of missionary service. The income for 1920 was returned at the figure of £11,593, which was £3500 more than the income of 1919.

Victoria

Two new workers were sent by the Victoria branch to C.M.S. fields, namely, Miss Daisy Baker to Canton, and Miss F. A. Biggs to Toro. A training home at Melbourne for women workers, known as St. Hilda's College, has been placed under the direction of the branch through a generous benefaction. Four C.M.S. students were trained in 1920. The income of the branch for 1920 was £15,311, a larger amount than ever before. Thirty-nine missionaries (including wives) are supported in India, China, and Africa.

Tasmania

Miss Wise, sent out as a missionary from Tasmania, was located to the Mission in Haidarabad, for which the New South Wales branch is responsible.

New Zealand C.M.S.—In New Zealand a board of missions has been formed by the general synod, and the missionary work of the Church there and in Melanesia has been committed to it, including the collection and disbursement of money. The Society has retained the right to choose and maintain candidates for missionary service. The head-quarters have been transferred from Auckland to Nelson. During 1920, one new missionary, Miss M. Woods, joined the Chekiang Mission.

South Africa C.M.A.—The South Africa Association remitted £2073 for the financial year 1920–1.

APPENDIX I

LITERARY WORK

SINCE the literary work of C.M.S. missionaries was tabulated in the Annual Report for 1914–15, no special report has been made of this branch of the Society's operations. In view of the great urgency of literature as a means of evangelization as well as of building up a Christian Church at this juncture, when readers in every country are rapidly growing in number and Churches are seeking to develop independent life, it may be well to illustrate the conditions of this branch of our work.

Besides the British and Foreign Bible Society, the chief publishing agencies with which the C.M.S. is connected are the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, which is developing branches in Uganda and Egypt, and contemplating extension elsewhere; the Religious Tract Society, which has helped C.M.S. missionaries greatly during many years, principally through its daughter societies in India and China; and the Christian Literature Societies for India, for China, and for Japan. C.M.S. missionaries are concerned, as will be seen, with the production of literature and its circulation, the business of publication being attended to by the literature societies. The notes given below are culled from missionaries' annual letters, and represent both work which is in progress and work which has been brought out. They show that during the year under review, literary activity was much less than in 1914.

I. Bible Translation.—In Nigeria, two gospels and Genesis have been given to the Sura tribe at Panyam, in the Northern Provinces; at Kabwir, St. John has been translated into Angass, and half of the Book of Psalms put through the press; and at Zaria, Proverbs, 1 and 2 Samuel, Isaiah (part), Daniel, Nehemiah, and Hosea have been translated into Hausa, and notes on St. Matthew and the Acts compiled. In Kenya, at Kaloleni, progress has been made in a new translation of the Acts into Giriama. In Uganda, the revision of the New Testament in Luganda is being carried on; and the four gospels have been published in Luhaya. From Persia, the completion of a revision of the Old Testament translation in Persian is reported. In India, a revision of the Sindhi Bible has been carried on. In China, work has been done on the revision of the first part of the Old Testament and of the Epistle to the Romans.

II. Prayer Book and Hymn Books.—In Africa, at Patani, certain Prayer Book services and the Catechism have been translated into Igabo and a school reader and hymn book have been compiled.

In India, Punjabi hymns on the life of Christ have been composed; and a revision of the Hindi hymn book is being carried on.

III. Vernacular Tracts and Books.—In Nigeria, a monthly magazine is issued at Lagos, with a circulation of 1800, and at Nnewi Scripture Union leaflets are brought out. In India Canon Ali Bakhsh took part in the preparation of a Bible dictionary in Urdu; four evangelistic tracts in Punjabi were prepared at Batala; at Jabalpur, two tracts in English and a "Guide to Hindi Literature"; in Bengal an early church history in Bengali, and a short handbook for Bible women. In China, at Hangchow, evangelistic newspaper articles were contributed and two biographies written; at Ningpo, the "Church's Call to Action," a bilingual quarterly fly-sheet for students, prepared in Japan, was brought out; and at Chungkiang, two tracts were prepared on "The Resurrection" and "The Second Coming."

IV. Periodicals.—"The Orient and Occident," a monthly magazine in English and Arabic, has been published in Egypt; and at Mandla, in the Central Provinces of India, Scripture reading notes in Hindi and English.

APPENDIX II

PROPER FORMS OF A BENEFACTION TO THE SOCIETY BY WILL

No. I.—Form of a Bequest of a Common Legacy

I give and bequeath to the Treasurer for the time being of the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East the sum of Pounds free of duty[1] for the general purposes of the said Society such sum and the duty thereon to be paid within calendar months next after my death. And I declare that the receipt of the Treasurer for the time being of the said Society shall be an effectual discharge for the said Legacy.

No. II.—Form of Bequest of the Residue or a share of the Residue

I give and bequeath unto the Treasurer for the time being of the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East for the general purposes of the said Society my Residuary Real and Personal Estate [or if a share only of the Residue is intended to be given, then, instead of the words in Italics, say "such sum of money as shall be equal to one-fourth or one-half (according to the intention) of my whole Residuary Real and Personal Estate"]. And I declare that the receipt of the Treasurer for the time being of the said Society shall be an effectual discharge for the said Residue [or sum of money as the case may be]. And as to the remainder (if any) of my general Residuary Estate I bequeath the same, etc.

[1] If so intended.
